by MARILYN McDONALD

If your child's school caught fire today, would he make it out alive?

Ninety-five teachers and students perished in 1958 when Our Lady of the Angels Catholic School in Chicago went up in flames on a cold December morning. The tragedy — that made headlines across the nation — was also the catalyst that brought about legislation to make school buildings safe.

The issue took on added urgency six months after the fire when the Illinois Supreme Court ruled in a school accident case that a public school district could be held liable for its negligence.

The Illinois Health and Life Safety Code was adopted by the Illinois General Assembly 11 years ago and sets minimum standards of construction and safety for public schools in the state.

MAXIMUM OCCUPANCY, requirements for smoke screen barriers, fire detection, alarm and sprinkler systems and construction material standards are included in the code. Local school districts are spending millions of dollars to put their buildings into compliance.

"I think it's a good program that looks after the lives of teachers and pupils, said James Monroe, director of building and grounds for Arlington Heights Dist. 25. "Most local fire and safety codes try to protect the building, the firemen and then the people," he said.

But Robert Hayes, a member of the state committee that drew up the life-safety code, remembers when the code was not popular.

Hayes, an assistant county superintendent of schools who is now responsible for enforcing the code in all 720 suburban public schools, talks about the school districts' fight in the state Supreme Court against the code, and the way the code was weakened to enforce only "minimum standards" of safety.

A STATE COMMITTEE spent five years researching school safety, producing a life-safety code in June 1964. Public school officials balked at working with the regulations, protesting the new safeguards would cost too much to enforce.

Sometimes, life-safety inspections reveal the poor construction of schools hastily built in the days when school populations were booming. Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 officials spent $15,000 bringing Blackhawk School, 370 Illinois Blvd., Hoffman Estates, into life-safety compliance in 1971, but decided to close the school after this year because of the building's poor construction.

"The school is safe," said Marvin Lapicola, Dist. 54 assistant superintendent for finances. "But the classrooms are too small and there is a lack of storage space in the school. The thing that saved it from being totally unacceptable is that there is an outside door in each room."

Blackhawk's pupils will be sent to the new Enders-Salk School when it opens in the fall.

LAPICOLA, HOWEVER, said the $15,000 spent on Blackhawk's life-safety work was not wasted. "I feel that the four years of added safety in the building certainly was worth $15,000," he said.

In Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, the high cost of renovating Cardinal Drive School, 2300 Cardinal Dr., Rolling Meadows, is forcing board members to think twice about keeping the school open.

Faced with spending $303,989 to renovate Cardinal Drive, amost as

Sue Ann Sulaski — a leapyear baby.

For Leap Year girl, birthdays are special

by TONI GINNETTI

Sue Ann Sulaski is 19 going on 5.

Er, that is, she's 4 going on 20.

Well, actually, she's 4 going on 5 and 19 going on 20 both . . . at the same time.

And it's all because her birthday is Feb. 29.

Sue Ann is a Leap Year baby, one of those rare individuals who timed their birth for a day that only comes around once every four years.

WHEN YOUR BIRTHDAY occurs that seldom, years take on a different significance.

And while most will be thinking of this year as the nation's time to celebrate, to Sue Ann, 545 Gateshead South Ln., Elk Grove Village, 1976 is her year — a birthday year.

"I guess I've looked forward to 1976 because I knew it was going to be a birthday year," Sue Ann says. "You think of years in terms of 'birthday years.' "

Like 1972, when Sue Ann had both her "fourth" and "Sweet Sixteen" birthdays — and got her driver's license to boot.

Or nonbirthday 1974 when she graduated — at age 4½ — from Elk Grove High School.

HOW DOES A CHILD feel growing up and only getting a birthday once every four years? For Sue Ann, now a clerical employe at Fountain Products, Elk Grove Village, the novelty was never disappointing.

"My parents always explained it when I was young that it was something special. I was always told that it was something special not everybody gets to have and because it was explained that way, all my friends used to wish they could have been born on that day, too."

But being a Leap Year baby has led to some awkward situations sometimes, Sue Ann admits.

"You know how some movies you can't get in to see unless you're a certain age? We kid about things like I can only see the 'G' movies."

And when people find out her birth date, the reaction is always the same.

" 'Oh, you're a Leap Year baby,' they say. And they ask how old I am and I say '4.'

"I TRIED TO GET a license plate with my birth date on it, but they didn't give it to me."

The candles on this year's cake will be glowing for the fifth official celebration of her Feb. 29, 1956 birth. And as is the family's custom, Sue Ann will get the red carpet treatment.

"The family does something special for me like give special presents or things like that," she says. "What they're planning this year is a big dinner. That will be my special present. The whole family will get together on that day."

The family will include Sue Ann's parents; brothers, Ted, 16,

No serious violations found

Greens code check to take month

Cook County officials said it will take about a month before inspections are completed for alleged building, fire and safety code violations at the Greens of Golf Mill apartment complex, Maine Township.

An investigation into alleged building, fire and health code violations at the complex, 8884 Stevens Dr., was ordered last month by County Board Pres. George Dunne after he met with representatives of the Greens Tenants' Assn., a group formed last fall to improve conditions at the complex.

County officials have said they have discovered some violations at the complex, but nothing of a "critical nature."

KEITH MARVIN, president of the tenants' group, Wednesday said he would not comment on the county's findings until officials complete inspections in the 127-building complex.

"I've talked to the inspectors, and they've told me most of the things they have found are minor," he said. "I think that I would rather reserve judgment on that until they are finished.

"I think there are more than just minor violations here," Marvin said. "I think there are some major problems."

Complex residents have complained about rodents, poor security, poor garbage pickup, poor maintenance and dirty drinking water.

Raymond Welsh, county deputy building commissioner, Wednesday said no violations that endanger health or life have been found at the complex.

"WE HAVE FOUND none of the health problems the residents talked about," he said. "We have uncovered nothing along the lines of roaches, rats or mice in any of the buildings we have inspected so far."

He said the inspection crew is able to inspect three buildings a day, and estimates the inspections at the complex will be completed in about a month.

County officials said the apartment management is being notified of all code violations, and will be told to correct them or face court action.

Officials from the Littlestone Co., the firm that manages the complex, have refused to recognize the tenants' group or respond to its charges. The complex is owned by U.S. Managers Inc., a California firm.

Welsh and other county officials have said they believe many of the problems at the complex could be solved if the tenants' group met with the apartment management.

What's a name? Dist. 214 hopes for prestige

How about "Meadow Grove Heights Dist. 214?"

Do you like "Tri-Township Dist. 214?"

Maybe "The Towers High Schools?"

All this name-dropping is the result of a contest sponsored by what is now called "Township High School Dist. 214" in an effort to come up with a new name and insignia to enhance the image of the school district.

ENTRIES FOR "Project Image" began flowing into the district office in December. The deadline, which was Friday, has been extended to mid-March. A selection committee

Heat wave breaks records, but winter skies will return

Records are kept to be broken and the weather did just that Friday. It was the hottest Feb. 27 since 1896, when the temperature hit only 58 degrees.

That's cool compared to the 74 degrees recorded at O'Hare Airport Friday afternoon.

It was an afternoon for shedding coats, catching some rays and expecting an early spring. But the forecast begs to contradict.

The National Weather Service predicts wet snow for Sunday in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and lower Michigan with the temperatures in the upper 30s or lower 40s.

But there will be a slight lull before shades of winter return. Today should be partly cloudy and warm with highs in the upper 40s or lower 50s.

And that's a lot warmer than the normal high of 38 degrees. So whether March's lamb or lion appears, he should be prepared to shed his coat. It might prove too warm.

Flu bug reaches epidemic stage

ATLANTA (UPI) — Influenza reached epidemic proportions in the United States last week, claiming 875 lives, 339 above the epidemic threshold, the national Center for Disease Control said Friday.

Heaviest outbreaks of the illness were reported in the Northeast, Middle Atlantic, Pacific and western Mountain regions of the nation.

The CDC explained the 875 figure included 536 flu deaths that normally could be expected this time of year, plus 339 believed caused by the current epidemic.

The previous week flu-like illnesses claimed 711 lives, 533 of which were expected and 178 of which were blamed on the current outbreak.

THIS WEEK MARKED the second consecutive week this flu season the death rate has been above what the CDC terms the epidemic threshold, and Don Barreth, CDC information officer, confirmed that the disease has now reached epidemic proportions.

Medical authorities, meanwhile, were conducting intensive investigations to determine if a new swine-type flu virus first found in New Jersey poses a potentially serious national health problem.

But there was growing evidence that the outbreak of the new virus may have been limited to its original site, Ft. Dix, N.J., although blood tests showed exposures to the A-swine flu have occurred in Tennessee and Wisconsin.

The national Center for Disease Control said influenza cases, caused primarily by the A-Victoria flu virus, were occurring in all states with the exception of Maine, Rhode Island and North Carolina.

THE A-VICTORIA strain is similar to influenza viruses which caused flu epidemics in recent years and can be guarded against by use of the current flu vaccine. The swine-type flu, however, is a new mutation for which there is no effective vaccine.

The swine-type virus is believed to be similar to the strain that caused the 1918-1919 influenza pandemic. That outbreak claimed 20 million lives worldwide.

Most of the A-Victoria flu deaths this past week, the CDC said, were in the New England and Middle Atlantic states, where influenza reached near-epidemic proportions.

For the first time, the Pacific and Mountain regions showed pneumonia and flu deaths above the epidemic threshold.

The CDC said 15 states reported widespread outbreaks of influenza, another 18 listed regional activity and 14 reported isolated cases. States hardest hit by the illness were Alaska, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, Mississippi, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Washington.

Arlington woman big lottery winner

An Arlington Heights woman walked away with $25,000 Friday night as second-place winner in the Illinois State Lottery weekly $1 drawing. Jean McGill, an accountant, said "I'm going to take all the money and invest the entire thing." An insurance broker with a history of winning things took the top $100,000 prize. Lee Gleasner, 66, Chicago, said he is "insurance poor but lottery rich. And I'm an awful lucky man." Gleasner has previously won a trip to Africa, a Kaiser car, a Vega and a mink coat for his wife. "I just knew I had to win tonight. I always win. I prayed a lot today so I knew I was going to win," he said. Richard Simes, Chicago; Martha Dean West, Cahokia; and John Golick, Sterling, won $2,500 prizes.

Village may cut services

Tree trimming, tree replacement and sidewalk replacement will be eliminated in Mount Prospect unless the village board approves charging residents directly for garbage pickup. Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said these and other cuts will be necessary to balance the 1976-77 budget based on current revenue. The village currently pays for residential garbage service with general tax money. A garbage fee would bring up to $863,000 in revenue. Eppley, who was unhappy with many of the recommended cuts, said "In recent years, Mount Prospect has made a reputation for constantly improvings its programs and services. I think that municipalities, like civilizations, start to perish when they stop improving."

Trailers to be relocated

Residents of the Elk Grove Mobile Home Park, 941 W. Higgins Rd., should be moved within 30 to 60 days, with most trailers to be relocated at the Oasis Mobile Home Park, Bensenville. The relocation is necessary because the Elk Grove park is within the area of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Project and will be subject to flood threat once the project's main dam is completed next fall. The relocation of residents will begin after arrangements are made with individual trailer owners.

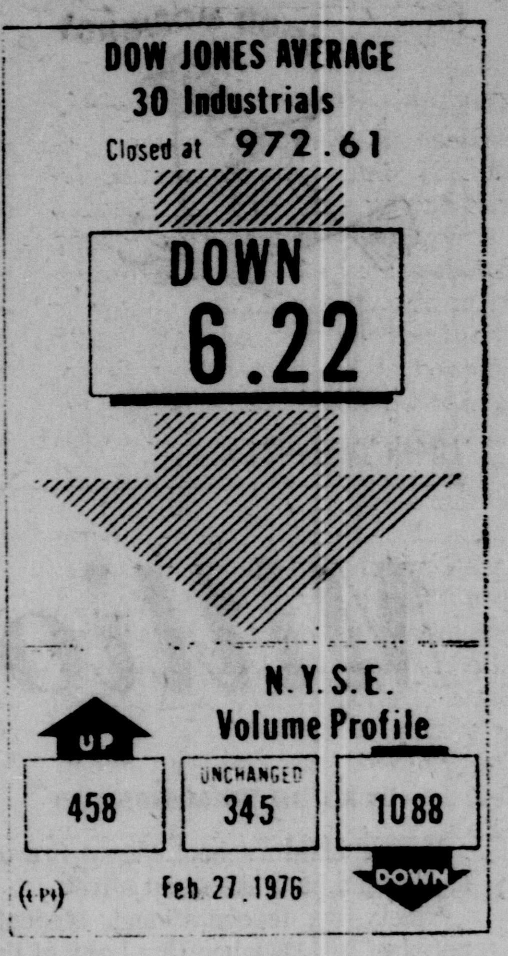
Stocks drop again; Dow slips 6.22



NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market fell Friday for the second consecutive day after being battered by tighter credit prospects, foreign trade problems and Russian grain speculation.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange slowed considerably from recent levels, a factor analysts considered favorable. Despite the slowdown Friday, however, turnover for the week was the second heaviest in NYSE history.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 15.74-point loser Thursday, fell another 6.22 points to 972.61. The closely watched average had been off 11 points before bargain-hunting in the last hour curbed its slide.

For the week, the Dow, which touched the 996 level three times without pushing through 1,000 at the close, fell 15.19 points. It was the second worst setback of the year. It fell 20.38 points the week ending Feb. 6.

THE TURNOVER OF 26,940,000 shares Friday was down sharply from the 34,320,000 traded Thursday. Volume for the week reached 161,787,900 shares, second only to the all-time record of 162,230,705 the week ending Jan. 30.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index Friday declined 0.40 to 99.71, the NYSE common stock index 0.27 to 53.35 and the average price of an NYSE common share 17 cents.

Declines routed advances, 1,088 to 458, among the 1,891 issues crossing the tape.

Nervous traders cashed in heavily during the afternoon when short-term money instrument rates rose sharply, and the Federal Reserve Board failed to take any action to drive them down.

First National City Bank of New York raised its prime rate a quarter point to the prevailing 6.75 per cent level.

THE COMMERCE Dept. triggered even more selling by reporting the nation had a $72.6 million trade deificit in January, the first in a year.

In addition, the Agriculture Dept. reported farm prices rose 0.5 per cent in the month ended Feb. 15.

Simplicity Pattern topped the Big Board actives, off 1¾ to 19¾ on 315,700 shares, including a block of 151,000 shares at 20. Litton Industries followed, up 1/8 to 12¼ on 256,400 shares. Merrill Lynch wss the third most active issue, up ½ to 30-1/8 on 238,300 shares.

Prices closed lower in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased nine cents. Volume totaled 4,820,000 shares, compared with 5,800,000 traded Thursday.

Aide charged with more murders

Denise Watson, 21, a nurse's aide, was indicted Friday on eight more counts of murder in the Wincrest Nursing and Rest Home fire which cost the lives of 23 patients.

A Cook County grand jury returned the new indictment following the deaths in recent weeks of eight more elderly Wincrest patients in area hospitals.

Miss Watson previously was charged in the deaths of 15 patients who died in a Jan. 30 fire or before her arrest Feb. 2. She pleaded innocent to the earlier charges.

The fire broke out on the third floor in a four-patient bedroom of the North Side facility. Thick smoke and fumes from burning bedclothes and towels were believed to have taken the lives of the elderly victims, many of whom were attending mass in a chapel on the same floor.

'Yellow kid' buried

Perhaps if the Yellow Kid had lived to 101, he could have finagled a burial next to his wife and child.

But the $195 in his pocket when he died Thursday was not enough to put 100-year-old Joseph Weil, perhaps the greatest con man the nation has known, into the ground next to his wife, Anna, and daughter, Josephine.

A spokesman for Rosehill Cemetery said the burial cost for opening the grave and the grave box is $410.

If the public aid department had assumed responsibility for the burial arrangements, he said, the cemetery would have handled Weil's burial for the standard $150 public aid fee.

Instead, Michael Harrington, director of the Barr Funeral Home, said Weil was buried Friday at the Archer Woods Memorial Park in suburban Willow Springs.

Weil spent his last years in a wheelchair at the Lake Front Convalescent Center, relishing a career based on the theory that you cannot cheat an honest man but, happily, there's a sucker born every minute.

He boasted he made and lost $8 million — at least — in his time, all of it dishonestly.

"A truly honest man would have had none of my schemes," he once said. "I never fleeced anyone who could not afford to pay my price for a lesson in honesty."

'Welfare Queen' car seized

A 1973 Cadillac belonging to Linda Taylor, Illinois' alleged "Welfare Queen," was seized Friday by police.

A spokesman for Bernard Carey, Cook County state's attorney, said the car was confiscated under an Illinois law that allows seizure of a vehicle believed used in the commission of a crime.

Police said they think the auto was used to transport the fur coat, television, diamond ring and kitchen appliances allegedly stolen from an occupant at a residence where Miss Taylor formerly lived.

Miss Taylor was charged this week with burglary and child neglect after police found sons Willie Walker, 7, and Jose Walker, 5, living in squalor. The children were placed in custody of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Miss Taylor, 40, is awaiting trial on charges she defrauded the state of $7,000 in welfare payments while using a number of aliases.

Appellate Judge takes oath

Illinois Appellate Court Judge George N. Leighton was sworn in Friday as a U.S. District Court Judge for Illinois' northern district.

Leighton, 63, embraced each of the present and senior district court judges and said he was "quite grateful." President Ford had appointed him to the bench.

Chief Judge James B. Parsons said he agreed to let U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry administer the oath because Perry had known Leighton for many years.

During the ceremony, Don Reuben, chairman of the American Bar Association's standing committee on the federal judiciary, said the committee had found Leighton well qualified and welcomed him to the federal bench.

John Menk, president of the Chicago Bar Assn., said Leighton's greatest quality was his "compassion and feeling for his fellow man."

Leighton was first elected to be a circuit court judge in 1964 and was elected to a 10-year term on the Illinois Appellate court in 1970.

Attorney told to return funds

Attorney Roy Cohn and his law firm have been ordered to return $219,000 in funds held for defrauded stockholders in a Chicago firm or face contempt charges that could lead to imprisonment or fines.

Cohn, who first achieved prominence in the 1950s when he represented Sen. Joseph McCarthy in Senate anti-Communist hearings, was given 20 business days to return the money to the escrow fund for stockholders in Pied Piper Yacht Charters Corp.

Failure to do so could result in a fine or imprisonment.

In issuing the order Thursday, federal judge Edmund Palmieri said the entire escrow fund "has been dissipated. There is now nothing."

The judge accused Cohn of "engaging in tactics of obfuscation by bold assertions of half-truths and untruths."

Arlington woman big lottery winner

An Arlington Heights woman walked away with $25,000 Friday night as second-place winner in the Illinois State Lottery weekly $1 drawing. Jean McGill, an accountant, said "I'm going to take all the money and invest the entire thing." An insurance broker with a history of winning things took the top $100,000 prize. Lee Gleasner, 66, Chicago, said he is "insurance poor but lottery rich. And I'm an awful lucky man." Gleasner has previously won a trip to Africa, a Kaiser car, a Vega and a mink coat for his wife. "I just knew I had to win tonight. I always win. I prayed a lot today so I knew I was going to win," he said. Richard Simes, Chicago; Martha Dean West, Cahokia; and John Golick, Sterling, won $2,500 prizes.

Village may cut services

Tree trimming, tree replacement and sidewalk replacement will be eliminated in Mount Prospect unless the village board approves charging residents directly for garbage pickup. Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said these and other cuts will be necessary to balance the 1976-77 budget based on current revenue. The village currently pays for residential garbage service with general tax money. A garbage fee would bring up to $863,000 in revenue. Eppley, who was unhappy with many of the recommended cuts, said "In recent years, Mount Prospect has made a reputation for constantly improvings its programs and services. I think that municipalities, like civilizations, start to perish when they stop improving."

Trailers to be relocated

Residents of the Elk Grove Mobile Home Park, 941 W. Higgins Rd., should be moved within 30 to 60 days, with most trailers to be relocated at the Oasis Mobile Home Park, Bensenville. The relocation is necessary because the Elk Grove park is within the area of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Project and will be subject to flood threat once the project's main dam is completed next fall. The relocation of residents will begin after arrangements are made with individual trailer owners.

Former President tired, limping

Chinese physician attends Nixon

KWEILIN, China (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, occasionally limping and looking fatigued Friday night, is being attended by a Chinese specialist from Peking and followed by an ambulance during his tour of southern China.

The Chinese have been obviously concerned about the health of Nixon, who has suffered from phlebitis for several years and almost died in 1974 when he underwent an operation and went into shock.

Nixon from time to time has shown signs of exhaustion. He appeared fatigued Thursday night at a song and dance show following a seven-hour boat cruise down the scenic Li River.

Nixon also has started to limp from time to time.

The Chinese assigned Dr. Shang Teh-ting, a heart and cardiovascular specialist from the Fu Wai hospital in Peking, to accompany Nixon on the Kweilin-Canton legs of his trip.

A white van with a Red Cross on the side also has followed the Nixon entourage everywhere in Kweilin. No such ambulance was seen during Nixon's days in Peking.

Robert Dunn, a medical corpsman, accompanied Nixon and checked his blood pressure frequently and administers anti-coagulant pills as he needs them. Dunn also carries oxygen on Nixon's sightseeing trips for any emergency.

During the cruise Dunn gave Nixon one of the anticoagulant pills. Nixon dropped the pill and had to get up to find it and appeared in a bad mood for a few minutes.

Medical authorities said Nixon's left leg is still swollen and he can stand for only an hour or so at a time when he must sit with his leg thrust out parallel with the ground.

Nixon attended the variety show in a theater in the compound of the Yung Su Guest House where he is staying. It consisted of a gymnastic and ballet performance by children, a children's song and dance team, martial arts exhibition and several other song and dance arts.

After the performances, Nixon and his wife, Pat, went to the stage to shake hands with each of the performers and received a large bouquet of flowers.

Earlier, Nixon received three gifts from his host here. One was a shell sculpture showing the landscape of Kweilin, which Nixon called the most beautiful city in the world on Thursday.

The other gifts included satin material made by the people of Yi nationality, one of several non-Han minority nationalities in Kwangsi autonomous region, and a tea set.

During the day, Nixon took a lazy cruise up the Li River and said the scenery was so beautiful "it makes you want to come back."

At one pont, Nixon bet a bottle of Chinese Mao Tai wine on a forthcoming ping pong match between two of the Chinese officials accompanying him and Huang Chen, the chief of Chinese liaison office in Washington.

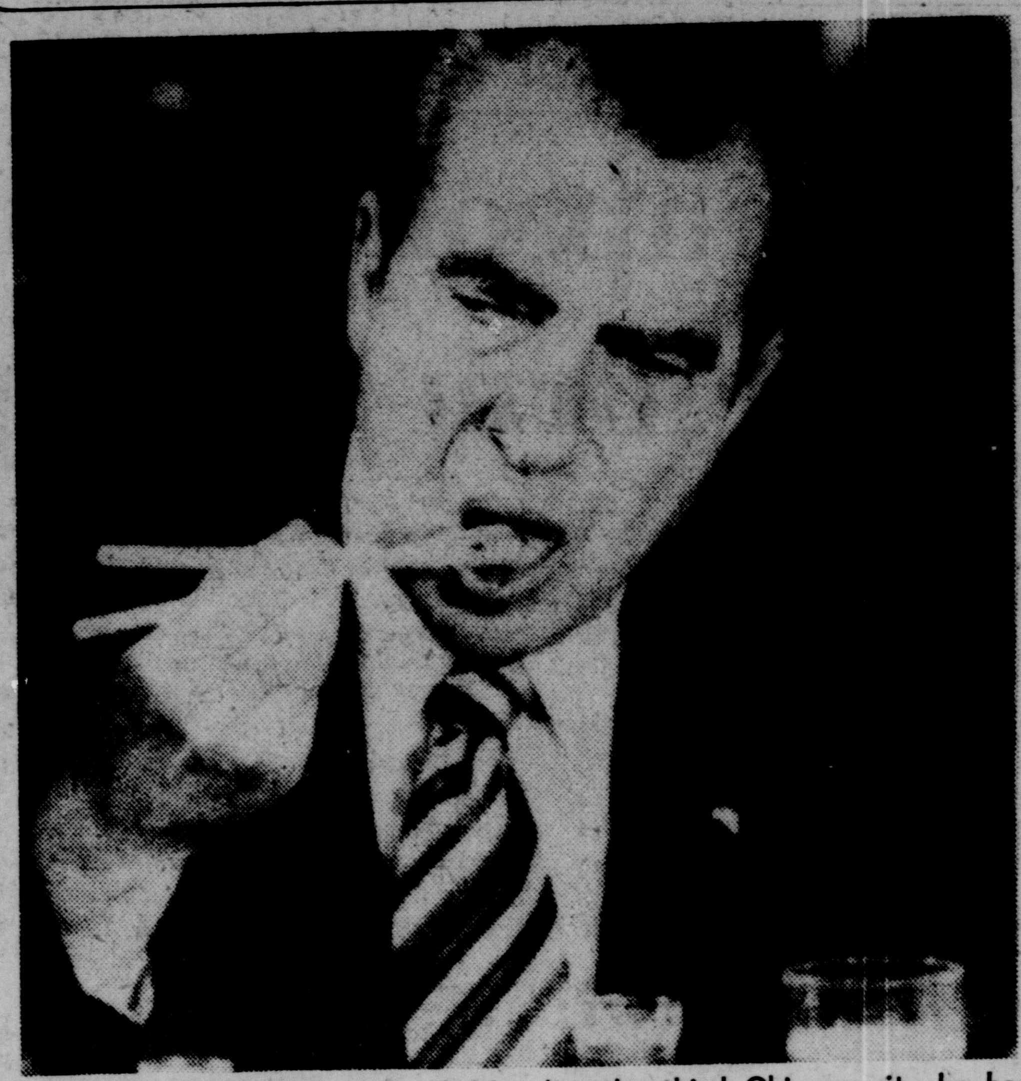
Mrs. Nixon asked about the experience of the two players and was told that the man Nixon bet on had only taken up the game while his opponent had been playing ping ping for 30 years.

"It looks like you bought a bad one here," Mrs. Nixon told her husband.

Laughing, Nixon turned to the man he bet on and said, "You'd better win. I'm afraid I've got the bad bet here."

Nixon compared the beauties of the river and the surrounding scenery to Yosemite National Park in the United States and said the karst formations looked like the pyramids of Egypt.

Cold weather and rain kept Nixon inside a glassed in upper deck area for most of the trip and shortly after he came out to the observation deck for one part of the cruise he became cold and returned, saying, "I'll go in now."



FORMER PRESIDENT Richard M. Nixon uses chopsticks during a banquet welcoming him to Kwelin, the third Chinese city he has visited.

Soviet Union outspending U.S. militarily: CIA

The Central Intelligence Agency estimated Friday that the Soviet Union is outspending the United States militarily by about 40 per cent. The new estimate, released by the House Armed Services Committee, updated an earlier one in which it was thought the Soviets were outspending the United States by about 35 per cent. One of the chief new factors is a decrease in U.S. spending.

The number of Americans receiving food stamps climbed to 19.1 million in January, the highest since the record 19.3 million last April and May, the Agriculture Department reported Friday. The estimate was issued 24 hours after the department disclosed details of a proposed new set of regulations which would eliminate an estimated 5 million persons from the program and reduce benefits for an additional 5 million.

FBI denies New York Times report

The FBI Friday denied a report that during the last 10 years it has halted most of its efforts to track down foreign spies operating in the United States. The New York Times, quoting "a number of well-informed sources," Friday reported that the late Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered a phaseout of counter espionage activity and shifted his attention to domestic radical organizations.

Protestants have 'stranglehold' on Belfast

Protestant crowds spilled into the streets of Belfast Friday night, setting up road blocks with burning vehicles and imposing what police called a "stranglehold" on 80 per cent of the city.

Guerrillas announce forming of republic

Algerian-backed guerrillas Friday announced creation of an independent Arab Saharan Democratic Republic, defying Saturday's official takeover of the former Spanish colony by Morocco and Mauritania. The official Algerian news agency dispatch, datelined "Liberated Territories," said the Polisario guerrilla movement had "announced the birth of the republic."

Workers given raise in Argentina

President Isabel Peron's Argentinian government presented a 90-day economic program Friday, giving workers a raise and freezing prices to boost the economy and appease the labor wing of the Peronist party.

Middle East peace policy dead: Sadat

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Friday that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's step-by-step Middle East peace policy is dead. He urged an early reconvening of the Geneva peace conference with Palestinian participation as the only way to end Arab-Israeli wars. The call for a return to Geneva was the dominant theme in Sadat's remarks as he hopped across the Arabian Gulf, flying from Abu Dhabi to Bahrain to Qatar on a tour to bolster Egypt's sagging prestige and bank account in the Arab world.

Despite trade balance dip

Economic indicators rise 2.2%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher imports of oil, cars and trucks in January tipped the U.S. balance of trade into a marginal deficit of nearly $73 million for the first time in 12 months, the Commerce Department said Friday.

In a separate financial development, strong demand for imported petroleum boosted the index of leading economic indicators 2.2 per cent, the biggest gain in six months.

The index shows the direction of the economy. An improving economy needs more oil to run factories and utilities. But importing more oil affects the trade balance.

The Commerce Department said the United States imported $9.176 billion in oil, autos, food and other products in January and exported $9.103 billion — a deficit of $72.6 million.

In 1975, the United States had its largest trade surplus — $11 billion — and January was the only deficit month — $262 million.

Last month's slight deficit was not ominous. Nations try to balance imports and exports to avert inflation and increase production and jobs.

U.S. trade deficits in the early 1970s contributed to the 12 per cent inflation of 1974 and the worst recession since 1941. The huge trade surplus in 1975 helped recovery and banked inflation.

The Labor Department Friday reported the total number of workers hired, recalled from layoffs or transferred rose in January while layoffs declined to their lowest level in 18 months, 1.2 per cent.

It said the "accession" rate of hirings, recalls and transfers rose from 3.8 per cent in December to 4.4 per cent in January — the highest level in more than two years, due mostly to recalls of laid-off workers.

The index of leading economic indicators had been nearly unchanged for four months after rising 2.5 per cent last July. The index measures 12 sectors of the economy. Eleven sectors were available, and nine improved in January.

In still another economic development announced Friday, the Agriculture Department said prices of raw farm products rose 0.5 per cent in the month ending Feb. 15. The increase was the first of 1976 following a 0.5 per cent drop in January. Prices were 11 per cent above a year earlier.

To OK candidates' funding

U.S. election panel given extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Friday granted the Federal Election Commission another 20 days to approve federal funds for presidential candidates while Congress decides whether to renew the commission along constitutional lines.

President Ford promptly urged the House and Senate to take quick action, but pledged to veto any legislation going beyond a simple change in the way the commission members are appointed.

Under the court's Jan. 20 decision on the campaign reform law, the commission was ruled illeglly constituted, but was given a 30-day grace period that was to expire at midnight Sunday.

As of Thursday, the FEC had certified a total of $9,050,795 in matching funds for 14 candidates. Had the commission lost that power Sunday, it could have caused some temporary financial hardship for the candidates.

Asked to grant the panel an additional 30 days, the court — with Justice Harry A. Blackmun dissenting — compromised on 20 more days, through March 22.

In that interim, the commission will continue to authorize federal matching funds to the presidential candidates.

The court acted Friday on a petition by the citizens' lobby Common Cause, the League of Women Voters and other groups, which noted Congress was working to remedy the court's objections to the makeup of the commission.

As set up in the campaign law, four of the panel's six voting members are congressional appointees. The court decreed this unconstitutional because the four are not "officers of the United States" appointed by the president.

The Senate is expected to take up next week a bill approved by its Rules Committee that would reconstitute the FEC as outlined by the court but with added restrictions on its investigatory powers.

The House Administration Committee is working on the same bill, which was drafted by its chairman, Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio. The committee resumes work Monday with a goal of finishing by the end of the week — meaning the House might not get it until the week of March 8 at the earliest.

Ford, noting the proposed new changes, said in his statement that was written before the court's announcement and revised slightly afterwards:

"With the 1976 elections only nine months away, I do not believe this is a proper time to begin tampering with the campaign reform laws, and I will veto any bill that will create confusion and will invite further delay and litigation."

After learning of the court's action, the commission dropped plans to hold a special meeting on Sunday, and scheduled its next session for Wednesday.

Cancer cases on upswing, bad environment blamed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The incidence of cancer in the United States has more than doubled in this century and 60 to 90 per cent of the cases worldwide can be traced to environmental factors, many manmade, the administration told Congress Friday.

But the sixth annual report by the President's Council on Environmental Quality also contained some good news: the quality of the nation's air and water is improving.

The council said in its 763-page report that cigarette smoking remains the biggest single cancer cause, and such natural factors as sunlight and radiation also are involved. The council said it based its environment related conclusion on studies showing wide variations of cancer incidence at different locations in he United States and elsewhere.

"The only prudent policy toward cancer is to increase the emphasis on prevention," the council said, and cited figures showing that the cancer rate is more than twice that at the turn of the century.

The council, headed by former industrial chemist and Delaware Gov. Russell W. Peterson, also said:

- Air pollution has improved "greatly" since Clean Air Act modifications five years ago, with the atmosphere in general containing 14 per cent fewer solid particles and 25 per cent less sulfur dioxide.
- "Encouraging progress" has been made against water pollution, with only 3 per cent of the 87 government monitoring stations reporting levels in the poor or severe categories, compared with 16 per cent in 1971.

Jury won't hear Patty's polygraph

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey, in a surprise move, Friday withdrew his attempt to put before the jury a lie detector test Patricia Hearst took shortly before her bank robbery trial.

The lawyer told the court cryptically that he was doing so "reluctantly" because introduction of the polygraph test could be construed as a waiver of Miss Hearst's 5th amendment right against self incrimination.

Bailey previously pressed for admission of the results of the test.

The prosecution indicated Thursday it was finding severe flaws in the way the lie detector examinations were administered.

The trial entered its second month Friday, and Bailey said he hoped to rest his case on Monday. It was expected to go to the jury at the end of next week, although the trial could be prolonged by lengthy final arguments and the judge's instructions to the jury.

The third defense-called psychiatrist, Dr. Robert Jay Lifton of Yale University, was on the witness stand throughout the day to back up the contention that Miss Hearst through "coercive persuasion" was forced to act as she did.

Lifton said he would stake his 23 years experience that she could not have put on a performance for him and faked a "traumatic neurosis" during the 15 hours he interviewed her in jail.

A woman juror, Mrs. Ellen Westin, became ill during the morning session with an upset stomach which sent her bolting from the courtroom. The trial was recessed briefly but Mrs. Westin ws able to hear the rest of the day's testimony. Talking about withdrawing his lie tetector test outside the courtroom, Bailey said he felt that if Miss Hearst is convicted he has strong grounds for appeal to a higher court as the result of her being "forced" to take the 5th Amendment 42 times before the jury.

U.S. denies Cambodian attack charges

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The United States Friday denied as "ridiculous" a Cambodian claim that three U.S. F111 warplanes bombed and badly damaged the town of Siem Reap, killing and wounding dozens of persons.

Radio Phnom Penh said Friday bombers raided the town, five miles from the fabled ruins of Angor Wat, on two occasions Wednesday, killing 15, injuring 40 and nearly destroying the Siem Reap hospital. It said the planes fled toward the Thai border.

Most diplomatic sources in Bangkok were puzzled by the report. The last F111 planes were withdrawn from Thailand last June and no other U.S. warplanes are stationed on the Southeast Asian mainland.

U.S. military and embassy spokesmen flatly denied the charge.

"The report is ridiculous and completely without truth," a joint statement said.

In Washington Pentagon duty officer Maj. Duane Austin said of the report, "I am totally unaware of it."

A Thai spokesman said his air force was "absolutely not" involved in the incident.

One diplomatic source in Bangkok with knowledge of events in Cambodia speculated that Siem Reap, a provincial capital 150 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, had been attacked by anti-Communist rebels.

Noting such attacks have been on the increase in Cambodia, the source said the Communist regime may have invented the F111 story for the benefit of the Cambodian people, knowing the planes bomb quickly — sometimes without even being seen.

Radio Phnom Penh, monitored in Bangkok, reported the raids in a broadcast mostly taken up with a lengthy condemnation of "U.S. imperialists."

It said the Americans, angered by the Communist victory in Cambodia last April 17, attacked Siem Reap "like air pirates."

According to the broadcast, at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday "one U.S. imperialist jet plane — an F111 type — flying at high altitude, dropped three bombs over the center of Siem Reap town."

On the same day at 2 p.m., "two other planes of the same type dropped air bombs on the same spot and then flew quickly northward, again in the direction of Thailand," the radio said.

The nearest known F111s to Cambodia are stationed in South Korea and there are no other U.S. warplanes in mainland Southeast Asia. The closest are in the Philippines and would require in-air refueling to reach Cambodia.

Former President tired, limping

Chinese physician attends Nixon

KWEILIN, China (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, occasionally limping and looking fatigued Friday night, is being attended by a Chinese specialist from Peking and followed by an ambulance during his tour of southern China.

The Chinese have been obviously concerned about the health of Nixon, who has suffered from phlebitis for several years and almost died in 1974 when he underwent an operation and went into shock.

Nixon from time to time has shown signs of exhaustion. He appeared fatigued Thursday night at a song and dance show following a seven-hour boat cruise down the scenic Li River.

Nixon also has started to limp from time to time.

The Chinese assigned Dr. Shang Teh-ting, a heart and cardiovascular specialist from the Fu Wai hospital in Peking, to accompany Nixon on the Kweilin-Canton legs of his trip.

A white van with a Red Cross on the side also has followed the Nixon entourage everywhere in Kweilin. No such ambulance was seen during Nixon's days in Peking.

Robert Dunn, a medical corpsman, accompanied Nixon and checked his blood pressure frequently and administers anti-coagulant pills as he needs them. Dunn also carries oxygen on Nixon's sightseeing trips for any emergency.

During the cruise Dunn gave Nixon one of the anticoagulant pills. Nixon dropped the pill and had to get up to find it and appeared in a bad mood for a few minutes.

Medical authorities said Nixon's left leg is still swollen and he can stand for only an hour or so at a time when he must sit with his leg thrust out parallel with the ground.

Nixon attended the variety show in a theater in the compound of the Yung Su Guest House where he is staying. It consisted of a gymnastic and ballet performance by children, a children's song and dance team, martial arts exhibition and several other song and dance arts.

After the performances, Nixon and his wife, Pat, went to the stage to shake hands with each of the performers and received a large bouquet of flowers.

Earlier, Nixon received three gifts from his host here. One was a shell sculpture showing the landscape of Kweilin, which Nixon called the most beautiful city in the world on Thursday.

The other gifts included satin material made by the people of Yi nationality, one of several non-Han minority nationalities in Kwangsi autonomous region, and a tea set.

During the day, Nixon took a lazy cruise up the Li River and said the scenery was so beautiful "it makes you want to come back."

At one pont, Nixon bet a bottle of Chinese Mao Tai wine on a forthcoming ping pong match between two of the Chinese officials accompanying him and Huang Chen, the chief of Chinese liaison office in Washington.

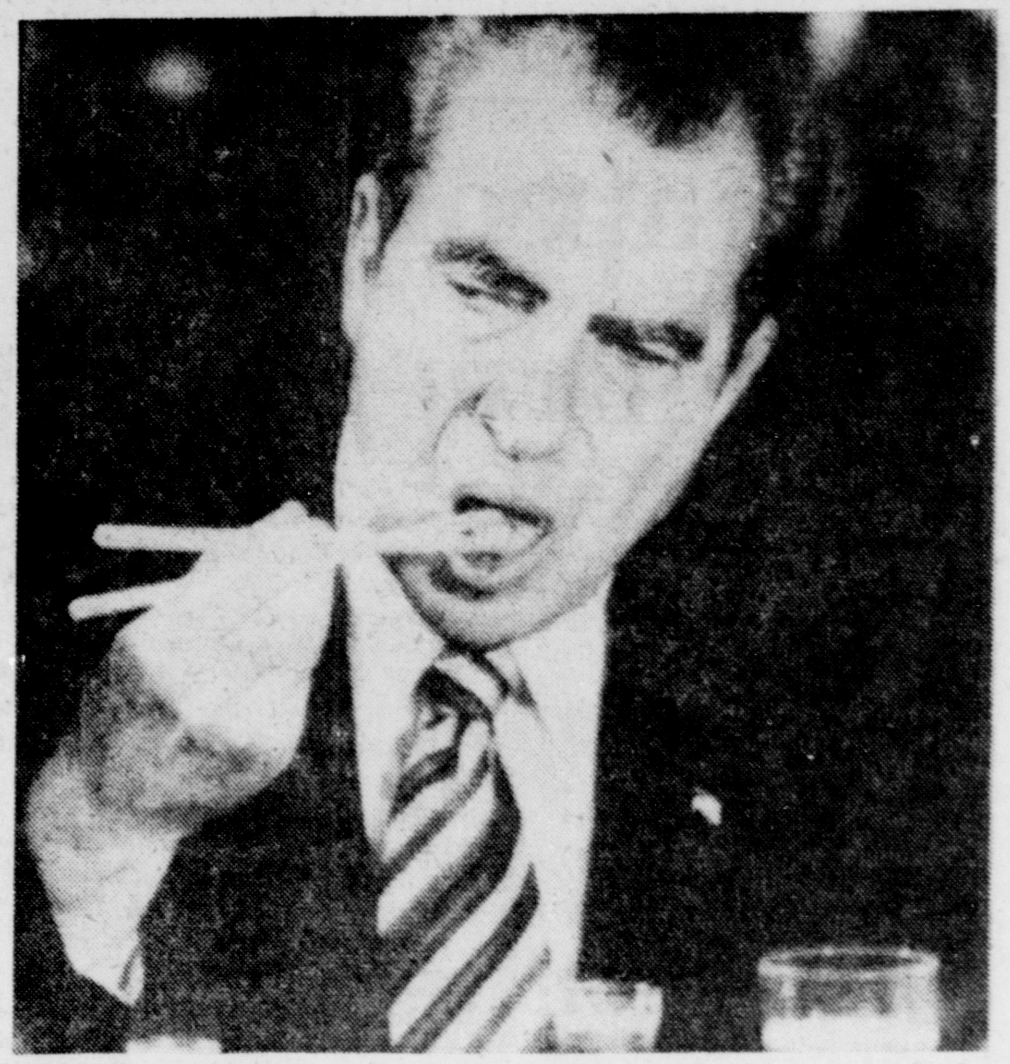
Mrs. Nixon asked about the experience of the two players and was told that the man Nixon bet on had only taken up the game while his opponent had been playing ping ping for 30 years.

"It looks like you bought a bad one here," Mrs. Nixon told her husband.

Laughing, Nixon turned to the man he bet on and said, "You'd better win. I'm afraid I've got the bad bet here."

Nixon compared the beauties of the river and the surrounding scenery to Yosemite National Park in the United States and said the karst formations looked like the pyramids of Egypt.

Cold weather and rain kept Nixon inside a glassed in upper deck area for most of the trip and shortly after he came out to the observation deck for one part of the cruise he became cold and returned, saying, "I'll go in now."



FORMER PRESIDENT Richard M. Nixon uses chopsticks during a banquet welcoming him to Kwelin, the third Chinese city he has visited.

Soviet Union outspending U.S. militarily: CIA

The Central Intelligence Agency estimated Friday that the Soviet Union is outspending the United States militarily by about 40 per cent. The new estimate, released by the House Armed Services Committee, updated an earlier one in which it was thought the Soviets were outspending the United States by about 35 per cent. One of the chief new factors is a decrease in U.S. spending.

The number of Americans receiving food stamps climbed to 19.1 million in January, the highest since the record 19.3 million last April and May, the Agriculture Department reported Friday. The estimate was issued 24 hours after the department disclosed details of a proposed new set of regulations which would eliminate an estimated 5 million persons from the program and reduce benefits for an additional 5 million.

FBI denies New York Times report

The FBI Friday denied a report that during the last 10 years it has halted most of its efforts to track down foreign spies operating in the United States. The New York Times, quoting "a number of well-informed sources," Friday reported that the late Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered a phaseout of counter espionage activity and shifted his attention to domestic radical organizations.

Protestants have 'stranglehold' on Belfast

Protestant crowds spilled into the streets of Belfast Friday night, setting up road blocks with burning vehicles and imposing what police called a "stranglehold" on 80 per cent of the city.

Guerrillas announce forming of republic

Algerian-backed guerrillas Friday announced creation of an independent Arab Saharan Democratic Republic, defying Saturday's official takeover of the former Spanish colony by Morocco and Mauritania. The official Algerian news agency dispatch, datelined "Liberated Territories," said the Polisario guerrilla movement had "announced the birth of the republic."

Workers given raise in Argentina

President Isabel Peron's Argentinian government presented a 90-day economic program Friday, giving workers a raise and freezing prices to boost the economy and appease the labor wing of the Peronist party.

Middle East peace policy dead: Sadat

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Friday that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's step-by-step Middle East peace policy is dead. He urged an early reconvening of the Geneva peace conference with Palestinian participation as the only way to end Arab-Israeli wars. The call for a return to Geneva was the dominant theme in Sadat's remarks as he hopped across the Arabian Gulf, flying from Abu Dhabi to Bahrain to Qatar on a tour to bolster Egypt's sagging prestige and bank account in the Arab world.

Despite trade balance dip

Economic indicators rise 2.2%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher imports of oil, cars and trucks in January tipped the U.S. balance of trade into a marginal deficit of nearly $73 million for the first time in 12 months, the Commerce Department said Friday.

In a separate financial development, strong demand for imported petroleum boosted the index of leading economic indicators 2.2 per cent, the biggest gain in six months.

The index shows the direction of the economy. An improving economy needs more oil to run factories and utilities. But importing more oil affects the trade balance.

The Commerce Department said the United States imported $9.176 billion in oil, autos, food and other products in January and exported $9.103 billion — a deficit of $72.6 million.

In 1975, the United States had its largest trade surplus — $11 billion — and January was the only deficit month — $262 million.

Last month's slight deficit was not ominous. Nations try to balance imports and exports to avert inflation and increase production and jobs.

U.S. trade deficits in the early 1970s contributed to the 12 per cent inflation of 1974 and the worst recession since 1941. The huge trade surplus in 1975 helped recovery and banked inflation.

The Labor Department Friday reported the total number of workers hired, recalled from layoffs or transferred rose in January while layoffs declined to their lowest level in 18 months, 1.2 per cent.

It said the "accession" rate of hirings, recalls and transfers rose from 3.8 per cent in December to 4.4 per cent in January — the highest level in more than two years, due mostly to recalls of laid-off workers.

The index of leading economic indicators had been nearly unchanged for four months after rising 2.5 per cent last July. The index measures 12 sectors of the economy. Eleven sectors were available, and nine improved in January.

In still another economic development announced Friday, the Agriculture Department said prices of raw farm products rose 0.5 per cent in the month ending Feb. 15. The increase was the first of 1976 following a 0.5 per cent drop in January. Prices were 11 per cent above a year earlier.

To OK candidates' funding

U.S. election panel given extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Friday granted the Federal Election Commission another 20 days to approve federal funds for presidential candidates while Congress decides whether to renew the commission along constitutional lines.

President Ford promptly urged the House and Senate to take quick action, but pledged to veto any legislation going beyond a simple change in the way the commission members are appointed.

Under the court's Jan. 20 decision on the campaign reform law, the commission was ruled illeglly constituted, but was given a 30-day grace period that was to expire at midnight Sunday.

As of Thursday, the FEC had certified a total of $9,050,795 in matching funds for 14 candidates. Had the commission lost that power Sunday, it could have caused some temporary financial hardship for the candidates.

Asked to grant the panel an additional 30 days, the court — with Justice Harry A. Blackmun dissenting — compromised on 20 more days, through March 22.

In that interim, the commission will continue to authorize federal matching funds to the presidential candidates.

The court acted Friday on a petition by the citizens' lobby Common Cause, the League of Women Voters and other groups, which noted Congress was working to remedy the court's objections to the makeup of the commission.

As set up in the campaign law, four of the panel's six voting members are congressional appointees. The court decreed this unconstitutional because the four are not "officers of the United States" appointed by the president.

The Senate is expected to take up next week a bill approved by its Rules Committee that would reconstitute the FEC as outlined by the court but with added restrictions on its investigatory powers.

The House Administration Committee is working on the same bill, which was drafted by its chairman, Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio. The committee resumes work Monday with a goal of finishing by the end of the week — meaning the House might not get it until the week of March 8 at the earliest.

Ford, noting the proposed new changes, said in his statement that was written before the court's announcement and revised slightly afterwards:

After learning of the court's action, the commission dropped plans to hold a special meeting on Sunday, and scheduled its next session for Wednesday.

Honesty laws, not amendments

Thompson vows effort to reform state politics

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson said he plans to present bills to the legislature this spring that, if passed, would make the political honesty amendments to the state constitution unnecessary.

Thompson told members of the Wheeling Township Republican Organization he is having bills drafted by his staff. The bills would prohibit double dipping, legislative conflict of interest and the practice of legislators drawing their pay one or two years in advance.

"I'm going to give those bills to the legislature and tell them that if those pass I'll withdraw my support for the honesty amendments," Thompson said.

THE AMENDMENTS are being supported by the Coalition for Political Honesty, which is circulating petitions to put them on the November election ballot. Republican and Democratic legislators have opposed the amendments on the grounds the practices they would prohibit ought to be the subject of laws, not constitutional amendments.

Thompson has endorsed the coalition's efforts.

Also Thursday, Thompson, who is considered a shoo-in in the March 16 GOP primary, honed his attacks on Democratic gubernatorial candidates Gov. Daniel Walker and Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

"The Howlett-Walker politics will turn off the voters of Illinois," Thompson said. He said he will campaign against Walker on the basis of his record if Walker wins the primary, and will campaign against Howlett on his ties to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley if Howlett is his November opponent.

Thompson criticized Howlett for a statement he made before the county Democratic organization this week that "Illinois doesn't need reform. It needs a governor who will be a Democrat 365 days a year."

"ILLINOIS DOES need reform," Thompson said, "and if the Democrats are going to run Paddy Bauler (who in 1955 said, "Chicago isn't ready for reform,") they ought to bring him back and run him."

Thompson said he has started calling the Howlett slate of state candidates the "yessir boss" slate because of the way they were chosen by Daley and the Cook County Democratic Party.

He also said that if elected governor he won't necessarily attempt to become the leader of the state Republican Party.

"I will be a leader, but I'm not going to proclaim myself king because I think that would be counterproductive," he said.

Citizens panel to study state funding of schools

A Citizens' Commission will be appointed by the Illinois Office of Education to study the method of state funding of local schools.

Thursday the Illinois Board of Education authorized the state office to begin to select members of the commission, which will review the current state aid and grant reimbursement programs.

Topics to be discussed by the commission will include the impact of inflation and declining enrollment on current methods of state funding.

It will also study whether local property taxes should remain the major point of equalization in state aid and whether the state aid formula should reflect the median family income of local school districts.

The group will work in cooperation with the state legislatures and the governor's office and will submit a proposal to the state board and the legislature during the 1977 session.

The commission will attempt to project its findings over the five-year period from 1977 to 1982.

The commission will include state board members, leaders from the Congress of Parents and Teachers, and business, farm and labor groups. A technical advisory group, including university experts, legislative and state budget staffers and Illinois Office of Education staff also will work with the commission.

UOP reports loss of $3.19 a share

UOP, Inc., Des Plaines, recently reported an estimated net loss for 1975 of $34,868,000 or $3.19 a share. Estimated revenues were set at $615,046,000.

The figures compare to 1974 net income of $27,752,000 or $2.78 a share on revenues of $781,003,000.

The company reported an estimated $25,730,000 loss from operations before provisions for income taxes. A reserve against obligations and a write-off of receivables were cited in connection with the construction of a refinery at Come-by-Chance, Newfoundland.

Estimated fourth quarter results include a net loss of $39,994,000 or $3.67 a share on revenues of $186,113,000. Net income for the same period a year earlier was $5,044,000 or 50 cents a share on revenues of $177,953,000.

Mikva protests ouster of area EPA director

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, and two other Midwest congressmen protested Friday to federal environmental officials over the ouster of Francis T. Mayo, the local director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

In a sharply-worded letter to Russell Train, the head of the EPA, Mikva and U.S. Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., and U.S. Rep. J. Edward Rouss, D-Ind., said they were disappointed with the decision to remove Mayo as the director of Region V of the EPA.

The congressmen called Mayo "courageous" and committed to dealing with the problems of the Great Lakes as well as other environmental problems.

They charged the removal of Mayo may be interpreted as a decision by the EPA to reduce enforcement of its policies.

The congressmen said while they "hoped this was not the case," they urged Train to reinstate Mayo so that any such doubts would be dispelled.

Mayo, who directed EPA policy for the entire Midwest, had developed a reputation for strict enforcement of government regulations.

School safety costs millions but worth it

much as the school cost to build in 1961, board members may decide in March to send Cardinal Drive's pupils to nearby Kimball Hill School, 2905 Meadow Dr., Rolling Meadows, next year.

In Dist. 25, officials recently agreed to close North School, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, in the near future to save money.

NORTH WAS BROUGHT into life-safety compliance in 1970, but like Lapicola in Dist 54, Dist. 25 Supt. Donald Strong is philosophical about the money spent to improve the school.

"No money spent for safety is ever wasted," he said. "This is certainly something people wouldn't argue with."

Since the program began, school districts have had financial help from the state in meeting the life-safety requirements. First, all schools were divided into three categories according to the time they were built. Each category has a separate deadline for compliance, which allows school districts to space out the cost of needed work. The categories are:

- Category I schools, built prior to Jan. 1, 1955. These buildings had to be surveyed by an architect by July 1, 1967 and brought into compliance with the life-safety code by July 1, 1970.
- Category II schools, built between Jan. 1, 1955 and July 1, 1965. These schools had to be surveyed by an architect within 10 years of their construction, and brought into compliance with the life-safety code three years later.
- Category III schools, built after July 1, 1965. These buildings are supposed to utilize the code's features in planning and building so they will be built in compliance with the code.

Eight of the 13 Northwest suburban school districts say they have completed their life-safety work and are waiting for final inspection by the Cook County Superintendent of Schools. All local school buildings must meet the code by 1978, the state deadline.

The Illinois General Assembly allows school districts to levy up to 5 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation to finance life-safety work. School districts also may issue bonds without a referendum for any amount approved by the county and state school superintendents to finance life-safety work.

Honesty laws, not amendments

Thompson vows effort to reform state politics

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson said he plans to present bills to the legislature this spring that, if passed, would make the political honesty amendments to the state constitution unnecessary.

Thompson told members of the Wheeling Township Republican Organization he is having bills drafted by his staff. The bills would prohibit double dipping, legislative conflict of interest and the practice of legislators drawing their pay one or two years in advance.

"I'm going to give those bills to the legislature and tell them that if those pass I'll withdraw my support for the honesty amendments," Thompson said.

THE AMENDMENTS are being supported by the Coalition for Political Honesty, which is circulating petitions to put them on the November election ballot. Republican and Democratic legislators have opposed the amendments on the grounds the practices they would prohibit ought to be the subject of laws, not constitutional amendments.

Thompson has endorsed the coalition's efforts.

Also Thursday, Thompson, who is considered a shoo-in in the March 16 GOP primary, honed his attacks on Democratic gubernatorial candidates Gov. Daniel Walker and Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

"The Howlett-Walker politics will turn off the voters of Illinois," Thompson said. He said he will campaign against Walker on the basis of his record if Walker wins the primary, and will campaign against Howlett on his ties to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley if Howlett is his November opponent.

Thompson criticized Howlett for a statement he made before the county Democratic organization this week that "Illinois doesn't need reform. It needs a governor who will be a Democrat 365 days a year."

"ILLINOIS DOES need reform," Thompson said, "and if the Democrats are going to run Paddy Bauler (who in 1955 said, "Chicago isn't ready for reform,") they ought to bring him back and run him."

Thompson said he has started calling the Howlett slate of state candidates the "yessir boss" slate because of the way they were chosen by Daley and the Cook County Democratic Party.

He also said that if elected governor he won't necessarily attempt to become the leader of the state Republican Party.

"I will be a leader, but I'm not going to proclaim myself king because I think that would be counterproductive," he said.

Citizens panel to study state funding of schools

A Citizens' Commission will be appointed by the Illinois Office of Education to study the method of state funding of local schools.

Thursday the Illinois Board of Education authorized the state office to begin to select members of the commission, which will review the current state aid and grant reimbursement programs.

Topics to be discussed by the commission will include the impact of inflation and declining enrollment on current methods of state funding.

It will also study whether local property taxes should remain the major point of equalization in state aid and whether the state aid formula should reflect the median family income of local school districts.

The group will work in cooperation with the state legislatures and the governor's office and will submit a proposal to the state board and the legislature during the 1977 session.

The commission will attempt to project its findings over the five-year period from 1977 to 1982.

The commission will include state board members, leaders from the Congress of Parents and Teachers, and business, farm and labor groups. A technical advisory group, including university experts, legislative and state budget staffers and Illinois Office of Education staff also will work with the commission.

UOP reports loss of $3.19 a share

UOP, Inc., Des Plaines, recently reported an estimated net loss for 1975 of $34,868,000 or $3.19 a share. Estimated revenues were set at $615,046,000.

The figures compare to 1974 net income of $27,752,000 or $2.78 a share on revenues of $781,003,000.

The company reported an estimated $25,730,000 loss from operations before provisions for income taxes. A reserve against obligations and a write-off of receivables were cited in connection with the construction of a refinery at Come-by-Chance, Newfoundland.

Estimated fourth quarter results include a net loss of $39,994,000 or $3.67 a share on revenues of $186,113,000. Net income for the same period a year earlier was $5,044,000 or 50 cents a share on revenues of $177,953,000.

Mikva protests ouster of area EPA director

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, and two other Midwest congressmen protested Friday to federal environmental officials over the ouster of Francis T. Mayo, the local director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

In a sharply-worded letter to Russell Train, the head of the EPA, Mikva and U.S. Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., and U.S. Rep. J. Edward Rouss, D-Ind., said they were disappointed with the decision to remove Mayo as the director of Region V of the EPA.

The congressmen called Mayo "courageous" and committed to dealing with the problems of the Great Lakes as well as other environmental problems.

They charged the removal of Mayo may be interpreted as a decision by the EPA to reduce enforcement of its policies.

The congressmen said while they "hoped this was not the case," they urged Train to reinstate Mayo so that any such doubts would be dispelled.

Mayo, who directed EPA policy for the entire Midwest, had developed a reputation for strict enforcement of government regulations.

School safety costs millions but worth it

much as the school cost to build in 1961, board members may decide in March to send Cardinal Drive's pupils to nearby Kimball Hill School, 2905 Meadow Dr., Rolling Meadows, next year.

In Dist. 25, officials recently agreed to close North School, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, in the near future to save money.

NORTH WAS BROUGHT into life-safety compliance in 1970, but like Lapicola in Dist 54, Dist. 25 Supt. Donald Strong is philosophical about the money spent to improve the school.

"No money spent for safety is ever wasted," he said. "This is certainly something people wouldn't argue with."

Since the program began, school districts have had financial help from the state in meeting the life-safety requirements. First, all schools were divided into three categories according to the time they were built. Each category has a separate deadline for compliance, which allows school districts to space out the cost of needed work. The categories are:

- Category I schools, built prior to Jan. 1, 1955. These buildings had to be surveyed by an architect by July 1, 1967 and brought into compliance with the life-safety code by July 1, 1970.
- Category II schools, built between Jan. 1, 1955 and July 1, 1965. These schools had to be surveyed by an architect within 10 years of their construction, and brought into compliance with the life-safety code three years later.
- Category III schools, built after July 1, 1965. These buildings are supposed to utilize the code's features in planning and building so they will be built in compliance with the code.

Eight of the 13 Northwest suburban school districts say they have completed their life-safety work and are waiting for final inspection by the Cook County Superintendent of Schools. All local school buildings must meet the code by 1978, the state deadline.

The Illinois General Assembly allows school districts to levy up to 5 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation to finance life-safety work. School districts also may issue bonds without a referendum for any amount approved by the county and state school superintendents to finance life-safety work.

School vote tally to stand despite snarl in signup

Results of a September 1975 school referendum in Elk Grove Township will stand despite improper voting registration procedures during the month before the vote was taken.

Elk Grove Township Supervisor Richard Hall said Friday the Dist. 59 and Harper College referendums held Sept. 27, 1975 will not be affected by a ruling from the state board of elections on the registration irregularities.

The irregularities resulted when some persons registered for the referendum during the 28 days before the vote, in violation of state law.

HALL SAID referendums are valid if no challenge is filed within 30 days after the election.

"The problem seemed to be confusion on what election laws were applicable," Hall said. He said he questioned the registration procedure when persons came to the township office just prior to the referendum to register.

"It was our opinion they were not legally eligible to be registered," Hall said. "We contacted the state board of elections and the Cook County clerk's office and were given explicit instructions to register applicants even on the day of the election."

Hall said the voters were registered "under protest."

THE TOWNSHIP AFTER the referendum again wrote to the state saying the registration rules first given to the township applied to counties with less than 1,000,000 population, but not to Cook County.

The state has now confirmed that voter registration in Cook County must end 28 days prior to school elections, Hall said.

Hall has sent a letter on the ruling to the county's 30 suburban township clerks and clerks of the cities and villages within Elk Grove Township.

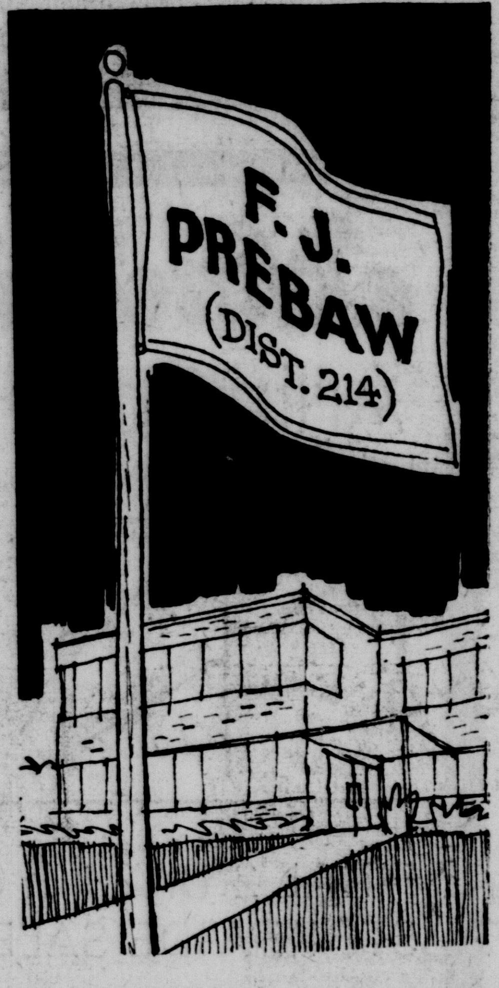
will choose three names and three insignias for presentation to the board of education in April. A plaque carrying the winner's name and winning entry will be placed on display in the district's administration center.

The majority of entries have come from residents of the community although a few entries have been received from Dist. 214 teachers and students.

The entry "Tri-Township Dist. 214" carried an insignia consisting of three books each titled with names of townships in the district: Wheeling, Elk Grove and Palatine townships.

Several entries played on the names of the district's eight high schools — Arlington, Prospect, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove, Forest View and John Hersey.

ONE SUCH ENTRY gave the name "F. J. Prebaw High School District." The fictitious name comes from the first initial of the eight schools. The contestant suggests that the fictional character could be imagined as a folk hero in the Northwest suburbs, a la Paul Bunyan.



"'Beacon Heights Community Schools" was an entry patterned after the Bicentennial and was taken from Beacon Hill, a historical place in Boston.

A total of 14 separate entries have been received by the district along with one letter from a member of the Dist. 214 staff saying that the present name is just fine and asking the committee not to change it.

Entries may be mailed to William Warner, assistant superintendent for student and community relations, High School Dist. 214, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect 60056.

Property tax relief forms at Maine assessor's office

Property tax relief grant forms for 1975 are available at the Maine Township Assessor's Office, 2510 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines.

Township assessor James Parks said the state will provide a grant of up to $500 to homeowners and renters who are over 65 or disabled, and whose income in 1975 was less than $10,000.

Eligibility and the amount of the grant is determined by a formula based on the ratio of income to property tax. In the case of renters, property tax is considered equal to 25 per cent of rent.

Parks said grants also are available to nursing home residents, but are based on the amount paid for occupancy.

Persons who are eligible for grants in previous years but did not apply can do so now, Parks said. The grants were first available in 1972.

Parks said persons who applied for grants last year need not reapply, because forms will be automatically mailed to them this year.

For further information call the Maine Township Assessor's Office, 297-2510.

THESE YUGOSLAVIANS saw little more than the inside of their Des Plaines motel during the 30 hours they spent waiting for their airplane to be repaired. After a wearying wait, the visitors successfully boarded their plane Friday and headed home.

Jet breakdown strands Yugoslav tourists

by JOE FRANZ

About 100 Yugoslavians who got an unexpected vacation in Des Plaines this week were headed back to their native land Friday afternoon.

The visitors, most of whom spoke no English, were stranded Wednesday when their 10 p.m. chartered flight was grounded at O'Hare airport because of mechanical problems.

It was a 30-hour vacation paid for by Yugoslav Airlines, but no one seemed too interested in sightseeing. Most of them saw little more than their motel rooms at the Chelsea Motor Inn, 1275 Lee St., and the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Needless to say, most of the stranded persons were glad to be on the repaired Boeing 707 jet at 2:20 p.m. when it took off for Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

JADRANKO DUMANCIC, 23, one of the few stranded persons who spoke English, said he found Des Plaines "a nice place to visit," but that he "wouldn't want to live here."

"It's a nice place, but there's nothing to do," he said. "We've been waiting and waiting and we're very bored."

Tanya Nastovska, 21, said she had no complaints about Des Plaines or the accommodations, but that she was anxious to leave.

"They (airlines) are doing their best to make us happy," she said. "We're not bitter, we're just bored.

"I have been in Detroit visiting my boyfriend," she said. "I either want to be with him or at home, but not here."

MISS NASTOVSKA said the layover was particularly difficult for older passengers, many of whom were in the country for the first time.

"It's terrible for a lot of the older people who can't speak English," she said. "They have no idea of what is going on."

Miss Nastovska said despite the problems, she has enjoyed all three of her visits to the United States and may some day take up residence here.

"I really like things here and I like things in Yugoslavia," she said. "They're two different places and I don't want to compare the two."

Dumancic, a naval architecture student at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, said although he does not want to live in the United States, he would like to return to complete his education.

"I LIKE AMERICAN student life," he said. "The American system of study is much better than in Yugoslavia.

"But I don't like the American large cities," he said. "I got a headache from Chicago. It's so big, there are so many people moving around and the traffic here is bad.

"I don't like American large cities,'' Dumancic repeated. "They're terrible and aren't for humans."

Laura O'Connell, a spokesman for United Airlines, which handles ground operations for Yugoslav Airlines, said the plane was grounded because of a problem in its hydraulic system.

The problem was complicated, she said, because the plane was modified somewhat and standard American tools and equipment could not be used.

"NOT ONLY WAS it a bigger job than we anticipated, but our country's fittings just didn't seem to work," she said. "Another thing was that every time something was fixed and seemed to be operating all right, something else would go wrong."

Miss O'Connell said in addition to United Airlines, the Boeing Co., British Airways, American Airlines and Northwest Orient Airlines assisted in getting the Yugoslav plane repaired.

"It's been a real cooperative effort in getting that plane ready to take off this afternoon," she said.

"I have been in Detroit visiting my boyfriend," she said. "I either want to be with him or at home, but not here."

MISS NASTOVSKA said the layover was particularly difficult for older passengers, many of whom were in the country for the first time.

"It's terrible for a lot of the older people who can't speak English," she said. "They have no idea of what is going on."

Miss Nastovska said despite the problems, she has enjoyed all three of her visits to the United States and may some day take up residence here.

"I really like things here and I like things in Yugoslavia," she said. "They're two different places and I don't want to compare the two."

Dumancic, a naval architecture student at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, said although he does not want to live in the United States, he would like to return to complete his education.

"I LIKE AMERICAN student life," he said. "The American system of study is much better than in Yugoslavia.

"But I don't like the American large cities," he said. "I got a headache from Chicago. It's so big, there are so many people moving around and the traffic here is bad.

"I don't like American large cities," Dumancic repeated. "They're terrible and aren't for humans."

Laura O'Connell, a spokesman for United Airlines, which handles ground operations for Yugoslav Airlines, said the plane was grounded because of a problem in its hydraulic system.

The problem was complicated, she said, because the plane was modified somewhat and standard American tools and equipment could not be used.

"NOT ONLY WAS it a bigger job than we anticipated, but our country's fittings just didn't seem to work," she said. "Another thing was that every time something was fixed and seemed to be operating all right, something else would go wrong."

Miss O'Connell said in addition to United Airlines, the Boeing Co., British Airways, American Airlines and Northwest Orient Airlines assisted in getting the Yugoslav plane repaired.

"It's been a real cooperative effort in getting that plane ready to take off this afternoon," she said.

Reagan returns 'home' to find door locked

The young couple who live in the apartment where Ronald Reagan was born said Friday they were told to clean it out and stay out of the way during Reagan's nostalgic trip home to Tampico, Ill. this week.

As a result, Reagan was locked out of his old homestead.

Robert and Cindy Lauts, who have lived in the four-room apartment 14 months, were willing to comply with the instructions. Then, they said, they were told at the last minute Reagan wouldn't have time to visit the place.

So they locked the door and left, meaning Reagan wasn't able to get in when Secret Service agents led him up the stairs.

Reagan visited his home town (pop. 880) Tuesday for the first time in 25 years. He was born in 1911 in an apartment above what used to be a bank and is now his honorary national headquarters.

State officials discuss birds

An aide to Rep. Paul Simon said Friday a Dept. of Interior lawyer indicated that "it would be extremely difficult to legally prove" that a roost housing five million blackbirds near Metropolis, Ill., is a human health hazard.

Terry Michael, the Simon aide, said representatives of Simon's office, Illinois Dept. of Public Health Director Dr. Joyce Lashoff, and Illinois Senators Adlai Stevenson and Charles Percy met Friday afternoon with interior department officials to discuss the roost problem.

Simon had sought the declaration of the roost as a human health hazard by the Illinois health department to clear the way for the interior department to order the spraying of the roost with Tergitol, a detergent, to exterminate some of the birds and break up the concentration.

Simon will contact the Federal Aviation Administration about the possibility that blackbirds from the roost are interfering with flights at Barkley Field near Paducah, Ky., less than 10 miles from the roost, Michael said.

Illinois briefs

I may win: Cooper

Richard Cooper, who said last week he doesn't expect to win the March 16 GOP gubernatorial primary, said Friday he now thinks he may have a slight chance of beating James Thompson.

Cooper told reporters this week's primary in New Hampshire and recent polls in Illinois show a large segment of voters is still undecided.

Cooper said he hopes to draw on the undecided voters to beat Thompson. However, he said he does not plan to do anything different to convince uncommitted voters to cast their ballots for him. "There will be no tricks up my sleeve."

Just last week Cooper told some reporters that "cross my heart and hope to die, I don't expect to win" the primary.

He also said he will not spend any more money on campaign advertising. He said he has spent $120,000 of his own money on the campaign so far. "I don't want to win it in the last week with a slick ad campaign," Cooper said.

Cooper fired a public relations firm that was handling his campaign because voter recognition of his candidacy had not increased appreciably. He said recognition is still a problem confronting both him and Thompson.

Carter to speak in Marion

Jimmy Carter, an early frontrunner in the Democratic presidential nomination sweepstakes, has scheduled a speaking engagement in Marion March 10.

Robert Gottlieb, program coordinator for the Marion Civic Center, said Friday Carter's Illinois campaign headquarters in Chicago confirmed the appearance.

Obituaries

Violet R. Clark

Violet R. Clark, nee Rains, 56, Arlington Heights, died Friday after a short illness.

She was an expediting clerk for Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., Elk Grove Village.

with Grace Carolyn

Rayo lamp often copied

Lighting — to dispel the shadows and afford protection from dangers lurking outside the cave — has been a consuming need of man, along with food, clothing and shelter, from the very beginning. First, light from the campfire, the hearth fire, simple oil burning lamps, candles, and then with the invention of kerosene as a fuel, lamps in a vast profusion of styles and types — that's the chronology of lighting up to the age of electricity.

There are probably as many collectors of lamps as there are types of lamps, and one of the most popular models is the Rayo, shown in the picture.

Rayos were made of metal, vase-shaped with a rounded elliptical font for the kerosene, supported on a base made of the same metal or sometimes by a filigreed or fancy base of other metal. The burners were adjustable by means of the wick and wick knobs (some lamps had more than one wick). Shades were usually of glass, often two-layered glass of white inside and dark green, or perhaps a yellow outer surface.

THE GLASS SHADES were quite heavy, of course, and supported by metal arms. A glass chimney covered the burner and was usually somewhat taller than the shade. The lamp in the picture has been converted to electricity, which is rather easily done, and has no chimney.

If you should find an old Rayo lamp complete, they say (now understand, I don't say — they say) that you can tell whether the shade is old or new merely by rubbing your finger along the bottom edge. Old shades are supposedly smooth, new ones rough. But I have an old Rayo, and the shade is old, I know, for I know who owned it and for how long, and it definitely is from about 1888. However, the bottom of the shade is rough. Maybe someone forgot to polish it.

Rayo lamps are almost always made of brass, but later ones, say from about 1900 on, were often plated with nickel. Nickel plating was extremely popular for many objects, for it didn't require the polishing and perhaps, being silver-colored, seemed more elegant. At any rate, if you prefer your old Rayo returned to brass, the nickel plating may easily be stripped off (by a professional stripper).

THIS SORT OF lamp has been reproduced or copied for electric lamps a great deal during the past generation. I received a pair of brass Rayo-type lamps as a wedding gift 30 years ago, and I recall that they had checked gingham shades with a ruffled edge, and were most compatible with my "Early Marriage-Early American" decor, but I really preferred antiques and when I found some to replace the new ones, they disappeared in a long-ago garage sale. Now I sometimes wax nostalgic over them and when I told my daughter the newlywed about them, she wished I had kept them for her. "After all, mom, anything you got as a wedding present has to be at least semi-antique!" So what does that make me?

As you can see in the picture, Rayos are most fitting in an antique setting, with the old rocker and one-drawer pine table, but I feel they are on the "primitive" side and would not work out too well in say, a Victorian or fancier decor. The lamp in the picture seems to be quite dented and worn, but that's how it is with antiques — and oftentimes their owners. (Picture from Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Women's role Lenten study

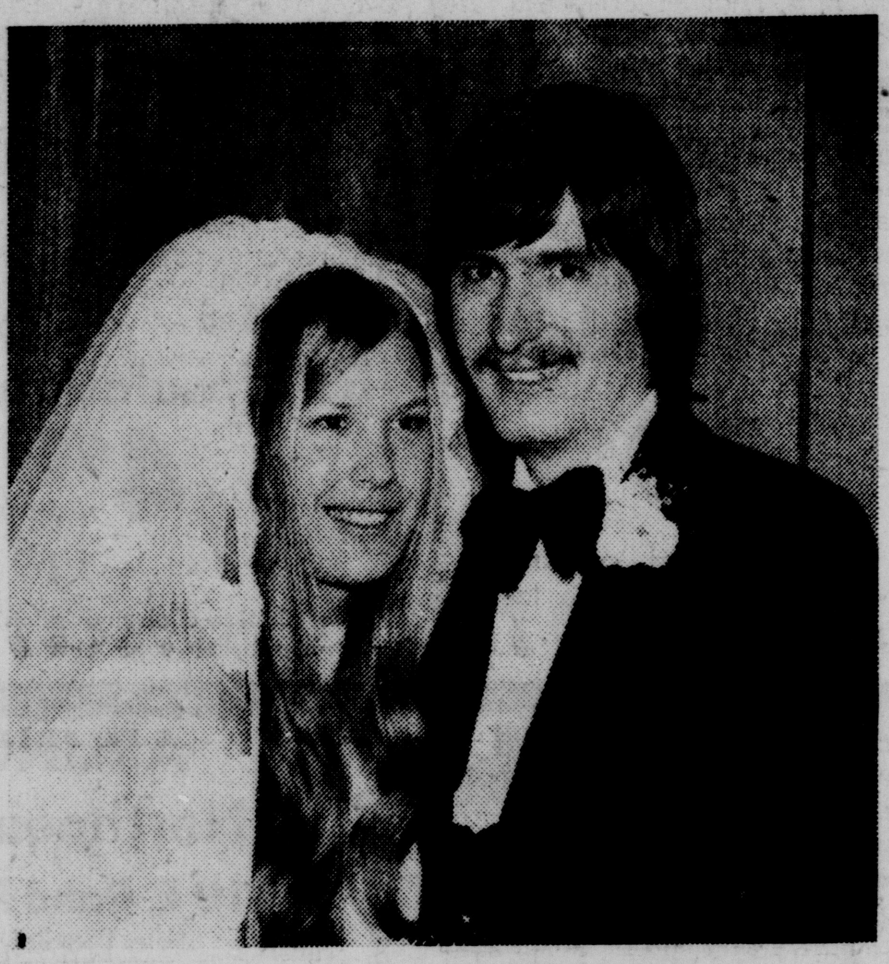
Linda Patrick, who served on the Commission on Status and Role of Women in the Church headed by Bishop Pryor, will teach the Lenten study for women at First United Methodist Church of Des Plaines.

The study, beginning at 9 a.m. Monday, March 8, will continue for three consecutive Mondays. "What Is Your Role in Church and Society?" will be the topic.

The study book, "Women in Church and Society," will be available from the church office for $1.50. The author, Dr. Georgia Harkness, discusses the role of women from a historical and theological point of view.

All area women are invited. A baby sitter will be provided.

Weddings



Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eskew

Betty Prang— Richard Eskew

In a double ring, candlelight service Jan. 31 in St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights, Betty Prang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Prang, Palatine, became the bride of Richard Eskew, son of Mrs. Joyce Eskew of Rushville, Ind. The pair met at Indiana University of which Betty is a '75 graduate.

For the 5:15 p.m. service Betty wore a white organza gown with Chantilly lace and carried a bouquet of white roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

CONNIE BOLES, Palatine, was maid of honor, and Marsha Irich, Ruth Ann Hastings and Pam Kohnke, all Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore burgundy knit gowns with jackets trimmed in marabou and they carried pink carnations, roses and baby's breath.

The groom's niece and nephew, Amy, 5, and Brent Eskew, 3, were flower girl and ring bearer.

The groom's brother, Darryl, was best man, and ushers were Tom Schmit, Mark Spurgeon and Randy Haler, Sigma Chi fraternity brothers from Bloomington, Ind.

A reception for 100 guests was held at the Barn of Barrington and after a honeymoon cruise in the Caribbean, the newlyweds are residing in Indianapolis.

Pamela Schuetz—Jeffrey S. Coghill

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey S. Coghill

After a two-week honeymoon in Acapulco, San Diego and Las Vegas, Pamela Ann Schuetz and her bridegroom, Jeffrey Steven Coghill, are residing in Palatine. Married Jan. 31 in St. Ann Catholic Church, Barrington, Pamela is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Schuetz of Inverness, and Jeffrey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Coghill, Wood Dale.

The 3:30 double ring service took place during mass with Pamela wearing a gown trimmed in seed pearls and Alencon lace. Lace bordered her hem and also her chapel train, and a lace headpiece held her chapel veil. She carried white roses and stephanotis with baby's breath.

PEGGY SCHUETZ was her sister's maid of honor, and junior bridesmaid was her sister, Nancy. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Diane, and Margaret Swanson, Cresthill, Ill., and Beth Hammond, Chicago. The maids wore copper gowns in a Grecian style and carried copper mums, yellow plumaria and white baby's breath.

Skip Coghill, Hoffman Estates, was his brother's best man, and ushers were the bride's brother, Michael, along with Chip Hammersmith, Elmhurst, and Brad Bilhorn, San Francisco.

A dinner reception for 200 guests was held in Inverness Golf Club.

A 1970 graduate of Fremd High and a '74 graduate of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, Pamela is employed as a sales representative for American Home Foods. Her bridegroom, a '74 graduate of the University of Denver, is vice president of Midwest Tar Sealer, Itasca.

Cheryl Koehler—John Lancaster

Heart-shaped place card holders made by the bride's mother were used at the reception following the wedding of Cheryl Lynn Koehler and John Kenneth Lancaster.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Koehler, Palatine, Cheryl and John, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kenneth Lancaster, Palatine, were married Jan. 31 in St. Theresa Church, Palatine. The reception for 175 guests was held at the Fontana D'Or, Chicago.

For the 3 p.m. double ring service Cheryl chose an ivory gown of sata peau with Cluny lace trim. The princess gown was made with cathedral train, also trimmed in Cluny. Mrs. Koehler made her daughter's floor-length, lace-trimmed veil. Cheryl's flowers were pink and white roses with baby's breath, stephanotis and roses.

MAID OF HONOR was Cheryl's sister, Debbie, and bridesmaids were the groom's sisters, Kathy and Jeanine, Susan Louis, Hoffman Estates, and Barbara Scofield, Arlington Heights. All wore turquoise jersey gowns with matching jackets and hoods trimmed in marabou. They carried white and pink roses with baby's breath and mums.

Best man was Tony D'Allaird, Palatine, and ushers were Robert Olsen, Palatine, Jerry Rudolph, North Riverside, William Kelly, cousin of the groom from Hoffman Estates, and Chris Eugenis, Des Plaines. Junior ushers were the couple's brothers, Michael Koehler and James Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. John K. Lancaster

The newlyweds, who honeymooned at Marco Island, Fla., are now residing in a Palatine apartment. The new Mrs. Lancaster, a graduate of Fremd High and Harper College, is employed as a secretary at Golden Bear Corp., Mount Prospect, and her bridg-Golden Bear Corp., Mount Prospect, and her bridegroom, a graduate of Palatine High, studies at Loyola University and is employed by Morse Shoes,

Debra Janczewski—Andrew Korpan

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Korpan

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Keller, Schaumburg, and Raymond Janczewski, Palatine, Debra and Andy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Korpan, Fox Lake, met at the lake when her parents joined Korpans Landing Yacht Club. Andy, a graduate of Grant High, is employed in his parents' business, and Debra, a '75 graduate of Schaumburg High, is employed by Evans at Woodfield.

Their 3 p.m. double ring wedding took place in St. Walter Church, Roselle, with Debra wearing a white velvet gown trimmed in marabou. A chapel veil trimmed in marabou and a white marabou muff with white carnations and stephanotis completed her bridal ensemble.

NANCY KELLER was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister-in-law, Ann Korpan, Fox Lake, Darla Blaesing, Addison, and Karen Nielsen, Minneapolis, Minn. Their rust gowns were topped with jackets trimmed in marabou and they carried rust carnations and white carnations with marabou.

Flower girl, wearing white velvet with marabou trim, was Tera Lynn Flink of Mount Prospect, a cousin of the bride. Her flowers were carried in a basket.

The groom chose his brother, Walter Jr., as best man, and ushers were Denny Eul, Edison Park, and Jim and John Lull, Ingleside, Ill.

The reception for 180 guests was held at Nordic Hills Country Club.

Chicago Flower Show a salute to America

One of the lead-off events for Chicago area Bicentennial observances in '76 will be the Chicago Flower and Garden Show March 20-28 at McCormick Place. The show will center around a star-spangled salute to "America, the Colorful!" with a wide range of educational and entertaining features for all ages.

Visitors will travel from Independence Square down gas-lit Main Street, U.S.A., to see formal gardens and exhibits instructing on the hows and whys of horticulture at home. A market section will house commercial exhibits offering gardening needs as well as hobby and craft items, fresh flowers and green plants.

To spotlight the rich heritage of the nation a full schedule of special programs will be featured including ethnic dancing, patriotic marching bands, films and special guests. The show will emphasize not only the important place horticulture has enjoyed in the nation's history, but also the present emphasis on urban beautification and ecology.

THERE ARE several eating facilities at the show and for those who wish to bring their own picnic lunch or supper, the Forest Preserve is again providing a quaint picnic woods complete with tables but no ants. The Forest Preserve will also provide craft house where old-time skills and trades

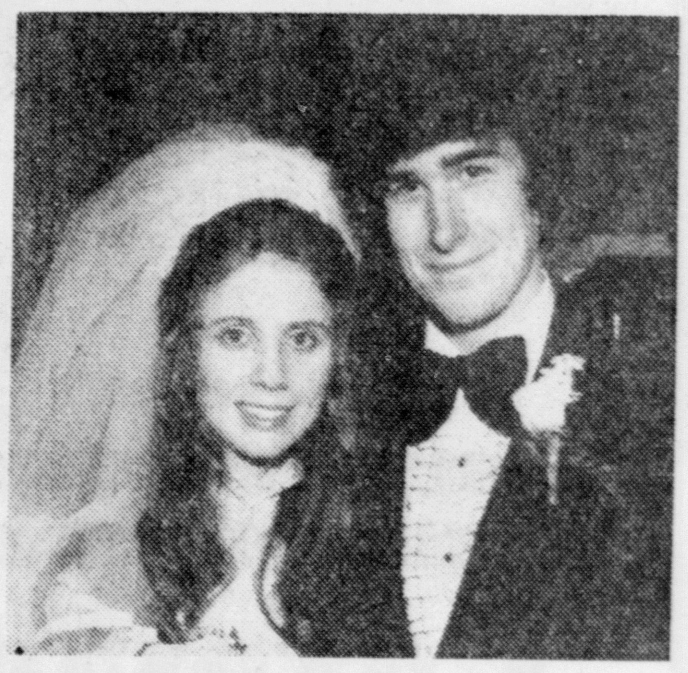
MAID OF HONOR was Cheryl's sister, Debbie, and bridesmaids were the groom's sisters, Kathy and Jeanine, Susan Louis, Hoffman Estates, and Barbara Scofield, Arlington Heights. All wore turquoise jersey gowns with matching jackets and hoods trimmed in marabou. They carried white and pink roses with baby's breath and mums.

Best man was Tony D'Allaird, Palatine, and ushers were Robert Olsen, Palatine, Jerry Rudolph, North Riverside, William Kelly, cousin of the groom from Hoffman Estates, and Chris Eugenis, Des Plaines. Junior ushers were the couple's brothers, Michael Koehler and James Lancaster.



Mr. and Mrs. John K. Lancaster

The newlyweds, who honeymooned at Marco Island, Fla., are now residing in a Palatine apartment. The new Mrs. Lancaster, a graduate of Fremd High and Harper College, is employed as a secretary at Golden Bear Corp., Mount Prospect, and her bridg-Golden Bear Corp., Mount Prospect, and her bridegroom, a graduate of Palatine High, studies at Loyola University and is employed by Morse Shoes.

Debra Janczewski — Andrew Korpan

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Korpan

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Keller, Schaumburg, and Raymond Janczewski, Palatine, Debra and Andy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Korpan, Fox Lake, met at the lake when her parents joined Korpans Landing Yacht Club. Andy, a graduate of Grant High, is employed in his parents' business, and Debra, a '75 graduate of Schaumburg High, is employed by Evans at Woodfield.

Their 3 p.m. double ring wedding took place in St. Walter Church, Roselle, with Debra wearing a white velvet gown trimmed in marabou. A chapel veil trimmed in marabou and a white marabou muff with white carnations and stephanotis completed her bridal ensemble.

NANCY KELLER was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister-in-law, Ann Korpan, Fox Lake, Darla Blaesing, Addison, and Karen Nielsen, Minneapolis, Minn. Their rust gowns were topped with jackets trimmed in marabou and they carried rust carnations and white carnations with marabou.

Flower girl, wearing white velvet with marabou trim, was Tera Lynn Flink of Mount Prospect, a cousin of the bride. Her flowers were carried in a basket.

The groom chose his brother, Walter Jr., as best man, and ushers were Denny Eul, Edison Park, and Jim and John Lull, Ingleside, Ill.

The reception for 180 guests was held at Nordic Hills Country Club.

Chicago Flower Show a salute to America

One of the lead-off events for Chicago area Bicentennial observances in '76 will be the Chicago Flower and Garden Show March 20-28 at McCormick Place. The show will center around a star-spangled salute to "America, the Colorful!" with a wide range of educational and entertaining features for all ages.

Visitors will travel from Independence Square down gas-lit Main Street, U.S.A., to see formal gardens and exhibits instructing on the hows and whys of horticulture at home. A market section will house commercial exhibits offering gardening needs as well as hobby and craft items, fresh flowers and green plants.

To spotlight the rich heritage of the nation a full schedule of special programs will be featured including ethnic dancing, patriotic marching bands, films and special guests. The show will emphasize not only the important place horticulture has enjoyed in the nation's history, but also the present emphasis on urban beautification and ecology.

THERE ARE several eating facilities at the show and for those who wish to bring their own picnic lunch or supper, the Forest Preserve is again providing a quaint picnic woods complete with tables but no ants. The Forest Preserve will also provide craft house where old-time skills and trades

Stomach has its own protective lining

About three times a week I take a spoonful of Metamucil and I find if I don't wash the glass and spoon right away, it leaves a slimy surface on the glass and it takes hot water to get it off. I wonder if it could coat my stomach and intestines so I could not get the good from my food. I don't take any other laxatives and the Metamucil works fine.

No, it won't hurt you a bit. Your entire digestive system is constantly forming secretions that bathe its surface. Your stomach already has a layer of thick mucus over its surface which would make what you are talking about on your glass look like nothing at all. That mucus surface protects the stomach cells for its own acid digestive juice.

The lining of your intestine is shed and replaced as often as every three days. The lining incidentally is digested and absorbed for food for your body so you don't lose energy or important proteins this way.

Metamucil is a good bulk expander and isn't harmful. I do hope, however, that you include in your diet enough bulk and particularly cereal fiber from whole wheat products. If you use enough of that or bran or bran buds, you may not need Metamucil to provide bulk for you.

Those wanting information on controlling constipation can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 2-1, Irritable Colon and Constipation. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I was so delighted to have your article stating that oysters do not have a high cholesterol count. I called a dietitian at the hospital where I had been a patient and she said I could also have shrimp, lobster and crab. I've no idea where her information comes from and I hope it's true, although since you didn't mention the other shellfish I'm rather skeptical.

There are two diets I'm supposed to follow, a low cholesterol and low sugar or starch diet because I'm hypoglycemic. However, the cholesterol diet is of first priority. Do you have any recent information regarding this particular diet? I know there must be a great number of people who have this same dietary problem.

You should be skeptical. You can eat almost any food if you limit the amount depending on what other items you include in your diet and still have a low cholesterol intake.

Oysters are relatively low-fat, low-cholesterol foods based on the most recent findings which replace older values that listed them as high-fat, high-cholesterol foods. A three and a half ounce serving of raw oysters contains from 37 to 58 milligrams of cholesterol; a similar amount of shrimp is 150 milligrams; lobster, 200 and crab 52 to 98.

You can eat shrimp in moderation, restrict your lobster intake a little more and need not be concerned about crab any more than you would any similar amount of meat. If you limit your cholesterol intake to 300 milligrams a day, you can't eat much shrimp and lobster and still eat other cholesterol contaning foods you need for a balanced diet.

Mrs. Dale Schafernak

Mrs. Dale Schafernak, Palatine, is co-chairman of the Garden Club of Illinois show and among committee-chairmen are Mrs. Fred Cimaglio, and Mrs. Charles Falgout, Palatine; Mrs. Eugene Tamillo and Mrs. L. E. Copeland, Des Plaines; Mrs. Joseph F. Koenen, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Jerome Thelander and Mrs. Emil Fick, Mount Prospect.

Advance tickets for the Chicago Flower Show are available from all Ticketron outlets, local florists and garden club members at $2.75 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12. At the door tickets will sell for $3.50 and $1.50, respectively.

Local clubs charter buses to exhibits

Three area garden clubs and two area park districts are chartering buses for transportation to and from the Chicago Flower and Garden Show.

Those wishing to take advantage of the transportation, which unloads passengers in the mallway adjacent to the entrance of the show, do not have to be members of the local clubs. However, to assure transportation reservations should be made early.

Sponsoring buses Saturday, March 20, and again on Monday, March 22, is Arlington Heights Garden Club. Buses leave Pioneer Park at 10 a.m., returning from McCormick Place at 3 p.m.

COMBINED COST for the show ticket and bus is $5.50 although tickets may be purchased separately for $2.75, and round trip bus fare for $3. Beverly Ray, 396-1432, is taking reservations.

Buses chartered by Mount Prospect Garden Club for Monday, March 22, will be leaving the Mount Prospect Community Center at 10 a.m. and returning to Mount Prospect by 3:30. The club has extended an invitation to area senior citizens to join club members for this day at the flower show.

Tickets for the show are $2.75 in advance; the bus round trip is $2.50. Mrs. Joan Barker, 255-7289, is taking the reservations.

Des Plaines Garden Club is sponsoring buses Tuesday, March 23, leaving Rand Park Field House at 9 a.m. and returning at 4 p.m. Tickets are $2.75, bus fare, $2.75. Tickets are available by calling Mrs. E. J. Tamillo, 824-1383.

TUESDAY, MARCH 23, Hoffman Estates Park District will sponsor a bus to the show. The bus will leave at 10 a.m. from the park district office, 650 W. Higgins, and return by 5 p.m. Combination show ticket and transportation is $7 and reservations may be made by calling the park district office at 885-7500.

Palatine Park District will be sponsoring a bus to the show Wednesday, March 24. A package deal including transportation, lunch at the Magic Pan on Walton Street in Chicago and admission to the show, is $10 per person. The bus will leave the park office at 262 E. Palatine Rd., at 10 a.m., returning by 5 p.m. Reservations, open to all area women, may be made by calling the park office, 359-0333.

Schaumburg Park District and St. John United Church of Christ in Arlington Heights, who sponsored buses in 1975 are not sponsoring buses this year.

The show, being held at McCormick Place March 20-28, opens at 11 a.m. Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. Saturdays and Sundays. It closes at 10 p.m. each night except Sunday, March 28, when the show is over at 8.

Clothing needed

Do you have good clothing which your family has outgrown? Why not give it to a foster child?

Shelter, Inc. has started a clothing bank and is accepting donations of clothing for boys and girls of all ages.

Especially needed are coats, jackets, sweaters, street clothes, boots and gloves. Personal items such as underwear, sleepwear and shoes will be secured through other resources.

Persons wishing to contribute to the clothing bank may call Judy Lahey at 882-2222.

NCJW plans communication class

A course in effective communication skills geared to parents, teachers and anyone interested in better communications will be offered in Palatine during March. Exact time, location and costs depends upon enrollees and the number of persons registering.

Sponsored by Northwest Suburban Section of National Council of Jewish Women, the course will be given in four weekly sessions. Taught will be active listening, communicating feelings responsibly and no lose conflict resolving.

Interested persons may call Shelly Solomon, 398-0235, or Roberta Katz, 253-0023.

Happenings

Passover foods for sale

Orders for hamantaschen, available in cherry, prune, apricot or poppyseed, are now being taken by Woodfield Jewish Congregation Sisterhood. Priced at 35 cents or three for $1, order deadline is Friday, March 5. The hamantaschen will be ready for delivery Sunday, March 14, at the temple in Hanover Park.

Phylis Cohen, 884-0085, and Susan Forkos, 289-4808, are taking orders.

To save trips into Chicago or searching local stores for Passover needs, the sisterhood will also be offering matzos, gefilte fish, Passover candy and other supplies for the holiday which commemorates the Jewish flight from Egypt to freedom. Those wishing order lists may call Mrs. Cohen or Mrs. Forkos.

Organization workshop

"I've Got to Get Organized!," an all-day workshop on home, time, and money management will be offered by the Harper College Women's Program next Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the college board rooms. Tuition is $8, including lunch.

Rena Trevor, coordinator of Women's Programs, Audrey Inbody, associate counselor for Continuing Education, and Suzanne Herron, catering manager, all of Harper College will join Ann Howell, former editor of Money Management, Institute of Household Finance, Chicgo, in presenting the program.

Reservations can be made by telephoning 397-3000, extension 410.

Child care is available by prior registration for an additional charge. Information 397-3000, extension 292.

Buses chartered by Mount Prospect Garden Club for Monday, March 22, will be leaving the Mount Prospect Community Center at 10 a.m. and returning to Mount Prospect by 3:30. The club has extended an invitation to area senior citizens to join club members for this day at the flower show.

Tickets for the show are $2.75 in advance; the bus round trip is $2.50. Mrs. Joan Barker, 255-7289, is taking the reservations.

Des Plaines Garden Club is sponsoring buses Tuesday, March 23, leaving Rand Park Field House at 9 a.m. and returning at 4 p.m. Tickets are $2.75, bus fare, $2.75. Tickets are available by calling Mrs. E. J. Tamillo, 824-1383.

TUESDAY, MARCH 23, Hoffman Estates Park District will sponsor a bus to the show. The bus will leave at 10 a.m. from the park district office, 650 W. Higgins, and return by 5 p.m. Combination show ticket and transportation is $7 and reservations may be made by calling the park district office at 885-7500.

Palatine Park District will be sponsoring a bus to the show Wednesday, March 24. A package deal including transportation, lunch at the Magic Pan on Walton Street in Chicago and admission to the show, is $10 per person. The bus will leave the park office at 262 E. Palatine Rd., at 10 a.m., returning by 5 p.m. Reservations, open to all area women, may be made by calling the park office, 359-0333.

Schaumburg Park District and St. John United Church of Christ in Arlington Heights, who sponsored buses in 1975 are not sponsoring buses this year.

The show, being held at McCormick Place March 20-28, opens at 11 a.m. Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. Saturdays and Sundays. It closes at 10 p.m. each night except Sunday, March 28, when the show is over at 8.

Clothing needed

Do you have good clothing which your family has outgrown? Why not give it to a foster child?

Shelter, Inc. has started a clothing bank and is accepting donations of clothing for boys and girls of all ages.

Especially needed are coats, jackets, sweaters, street clothes, boots and gloves. Personal items such as underwear, sleepwear and shoes will be secured through other resources.

Persons wishing to contribute to the clothing bank may call Judy Lahey at 882-2222.

NCJW plans communication class

A course in effective communication skills geared to parents, teachers and anyone interested in better communications will be offered in Palatine during March. Exact time, location and costs depends upon enrollees and the number of persons registering.

Sponsored by Northwest Suburban Section of National Council of Jewish Women, the course will be given in four weekly sessions. Taught will be active listening, communicating feelings responsibly and no lose conflict resolving.

Interested persons may call Shelly Solomon, 398-0235, or Roberta Katz, 253-0023.

Happenings

Passover foods for sale

Orders for hamantaschen, available in cherry, prune, apricot or poppyseed, are now being taken by Woodfield Jewish Congregation Sisterhood. Priced at 35 cents or three for $1, order deadline is Friday, March 5. The hamantaschen will be ready for delivery Sunday, March 14, at the temple in Hanover Park.

Phylis Cohen, 884-0085, and Susan Forkos, 289-4808, are taking orders.

To save trips into Chicago or searching local stores for Passover needs, the sisterhood will also be offering matzos, gefilte fish, Passover candy and other supplies for the holiday which commemorates the Jewish flight from Egypt to freedom. Those wishing order lists may call Mrs. Cohen or Mrs. Forkos.

Organization workshop

"I've Got to Get Organized!," an all-day workshop on home, time, and money management will be offered by the Harper College Women's Program next Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the college board rooms. Tuition is $8, including lunch.

Rena Trevor, coordinator of Women's Programs, Audrey Inbody, associate counselor for Continuing Education, and Suzanne Herron, catering manager, all of Harper College will join Ann Howell, former editor of Money Management, Institute of Household Finance, Chicago, in presenting the program.

The way we see it

Norman attack damaged Dems

The suburbs need a strong two-party system, but in Wheeling Township the minority party is in big trouble.

Ironically, the danger to the Democrats comes not from the Republicans but from the township's Democratic committeeman, Donald Norman, who has launched a vendetta against State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, the Democratic legislator who represents the area.

Norman's feud, which had been simmering for months, surfaced last weekend at the annual Democratic Party dinner-dance. Norman carefully avoided any mention of Mrs. Chapman or any expression of support for her — although he did say "we support" Mrs. Chapman's running mate, newcomer Joan Brennan (who the "we" is remains unclear).

Norman even prevented one of Chapman's fellow legislators from telling the crowd that she wasn't present because of a broken leg.

Mrs. Chapman responded to Norman's slight by commenting from her hospital bed that she feels Norman doesn't like her, which is a masterful understatement. Undoubtedly, she can take care of herself in an open battle with Norman.

The real problem goes beyond the quarrel itself, for it is far less certain that the Wheeling Township Democratic Party can take care of itself in a major power struggle.

Our suburbs have been traditionally Republican, a situation that can produce all the problems of any one-party system. But if there is vigorous opposition, such inattention is discouraged, and the voter benefits.

Viewed in that light, Norman's behavior takes on more importance. By attempting to discipline a respected party leader in a sledgehammer fashion, he will only damage the cause of the party in the suburbs. He should bear that in mind before he resumes battering away at his own party.

Nixon's trip an outrage

The conduct of former President Richard Nixon in his visit to China is both outrageous and sad.

While paying a "private citizen" call on his friends in Peking, Nixon is conducting himself, and being treated, as a person with diplomatic stature. He has had four-hour meetings with top government officials. He has use of official residences, is toasted at official receptions, makes public comment to the Chinese about American foreign policy, even has "spontaneous" groups of citizens on hand to greet him in the streets in the name of world peace and friendship.

Chinese officials may go daffy if they want to. Undoubtedly they feel a warm spot for the man who reopened relations between mainland China and the United States.

Nixon should understand he cannot relive the old days. And the Chinese cannot restore his lost reputation.

As a person once charged with upholding the Constitution, he should understand the impropriety of a private citizen interfering with the foreign policy of the United States.

But Nixon has a blank spot when it comes to propriety.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, a staunch supporter of Nixon before the Watergate mess occurred, said, "I don't think the average American has enough respect for Mr. Nixon anymore to really believe that what he's doing is in anybody's interest but Mr. Nixon's."

Goldwater said the best thing Nixon can do is to stay in China where he's appreciated.

In your heart, you know, he's right.

Change produces little violence

Spain moves towards democracy

by PETER UBERSAX

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Three months after the death of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain is in the midst of deep political change.

The government of King Juan Carlos is committed to holding free elections next year. It has taken the first steps toward remodeling Franco's authoritarian state and is enacting laws to grant Spaniards wider political freedoms and human rights.

With outbreaks of leftist-inspired strikes and street protests, foes of the Franco regime keep up the pressure for political change.

"Amnesty" and "freedom" are shouts heard all over Spain as demonstrators gather in streets to go through what often looks like a well-rehearsed ritual of shout and run. Police are under orders to disperse demonstrators, but not to injure them.

AS A RESULT, change in Spain has produced little violence so far.

On the right, Franco faithfuls express horror at what is happening — but the chances appear slim that they can turn back the wheel.

The pollsters say more than two-thirds of Spaniards favor democracy as the follow-up to almost 40 years of one-man rule.

Nothing illustrates the changed mood in Spain better than the virtual freedom of the press to report and discuss almost any type of news, and the new freedoms given to opposition politicians.

Communist Marcelino Camacho, who was sentenced to 20 years in jail under Franco for organizing underground labor unions, was freed under a royal pardon a week after Franco's death.

ACCORDING TO press reports, the government has provided Camacho with two police bodyguards to protect him against right-wingers.

The press now can call Franco's reign a "dictatorship" — a term that automatically would have resulted in a newspaper's closure three months ago.

It can criticize or oppose government politics with hardly any restraint. Whatever action the censors still take is confined, in nine out of 10 cases, to supposed pornography — tame imitations of Western girlie magazines.

The news magazine Guadiana recently created a furor by printing a bare-bosomed picture of Nadiuska, Spain's most famous cover girl.

This led to protests in the Cortes parliament — but not a word was said when the same magazine featured a cover story blasting Premier Carlos Arias Navarro for going too slowly on reform. The cover depicted Arias in an unflattering pose, and the headline proclaimed: "Arias — no!"

Franco himself is hardly mentioned anymore in public or in private conversation — astonishing considering he ruled Spain single-handedly for almost four decades. The reason probably is that Spaniards are too busy discussing the future to talk about the past.

"THERE IS STILL so much respect for the man that people prefer to say nothing rather than to criticize him," one newspaper editor said.

But so far, the change is largely one of mood and not of law.

The government has said change must come slowly, step-by-step and within the framework of Franco's laws. It has given itself a deadline of June 30, 1977, for the introduction of universal suffrage, a two-chamber parliamentary system and the legalization of political parties excluding Communists and other extremists.

All these changes, the government has said, must be carried out under Franco's laws a condition imposed by the politically conservative army.

Still, not all systems are go for Juan Carlos' new deal regime.

The deeply entrenched right tries to put the brakes on reform through its dominance of the Cortes and the Council of the Realm — the king's supreme advisory body. Bitter parliamentary battles are foreseen for some of the new laws.

The center and left-wing opposition, in turn, is refusing to play along with the government's scheme of gradual reform. It demands what it calls a "democratic rupture" — a start from scratch instead of the step-by-step approach.

CHRISTIAN DEMOCRATS, Socialists and Communists argue — freely and in public — that the regime is incapable of carrying out true reform and that the Spanish people have waited for democracy too long to be kept waiting any more.

The pollsters say the Socialists and the Christian Democrats, each with close to 30 per cent of expected voter strength, are Spain's potentially strongest political groups.

The Communists are given no more than 10 per cent. But they have proved their strength among labor in a recent series of strikes involving more than 300,000 workers on a single day.

The 38-year-old king opened his reign with a posture of aloofness from politics, but has begun to take a stronger pro-reform attitude.

Visiting the restive northeastern region of Catalonia, he quickly adapted to the local mood with a speech partly made in the Catalonian language, a thing Franco never would have done.

"Personal freedom cannot be renounced — because God gave it to us," he told a cheering crowd. "Spain must become an authentic democracy oriented toward the common good."

It was the first time Franco's heir had used the word democracy in public to describe where Spain was headed.

'Cut administrators first'

In response to the article which appeared in the Herald on Monday, Feb. 16, stating the Board of Education for Des Plaines Dist. 62 planned to reduce its educational standards by a $700,000 cutback, my suggestion to the board is that they delve into the possibility of administrative cutbacks and work toward better education by allowing smaller classroom sizes.

Facilitation of running a school district of 5,882 students can be accomplished by a superintendent that has a good background in curriculum, thus eliminating the necessity of having an assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum. The superintendent should also be able to hire teachers for the district thus eliminating the need for an assistant in this area. Also, on staff at the present time is a director of instructional resource which overlaps the position of IMC coordinator, who is capable of handling the efficient operation of the IMC's in the district. Dist. 62 is also affiliated with the Maine Township program in the area of special education.

This affiliation overlaps with the township program in that we, as taxpayers, are paying part of the salaries to the directors and staff members of the township and, in addition, are paying a salary to the director of special services who does the repetitive work of the township and who subsequently divides these duties into coordinator positions. Either Dist. 62 should completely affiliate with the township eliminating the need for a director of special services or become self-containing in this area and pay the salary for Dist. 62 special services.

The question of savings should be looked into more carefully in the areas of the administrative level, thus freeing thousands of dollars which could be put into effecting a better educational program for our children. Now that enrollment figures have gone down, smaller classroom sizes could be implemented thus providing our children with more individualized and effective teaching. The teaching of art and music is essential in rounding out an individual and it goes without saying that our children should stay physically fit through gymnastics.

The taxpayers and children of Dist. 62 are better served by effective teaching through the retention of all our teachers, teaching in smaller classrooms and special personnel such as our social workers and guidance counselors helping effect a positive attitude in education.

If the board which represents us, the taxpayers, is adamant about cutting back teachers, then I as a taxpayer believe a proportionate cut in administrators should occur, for without teachers, what will the over-abundance of administrators be doing?

'Let's turn to the Bible'

In reference to the Herald editorial, "Cover-up makes sense," Friday, Feb. 20, concerning the hiding of pornographic magazine covers from children's view. I totally agree that we, as citizens and parents in this community, have the moral responsibility to our children, to ourselves, but most of all to our Creator for upholding the morals which He so wisely designed to control our existence.

Unfortunately, it seems many have failed to recognize His existence and their standing in His eyes.

Cover up? Why? Is there a sense of guilt? Should we have a double standard for our children and ourselves; or maybe, just maybe our Creator instilled in our conscience a sense of discerning moral conduct from immoral.

I say burn those books, don't just cover them, and let's turn our eyes once again to God's great book, the Bible. Put the Bible in these stores instead and I guarantee you won't have to be afraid of one of your children reading it or looking at its cover.

If something worthwhile is to be done, how about fixing the water hole in a nearby backyard? It has been a back-up problem for about 20 years. Aldermen told us there is no money to fix it with. And that is a health hazard, a breeding place for mosquitoes.

Let's do the necessary things first.

Vote "no" on the library referendum today.

'Clearly imperative'

Church council to seek ban on plutonium energy

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

Plutonium as a religious issue?

Yes, indeed.

When the governing board of the National Council of Churches meets in Atlanta early next month it will be asked to approve a policy statement committing members to seek a moratorium on decisions to pursue the use of plutonium as a major source of energy.

The proposed policy statement, which has generated fierce debate since it was presented for a "first reading" to the governing board last October, also urges continued theological, economic and technical debate on "the plutonium economy" before any "irrevocable decisions are made to pursue plutonium reactors as a major energy source."

What makes the use of plutonium nuclear reactors as a source of energy a religious issue?

FOR SUPPORTERS of the proposed National Council policy statement the answer is found in the first paragraph of the statement:

"It is clearly imperative for the Church to reaffirm its confession of God as the Lord of all creation and to proclaim to all people that we are responsible for all the ways in which we use, abuse or neglect to use the sources of energy God has made available to us."

On a more practical level, the issue of the "plutonium economy" comes up as it appears the world's fossil fuel resources — coal and oil — are rapidly being used up, demands for energy are growing and nuclear power as a prime alternative source of energy is increasingly being considered.

In 1974, a "committee of inquiry," cochaired by prominent scientists Rene Dubos and Margaret Mead, was established to study the implications of what appeared to be the growing dependence on the use of plutonium as a commercial nuclear fuel.

The "committee of inquiry" concluded that such dependence was "morally indefensible and technically objectionable" on the basis of the lack of safeguards against theft and nuclear blackmail, and in ensuring that the highly toxic fuel not be released into the atmosphere.

"IN AN EFFORT to supress nuclear violence and coercion, to limit the spread of illicit nuclear weapons, and to encourage the needed perpetual social stability, the United States and other countries may have to undertake massive social engineering and to abrogate traditional civil liberties," the Dubos-Mead team said.

But the proposed NCC statement has not gone unchallenged.

The Atomic Industrial Forum, an association of organizations concerned with the peaceful application of nuclear energy, in a detailed critique of the proposed statement and the background report submitted by the Dubos-Mead panel, has sought to give point-by-point responses to the concerns raised by the anti-nuclear scientists.

In addition, the two sides, with the addition of three ethicists, debated the issues at NCC headquarters in New York.

AT THE BASIS of much of the debate is the question of growth.

"We don't need maximum levels of growth — more is not necessarily better," said Dr. Dean Abrahamson, of the University of Minnesota, one of the anti-plutonium panelists.

He was challenged, however, by one of the nation's best-known physicists, Nobel prize-winner Dr. Hans Bethe who said pursuit of nuclear energy was not a desire for unlimited growth, but a need for replacing what we had. "A greater burden on future generations would be for us to exhaust the fossil fuels," he said.

The issue is unresolved and will remain unresolved even after the NCC acts in March. But as both sides agree, there are ethical and religious considerations to whatever policy the nation finally adopts.

Free electronics class at Harper

A tuition-free electronics assembly and inspection training program is scheduled at Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, March 15-May 3.

The program is designed to aid unemployed or people who want to learn a job skill.

The training runs eight hours a day, for six weeks, followed by two weeks employment placement assistance in cooperation with the Harper placement staff and the Illinois State Employment Office.

To be eligible for the program, a person should be at least 18 years old, either unemployed for at least a week, partially employed, employed for under minimum wage, or be otherwise economically disadvantaged, such as being a member of a family with an unusually low annual income. Only persons from suburban Cook County are eligible. A living allowance is available to participants.

Persons interested in enrolling in the program should call Hope Tipitino, placement specialist, at Harper College, 397-3000, ext. 520 between 8 and 10 a.m.

Grantmanship seminar at Harper

A Community Leadership Training Center spring seminar on grantmanship will be held at Harper College, Algonguin and Roselle roads, Palatine, March 10.

The seminar will be held in the board rooms, Building A, from 7 to 10 p.m.

Topics will describe trends and sources of funding, such as special revenue sharing and foundation grants.A portion of the program will be concerned with the development and writing of grant proposals.

Conducting the seminar will be John Morrow, director of development at Harper College, and Richard Byerly, director of research at Iowa State University. Morrow and Byerly have coauthored a book entitled "A Road Map to Federal Funding," and Morrow has also written "A Basic Guide to Proposal Development."

Tuition for the grantsmanship seminar will be $15. To register call 397-3000, ext. 410.

'Gifted Child' topic of Harper radiocast

"The Gifted Child" is subject for discussion on the Harper College "Focus: Northwest" radio program at 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 29, on WWMM, 92.7 FM.

Jean Watson, program adviser of the Educable Mentally Handicapped and Trainable Mentally Handicapped at Elgin Unit 46 School District, and an instructor for child development program, Harper College, moderates the show.

Guests include Marilynn Meissner, director, North Suburban Area Service Center for Gifted Education; Pam Gillet, assistant director, Northwest Special Education Organization; and Robert Kling, resource person, Illinois Gifted Program, and teacher of English at Abbott Junior High, Elgin.

Tryouts for 'Harvey' scheduled Monday

Masque and Staff of Elk Grove Village is holding auditions for "Harvey" at 8 p.m. Monday at Dempster Junior High School in Elk Grove Village.

The comedy calls for six men and six women. Masque and Staff is staging "Harvey" as its annual dinner-theater production the latter part of April. For further information call 437-0679.

First installment of property taxes due Monday

Monday is the deadline for payment of first-installment Cook County real estate taxes.

Taxes can be paid in person at the office of County Treasurer Edward Rosewell, 118 N. Clark St., Chicago, from 9 a.m. to noon today or from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday.

Postmark deadline for mail payments is midnight Monday.

The penalty for late payment is a charge of 1 per cent of the unpaid balance per month, a Rosewell spokesman said.

First installment tax bills are 50 per cent of last year's tax. The Rosewell spokesman said second-installment bills should be mailed Aug. 1.

That's the exact time it takes for a U. S. Savings Bond to mature.

Unfortunately, most people still think it takes 10 years. Or 7. Wrong. It's exactly 5 years.

Of course, if you want to keep your money earning, there's a 10-year extension privilege beyond maturity.

We'd appreciate it if you'd help us clear up the confusion. Next time somebody tells you it takes 10 years for a Savings Bond to mature, smile indulgently. And then show him this ad.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

UNITED STATES SAVINGS BONDS

Take stock in America.

Now Bonds mature in 5 years.

That's the exact time it takes for a U. S. Savings Bond to mature.

Unfortunately, most people still think it takes 10 years. Or 7. Wrong. It's exactly 5 years.

Of course, if you want to keep your money earning, there's a 10-year extension privilege beyond maturity.

We'd appreciate it if you'd help us clear up the confusion. Next time somebody tells you it takes 10 years for a Savings Bond to mature, smile indulgently. And then show him this ad.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

FREMD'S Doug Smidl finished out of the running for a P-Bar medal but still fashioned a 7.45 at the Rolling Meadows Sectional Friday night. The Hersey Huskies earned a trip to the state finals, winning with a 145.34 score. Rolling Meadows was second with 143.01.

Lococo only area matman in title fight

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

CHAMPAIGN — Herald area wrestling hopes received a severe jolt here Friday afternoon and evening.

With two sessions down and two remaining at the Illinois state wrestling tournament, only one area entry remains in the running for title honors from nine over-all qualifiers.

Hersey High School's 132-pounder Dan Lococo is the only grappler still alive in the championship bracket heading into today's semi-final round.

Three other Northwest suburban youngsters — Fremd's Doug McCarthy, Hoffman Estate's Jim Thomas, and St. Viator's Scott Zettek — still maintain hopes of wrestling back for places third through sixth.

Among the casualties were Buffalo Grove's trio of finalists, including previously unbeaten 126-pounder Rich Wilhelm. Wilhelm's win streak ended, 9-3, at 39 by Keith Puebla of Moline, also undefeated.

Several hours later Wilhelm was wiped out of the wrestlebacks by Jeff Gerdes of Oak Forest, 5-3.

Also falling in the wrestlebacks after winning his opening bout was Bison Greg Thomson at 132. He lost to Ed Rogers of DeKalb, 13-3. Teammate Doug Browning lost his opener at 145 and was never afforded the opportunity to come back.

Others succumbing in the opening round Friday were 119-pound Jim Carlstrom and 167-pound Ted Tyk of Rolling Meadows. Carlstrom, after losing to Dave Palmeno of Rockford East, last year's sixth place finisher, was paired off against the returning No. 3 man, Tom Best of Naperville. Best triumphed, 12-7.

Tyk, injured in his opening round setback to Eric Moll of Barrington, had the opportunity to wrestle back but was forced to forfeit out of the running.

Lococo, the only championship survivor, barely escaped an opening round battle and then roared past DeKalb's Rogers, 9-4, in the quarterfinals to earn a shot at Scott McGhee of Orland Park today in the semis. The Huskie senior trailed 9-4 after the first period of his leadoff match with Dan Murphy of Belleville East and then rallied with a startling series of takedowns and escapes to win at the buzzer, 17-16.

McCarthy of Fremd lost his opener at 126 to Bill Kaiser of Peoria Richwoods, 12-8, but won over Dave Larson of Sandburg by default.

Thomas of Hoffman, after winning 2-0 in his first bout, dropped a 10-6 verdict to Todd Whitfield of Glenbrook South in the 155 quarterfinals. Thomas then stopped Paul Jankowski of Rich East in the consolation bracket, 6-2.

Zettek of St. Viator also won, lost, and then won to stay alive for a medal. The heavyweight lost to Pat Renfrow of Bremen, 5-4, after a 4-3 triumph over Greg Thompson of Glenbard South.

In the wrestlebacks Zettke squeezed out a 4-3 overtime nod over Public League champion Steve Solaja of Washington.

Tague leads area swimming qualifiers

by BOB GALLAS
Swimming Editor

DARIEN — Led by Hersey's Chris Tague, who made the final six in two events, four area swimmers and the St. Viator freestyle relay team made the Illinois state swimming finals today through their performances here Friday night.

Meanwhile, Hinsdale Central looked like a sure bet to take its 10th state swim title in a row, taking the top times in eight of 11 qualifying events.

Friday's competition pared down the field from 388 contestants to 12 in each of the eight swimming events, 12 divers and 12 schools in each of the two relays. Those who finish first through sixth in the qualifying round are eligible for the state title today. Those who finished seventh through 12th can place no higher than seventh when finals start at 1 p.m. today.

Facing his first real competition of the year, Tague turned in the second best time in the 200-yard freestyle Friday night at the Hinsdale South pool. Tague went 1:43.778 in the event, but was edged out by Kankakee Eastridge's Rusty Walker who went 1:43.732.

In the 500-yard freestyle, where Tague had held a five second cushion most of the year, the Hersey speedster finished third, behind Carbondale's Chris Phillips (4:39.328) and Hinsdale Central's George Tidmarsh whose time dropped 12 seconds in the event to take the top spot with a 4:38.960. Tague's time, his best so far this year in the event, was 4:42.077.

For the St. Viator Lions, Marh Rohl shook off his illness of the past few weeks to come from the back of the pack to finish sixth in the 100-yard Freestyle with a time of 48.467 seconds. The Viator freestyle relay team took fifth place in the qualifying round with a time of 3:18.011.

Rohl, whose district qualifying time put him 44th out of 45 swimmers in the event, also swam a 100-yard leg of the free relay where he went 47.6, better than the winning time in the 100-freestyle. So Rohl could be a title contender when the finals begin today also at Hinsdale South.

Also qualifying for today's state finals from the Herald area was Prospect's Spencer Gilchrist, who will compete in the backstroke finals. Gilchrist's 8th place finish with a time of 57.002 qualified him for the consolation bracket today.

Hersey's premier diver, Bill Cashmore, finished seventh Friday in diving from a field of 52. Cashmore had accumulated 303.96 points at the end of competition Friday. Hinsdale Central's Dave Boldebuck leads divers with 363.54 points.

There were many disappointed swimmers from the Herald area, including Rolling Meadows' Tom Stahnke, who failed to qualify for the finals in the 50-yard freestyle or the butterfly, where he had been ranked sixth in the state.

Chris Stewart of St. Viator was also a threat in the 100-yard freestyle, but Stewart false started twice and was disqualified from the event.

Other area schools that came back empty handed from the qualifying round were Arlington, Forest View, Maine West, Rolling Meadows and Buffalo Grove.

Two state records were broken in competition here Friday. The Hinsdale South 200-yard medley relay team broke its own record set in 1971 of 1:37.4. The Red Devils' foursome turned in a time of 1:36.94.

Hinsdale South's Kevin Lange set a new state meet mark in winning the 50-yard freestyle, breaking a 1972 record of 21.5 seconds set by Glenn Disosway, also of Hinsdale South. Lange's record time was 21.316.

Despite finishing out of first for the first time all year, Tague seemed confident that he will do well today. Tague said in the 200, he wasn't going full speed.

"I died a little after the first 125 yards, so I eased up. But then after about 25 yards I felt good, so went all out," said the Hersey star who nevertheless turned in his best time of the year in the event.

St. Viator coach John Fleck was pleased with Rohl's come from behind efforts, but somewhat disappointed in his team's showing. The Lions were figured to do better than their effort, qualifying only Rohl and their relay team for today's finals, which will be delayed broadcast on WGN-TV, Channel 9, starting at 4 p.m.

$250,000 Las Vegas challenge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The slugger against the clever boxer is the advance story on Saturday's $250,000-plus "heavyweight challenge" tennis match between Jimmy Connors and Manuel Orantes.

The last time they met Orantes won the 1975 U.S. Open title by turning back the young American 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

The slugger Connors was off his game that day at Forest Hills, just about everyone agrees, and he wants to make up for it before a capacity crowd of 3,500 at Caesar's Palace tennis pavilion and before uncounted millions on CBS-TV starting at 2 p.m.

In a promotion stunt Thursday the players were weighed in like boxers and Connors scaled 165 against 170½ for Orantes.

The Saturday format is the best three of five sets with a nine point tie-breaker as needed.

Gus Lanna, who is umpire for the match, says Connors in practice here "is hitting the ball as hard as I've ever seen him."

Orantes, the quiet 27-year-old Spaniard, has impressed observers here with his drop shots, slices, lobs and other off-speed stuff. He hits a lot of "junk" like a knuckle-ball pitcher throws.

Borg wins $110,000 in Sweden

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg beat Australian Rod Laver 6-4, 6-2, 7-5, Friday night in a winner-take-all $110,000 invitational tennis tournament.

The 19-year-old Swede had no trouble winning in three straight sets against the 37-year-old veteran, who had said before the match that he had trained "hard" for five weeks before the contest.

Borg, fresh from a victory in Hawaii, found the only rough going in the third set, but managed to pull through with several well placed volleys.

"I am satisfied with the way I played tonight," said Borg. "I am satisfied that my serves went well, I lobbed pretty good and my overhead play went the way I wanted."

Laver, naturally, was disappointed. "The problem is that I am not playing consistently enough. I could hit three or four good points only to do a foolish mistake in the next two or three points."

Elk Grove takes gym show to Niles West Sectional

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

The Elk Grove Grenadiers will wear the favorite's mantle today when they take the next step in state gymnastics competition at the Niles West Sectional.

The Grenadiers coasted to the Maine West district title last week with a score of 142.79 and they will need to hit that again to hold off Niles North, Niles East and New Trier East in today's sectional.

The meet will be split into two sessions. Free ex, side horse and high bar will be contested at 1 p.m. and trampoline, P-Bars and still rings at 7 p.m.

Niles West is located at Oakton and the Edens Expressway in Skokie.

"If we hit like we can we should win it," said Elk Grove coach Fred Gaines. "Niles North has been around 140 but if we score our potential we could be around 146."

Niles North swept the Glenbrook South district title with a score of 137.10 and has several performers who could advance to the state finals at Prospect next week if they don't make it as a team.

"We've got four good free ex men," said Niles North coach John Cress. "Mike Adelson and Paul Fischburg tied for the district championship with 7.95 but they were at 8.35 in the conference meet.

"Randy Berman, who has been as high as 8.6 this year is usually better than both of them."

Berman is also a top trampoline man for Niles North while John Suzukida is a side horse threat.

"I'm optimistic," Cress said. "It should be a tossup between us and Elk Grove."

Niles East won their own district with a team composed largely of sophomores and juniors. They hit 133.71 and head coach Tom Sokalski doesn't hold much hope of a sectional title.

"The other teams involved in the sectional are quite formidable opponents," Sokalski said. "We're just happy that this group of youngsters managed to win the district in what we thought would be a rebuilding year."

John Carlson won the district trampoline title with an 8.45 and Dave Abrahamson finished second on the rings with an 8.35.

Side horse specialist Steve Smith threw an 8.1 for Niles East in the districts but the sectional title belongs to Elk Grove's Tim Connelly.

"I think he will win the state," Gaines said. "He's just too pretty. Nobody has the flair Tim does."

Connelly hit an 8.65 to win the district title and has gone much higher than that this year.

A highlight of the Niles West Sectional will be the all-around battle between the Grens' Gene Christensen and Craig Martin of Maine South.

Although Martin's Maine South team didn't advance to the sectionals he won the Niles East district all-around title.

Christensen grabbed the Maine West district all-around crown, overcoming a case of the flu to post a 7.94.

"Gene is healthy," Gaines said, "and he should be able to get through to state.

"Martin is a very solid on the side horse but Gene has some new tricks and could go 7.5 or 7.6. If he hits I think he can beat Martin."

FREMD'S Doug Smidl finished out of the running for a P-Bar medal but still fashioned a 7.45 at the Rolling Meadows Sectional Friday night. The Hersey Huskies earned a trip to the state finals, winning with a 145.34 score. Rolling Meadows was second with 143.01.

Lococo only area matman in title fight

CHAMPAIGN — Herald area wrestling hopes received a severe jolt here Friday afternoon and evening.

With two sessions down and two remaining at the Illinois state wrestling tournament, only one area entry remains in the running for title honors from nine over-all qualifiers.

Hersey High School's 132-pounder Dan Lococo is the only grappler still alive in the championship bracket heading into today's semi-final round.

Three other Northwest suburban youngsters — Fremd's Doug McCarthy, Hoffman Estate's Jim Thomas, and St. Viator's Scott Zettek — still maintain hopes of wrestling back for places third through sixth.

Among the casualties were Buffalo Grove's trio of finalists, including previously unbeaten 126-pounder Rich Wilhelm. Wilhelm's win streak ended, 9-3, at 39 by Keith Puebla of Moline, also undefeated.

Several hours later Wilhelm was wiped out of the wrestlebacks by Jeff Gerdes of Oak Forest, 5-3.

Also falling in the wrestlebacks after winning his opening bout was Bison Greg Thomson at 132. He lost to Ed Rogers of DeKalb, 13-3. Teammate Doug Browning lost his opener at 145 and was never afforded the opportunity to come back.

Others succumbing in the opening round Friday were 119-pound Jim Carlstrom and 167-pound Ted Tyk of Rolling Meadows. Carlstrom, after losing to Dave Palmeno of Rockford East, last year's sixth place finisher, was paired off against the returning No. 3 man, Tom Best of Naperville. Best triumphed, 12-7.

Thomas of Hoffman, after winning 2-0 in his first bout, dropped a 10-6 verdict to Todd Whitfield of Glenbrook South in the 155 quarterfinals. Thomas then stopped Paul Jankowski of Rich East in the consolation bracket, 6-2.

Zettek of St. Viator also won, lost, and then won to stay alive for a medal. The heavyweight lost to Pat Renfrow of Bremen, 5-4, after a 4-3 triumph over Greg Thompson of Glenbard South.

In the wrestlebacks Zettke squeezed out a 4-3 overtime nod over Public League champion Steve Solaja of Washington.

'Showpiece game' in South Bend

Al McGuire, coach of No. 2 ranked Marquette, was talking Friday about Saturday's game with No. 6 ranked Notre Dame in South Bend and he made it sound as if there were nothing at stake. Almost, that is.

"This is an Emmy game, like Emmy or Oscar night," he said. "A showpiece game. It's a fan rivalry."

McGuire went on to downgrade the importance of the game while still admitting that the rivalry is probably the most important one of all to Warrior fans —. "A conversation game, one they'll talk about all summer."

McGuire's Warriors are assured of a bid to the NCAA tournament and, indeed, have a good shot at the national title. And that's all that worries McGuire right now.

He said he doesn't even care about losing the No. 2 ranking the Warriors have held all season.

"I could care less about that. It's nice," he said, "but it's not as important as tournaments."

Marquette, 22-1, and Notre Dame, 20-4, are two of the best teams in the country and a lot of basketball fans will be watching the outcome of a game McGuire seems to be unexcited about in most of his official pronouncements.

Digger Phelps, Notre Dame's coach, also seems to be more concerned about the tournament and his team's bid to it than about the game with Marquette, which will be televised on Channel 9 at 12 noon.

"It doesn't matter to me," he said this week. "W're 20-4 and I think we'll get a bid somewhere and that's all I care about. Plus Al's team is in for sure so winning or losing won't affect the tournament thing either way."

Michigan hopes to clinch second

Michigan can write an official finish to the Big Ten basketball race Saturday when it plays at Iowa in the only contest of four on the schedule which means anything in the conference race.

Indiana already has clinched its third undisputed championship in the last four years, and Michigan, by winning at Iowa, can clinch undisputed second place and probably an NCAA tournament berth.

Michigan goes to Iowa with a 12-3 record and while it can't catch the Hoosiers now, it can knock Iowa out of a contention with a win and also maintain its three-game edge on Michigan State with only two games left to play, assuring a runnerup finish.

Other games on the Saturday card will be Ohio State at Northwestern, Illinois at Purdue (Channel 44, 3:00) and Michigan State at Minnesota (Channel 5, 1:00).

In interesting games involving Chicago area independents DePaul, still carrying hopes for a post-season bid, will entertain Wisconsin-Green Bay at 8:00 and Loyola will host Detroit at 7:30.

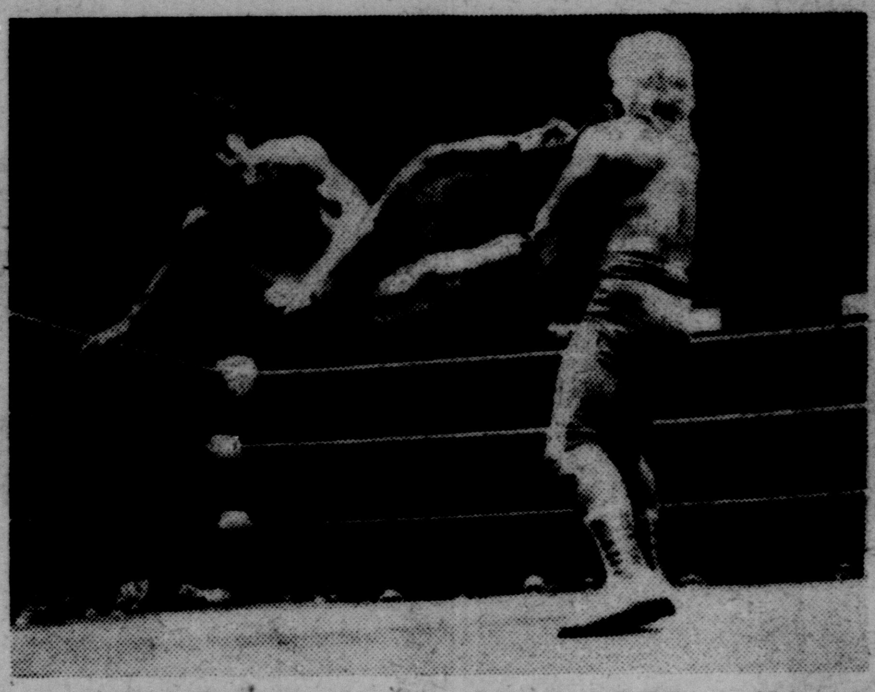
Bayi runs 3:56.1 indoor mile

Filbert Bayi ran the third fastest mile in indoor history Friday night, 3:56.1, to highlight the 88th National AAU championships in New York.

The 22-year-old defending mile champion from Tanzania, took the lead early in the first lap and led the rest of the way. Paul Cummings, of the Beverly Hills Striders, kept on Bayi's heels for most of the race as the Tanzanian sped to a 57.9 first quarter, a 1:58.0 half and a 2:58.8 three quarters.

In the last lap, Bayi pulled away from Cummings and sprinted to a 12-yard advantage at the finish. Cummings was timed in 3:58.4.

The indoor record is 3:55.0 by Tony Waldrop. The meet record, set in 1963, was 3:59.0 by Jim Beatty. The only faster mile run indoors other than Waldrop's was 3:55.8 by Marty Liquori last year.



JAPANESE WRESTLER Antonio Inoki, left, will fight world heavyweight boxing champ Muhammad Ali if and when Ali disposes of Ken Norton and George Foreman, a Los Angeles newspaper reported Friday. See related story.

'New' January fires 68 to pass Nicklaus, Snead

Don January, a wiry Texan who has found new life on the pro golf tour in his mid 40s, forged ahead of Jack Nicklaus and J.C. Snead Friday to take the second round lead in the $300,000 Tournament Players Championship in Lauderhill, Fla.

Nicklaus, who played the last two holes of his first round early Friday morning, had shared the lead with Snead, winner two weeks ago at San Diego, for about four hours before January moved a stroke ahead at nine-under par 135, with a second round 68.

Nicklaus, the pre-tournament favorite, had 66-70--136 and Snead, nephew of nearly 64-year-old Sam Snead, who is also playing here, had 67-69--136.

January, who returned to the tour last year after spending two and half years in voluntary exile, started the round at five under and caught Nicklaus and J.C. Snead in eight holes with three birdies.

Fred Marti, who had a 66 Thursday and held the lead alone until Nicklaus birdied the first of two holes he had to make up Friday morning, moved back into the pack in the second round with a 74-140.

Is a wrestler in Ali's future?

Muhammad Ali will fight a 6-4, 265-pound Japanese wrestler if and when he disposes of Ken Norton and George Foreman, the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner said Friday.

The wrestler is 24-year-old Antonio Inoki, half-owner of the North American tag team championship.

The Herald-Examiner said Ali has already signed to fight the wrestler in Tokyo during the third week of October for a guarantee of $4 million. The bout will be promoted by Nippon Educational Television.

Following his defeat of Jean Pierre Coopman last week, Ali was quoted as saying he would fight "a man who isn't a prizefighter." He wouldn't give his name.

"He's gonna fight his way and I'm gonna fight my way," Ali said.

Owners try again but 'pitch' fails

The major league baseball owners have proposed to the Players Association further modifications of the reserve clause in hopes of getting spring training open on time — but there was still no sign of a breakthrough.

The owners early in the week ordered the camps shut until a new basic agreement could be reached with the Players Association. Spring training traditionally gets underway March 1.

The lack of a reserve clause has been the blame for the delay and the owners introduced Friday what they said was "a new proposal" that contained factors which had not been covered in the clubs' previous proposals designed to reconstruct a workable reserve system.

The new pitch was made by the Player Relations Committee, which has handled the negotiations for the owners throughout their duration. The old contract expired Dec. 31.

However, Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said the new proposal was not much different than the previous one.

"The differences were indeed very slight," said Miller. "In fact, the proposal was described by the Players Relations Committee in presenting them as clarification of the prior proposal. That should tell you something."

Miller said he was not optimistic about a quick settlement.

U.S. gymnasts need good score

The United States men's gymnastics team, needing a good score to qualify for the Olympic Games this summer, hosts Romania Saturday and Sunday in an international meet at the University of California's Harmon Gym.

The Romanian men's team already has qualified for the Olympics so the meet is just a tuneup for the visitors while the Americans need a victory or a high-scoring loss to make the final round for Montreal.

Leading the American contingent is Cal's Tom Beach, who recently scored a phenomenal 9.8 on the horizontal bar in both the compulsory and optional exercises in a meet against Canada.

Others on the American team are Bart Conner of Morton Grove, Ill.; former Stanford star and two-time Olympian Steve Hug; Wayne Young, the 1975 all-around champion from Brigham Young University, and Peter Kormann of Southern Connecticut State. Tom Weeden of California and Bobby Farb of Stanford are the alternates while Karl Schwenzfeier of the Air Force Academy is the U.S. coach.

Foyt has qualifying headaches

A broken timing chain kept Texan A. J. Foyt from qualifying Friday for Sunday's Carolina 500, but Lennie Pond ignored a skipping engine to grab the 16th spot on the grid in Rockingham, N.C.

Foyt was forced out of the Daytona 500 with a broken timing chain and he shredded another one in a practice run in his Chevrolet Friday. His crew worked to repair the engine so he could go after one of the final six spots in the 36-car field open Saturday.

"It's the same thing that happened at Daytona," a dejected Foyt said Friday afternoon as 27 drivers battled for positions 16-30 in the $132,000 event that starts at noon Sunday.

Dave Marcis holds the pole position. He was clocked at 138.287 mph in a Dodge to lead Buddy Baker and Richard Petty, the winningest driver on the stock car circuit.

Pond, whose Chevy made it in Friday morning from Petersburg, Va., after a new engine was installed, was clocked at 133.647 miles per hour, despite the misfiring motor.

Hersey gymnasts capture sectional; Meadows second

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

The Hersey Huskies overcame the effects of a tilted trampoline to nip the Rolling Meadows Mustangs 145.34 to 143.01 Friday night and advance to the state gymnastics finals next week with the Rolling Meadows Sectional trophy safely in their grasp.

Hersey, trailing by .30 of a point to the host Mustangs after the first night of competition, nearly lost their chance to advance to the state as a team when their top three trampoline specialists blew their routines.

But a clutch performance by the P-Bars and still rings teams and the all-around brilliance of senior Danny Muenz assured the Huskies of finishing among the six best gymnastics teams in Illinois.

"My kids noticed the bed tilting during warmups," Hersey head coach Don Von Ebers said, "but they didn't say anything about it until their routines were finished. If they had said something we could have corrected it."

The slight tilt was enough to force Hersey's top three tramp men, Bob Solomon, Ray Peters and Bob Barut, into the springs that connect the bed to the frame.

The errors brought Hersey's trampoline score down nearly three points from what they have averaged all season and knocked the Huskie tramp specialists out of any shot at individual state honors.

"They feel bad about that," Von Ebers said. "But I told them they still can contribute to the team score."

Meadows' Glenn Johnson fired an 8.15 to win the trampoline event while Prospect's Doug Zahour took second with an 8.10.

Arlington's Chris Smith and Randy Fischer of Mundelein tied for third on the event with scores of 8.05.

Danny Muenz was taking no chances about his trip to the state meet.

He won individual titles on free ex (8.50) and P-Bars (8.50) and bombed the all-around field with an 8.29 average, his best score of the year.

The Huskies' ace took medals on every event he entered.

Rich Stange pulled his weight on the P-Bars to help the Huskies recover from their disastrous trampoline showing.

After tying Muenz for the district title he fired an 8.15 to place second in the sectional.

Prospect's Jim Tangney helped his team to a third place finish, the Knights totaled 139.28, as he placed third on the P-Bars with a score of 7.95.

Meadows' Guy Owsiany was fourth at 7.75 and Buffalo Grove's Dewey Deal fifth at 7.65.

The Mustangs still have a chance at qualifying for the state meet as a team. They will go if their 143.01 score is one of the two highest scores among the runnerup teams in the four sectionals.

"I sure hope we get a chance to go," said Meadows coach Vic Avigliano. "Someone at the Niles West Sectional has to mess up a little."

Elk Grove is favored to win that district and the scores of Niles East and North, the teams expected to challenge the Grens, have only been in the high 130s.

Buffalo Grove's Dewey Deal gained a bit of revenge as he grabbed the second place medal in the all-around with an average of 7.29.

Deal had lost the district all-around title to Mundelein's Jeff Martin but topped the Mustang this time around by .25 of a point.

Hersey continued their recovery on the still rings with Muenz winning the third place medal at 8.45. Vince Corrado's 7.55 and Don Dean's 7.35 added fine support for the Huskies.

The championship of the still rings was not decided until the final competitors. And when they were done it was still undecided.

Arlington's Tom Staley, the next to last specialist in the event, cracked off an 8.6 to take the lead from Muenz' 8.45.

Wheeling's Dale Brungraber closed out the meet with another 8.6 to tie Staley for the individual title.

Rolling Meadows' Dave Bycroft and Glenn Wilke of Prospect tied for fourth place with scores of 8.35.

Ventress wins tennis coaches' tourney

Four years of trying paid off for Rich Central High School coach Andy Ventress recently when he captured first place in River Trails Tennis Center's fifth annual "Coaches' Night" tournament.

Ventress, whose trek from Park Forest also gave him the "longest drive" title, won going away. He whipped Dan Wilson of Maine East in the final, 6-1, after downing Forest View's Doug Tolman, 6-3, in the semifinals.

Jim Gelhaar of Prospect also made the semis, giving the northwest three of the final four.

Lefthanded Bill Lange of Maine South won the consolation championship with a 6-1 conquest of Proviso East's George Kalivoda.

Championship flight summaries:

First round — Tolman over Lange, 6-4; Art Belmonte (Maine East) over Leroy Goldstein (Farragut), 7-6; Wes Dusek (Wheaton North) over Bob Goerne (Maine West), 6-0; Gelhaar over Larry Faulkner (Glenbrook South), 6-3.

Quarterfinals — Ventress over Bob Dollaske (Maine East), 6-3; Tolman over Goldstein, 6-1; Gelhaar over Dusek, 6-3; Wilson over Kalivoda, 7-6.

Semifinals — Ventress over Tolman, 6-3; Wilson over Gelhaar, 6-3.

Finals — Ventress over Wilson, 6-1.

Consolation flight summaries:

Lange over Dollaske, 6-2; Kalivoda over Faulkner, 6-0; Lange over Belmonte, 6-2; Kalivoda over Goerne, 6-3; Lange over Kalivoda, 6-1.

'Showpiece game' in South Bend

Al McGuire, coach of No. 2 ranked Marquette, was talking Friday about Saturday's game with No. 6 ranked Notre Dame in South Bend and he made it sound as if there were nothing at stake. Almost, that is.

"This is an Emmy game, like Emmy or Oscar night," he said. "A showpiece game. It's a fan rivalry."

McGuire went on to downgrade the importance of the game while still admitting that the rivalry is probably the most important one of all to Warrior fans —. "A conversation game, one they'll talk about all summer."

McGuire's Warriors are assured of a bid to the NCAA tournament and, indeed, have a good shot at the national title. And that's all that worries McGuire right now.

He said he doesn't even care about losing the No. 2 ranking the Warriors have held all season.

"I could care less about that. It's nice," he said, "but it's not as important as tournaments."

Marquette, 22-1, and Notre Dame, 20-4, are two of the best teams in the country and a lot of basketball fans will be watching the outcome of a game McGuire seems to be unexcited about in most of his official pronouncements.

Digger Phelps, Notre Dame's coach, also seems to be more concerned about the tournament and his team's bid to it than about the game with Marquette, which will be televised on Channel 9 at 12 noon.

"It doesn't matter to me," he said this week. "W're 20-4 and I think we'll get a bid somewhere and that's all I care about. Plus Al's team is in for sure so winning or losing won't affect the tournament thing either way."

Michigan hopes to clinch second

Michigan can write an official finish to the Big Ten basketball race Saturday when it plays at Iowa in the only contest of four on the schedule which means anything in the conference race.

Indiana already has clinched its third undisputed championship in the last four years, and Michigan, by winning at Iowa, can clinch undisputed second place and probably an NCAA tournament berth.

Michigan goes to Iowa with a 12-3 record and while it can't catch the Hoosiers now, it can knock Iowa out of a contention with a win and also maintain its three-game edge on Michigan State with only two games left to play, assuring a runnerup finish.

Other games on the Saturday card will be Ohio State at Northwestern, Illinois at Purdue (Channel 44, 3:00) and Michigan State at Minnesota (Channel 5, 1:00).

In interesting games involving Chicago area independents DePaul, still carrying hopes for a post-season bid, will entertain Wisconsin-Green Bay at 8:00 and Loyola will host Detroit at 7:30.

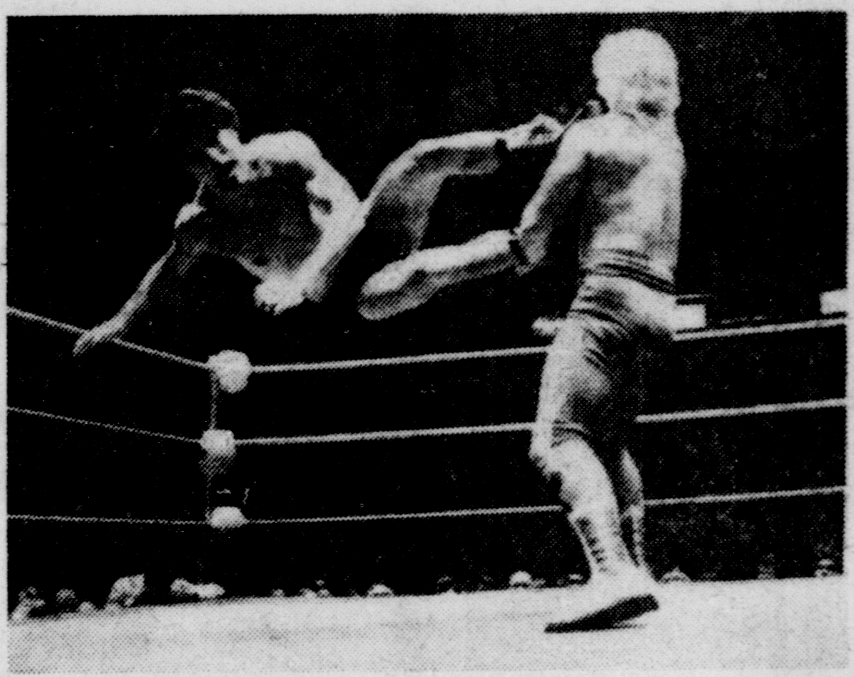
Bayi runs 3:56.1 indoor mile

Filbert Bayi ran the third fastest mile in indoor history Friday night, 3:56.1, to highlight the 88th National AAU championships in New York.

The 22-year-old defending mile champion from Tanzania, took the lead early in the first lap and led the rest of the way. Paul Cummings, of the Beverly Hills Striders, kept on Bayi's heels for most of the race as the Tanzanian sped to a 57.9 first quarter, a 1:58.0 half and a 2:58.8 three quarters.

In the last lap, Bayi pulled away from Cummings and sprinted to a 12-yard advantage at the finish. Cummings was timed in 3:58.4.

The indoor record is 3:55.0 by Tony Waldrop. The meet record, set in 1963, was 3:59.0 by Jim Beatty. The only faster mile run indoors other than Waldrop's was 3:55.8 by Marty Liquori last year.



JAPANESE WRESTLER Antonio Inoki, left, will fight world heavyweight boxing champ Muhammad Ali if and when Ali disposes of Ken Norton and George Foreman, a Los Angeles newspaper reported Friday. See related story.

'New' January fires 68 to pass Nicklaus, Snead

Don January, a wiry Texan who has found new life on the pro golf tour in his mid 40s, forged ahead of Jack Nicklaus and J.C. Snead Friday to take the second round lead in the $300,000 Tournament Players Championship in Lauderhill, Fla.

Nicklaus, who played the last two holes of his first round early Friday morning, had shared the lead with Snead, winner two weeks ago at San Diego, for about four hours before January moved a stroke ahead at nine-under par 135, with a second round 68.

Nicklaus, the pre-tournament favorite, had 66-70--136 and Snead, nephew of nearly 64-year-old Sam Snead, who is also playing here, had 67-69--136.

January, who returned to the tour last year after spending two and half years in voluntary exile, started the round at five under and caught Nicklaus and J.C. Snead in eight holes with three birdies.

Fred Marti, who had a 66 Thursday and held the lead alone until Nicklaus birdied the first of two holes he had to make up Friday morning, moved back into the pack in the second round with a 74-140.

Is a wrestler in Ali's future?

Muhammad Ali will fight a 6-4, 265-pound Japanese wrestler if and when he disposes of Ken Norton and George Foreman, the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner said Friday.

The wrestler is 24-year-old Antonio Inoki, half-owner of the North American tag team championship.

The Herald-Examiner said Ali has already signed to fight the wrestler in Tokyo during the third week of October for a guarantee of $4 million. The bout will be promoted by Nippon Educational Television.

Following his defeat of Jean Pierre Coopman last week, Ali was quoted as saying he would fight "a man who isn't a prizefighter." He wouldn't give his name.

"He's gonna fight his way and I'm gonna fight my way," Ali said.

Owners try again but 'pitch' fails

The major league baseball owners have proposed to the Players Association further modifications of the reserve clause in hopes of getting spring training open on time — but there was still no sign of a breakthrough.

The owners early in the week ordered the camps shut until a new basic agreement could be reached with the Players Association. Spring training traditionally gets underway March 1.

The lack of a reserve clause has been the blame for the delay and the owners introduced Friday what they said was "a new proposal" that contained factors which had not been covered in the clubs' previous proposals designed to reconstruct a workable reserve system.

The new pitch was made by the Player Relations Committee, which has handled the negotiations for the owners throughout their duration. The old contract expired Dec. 31.

However, Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said the new proposal was not much different than the previous one.

"The differences were indeed very slight," said Miller. "In fact, the proposal was described by the Players Relations Committee in presenting them as clarification of the prior proposal. That should tell you something."

Miller said he was not optimistic about a quick settlement.

U.S. gymnasts need good score

The United States men's gymnastics team, needing a good score to qualify for the Olympic Games this summer, hosts Romania Saturday and Sunday in an international meet at the University of California's Harmon Gym.

The Romanian men's team already has qualified for the Olympics so the meet is just a tuneup for the visitors while the Americans need a victory or a high-scoring loss to make the final round for Montreal.

Leading the American contingent is Cal's Tom Beach, who recently scored a phenomenal 9.8 on the horizontal bar in both the compulsory and optional exercises in a meet against Canada.

Others on the American team are Bart Conner of Morton Grove, Ill.; former Stanford star and two-time Olympian Steve Hug; Wayne Young, the 1975 all-around champion from Brigham Young University, and Peter Kormann of Southern Connecticut State. Tom Weeden of California and Bobby Farb of Stanford are the alternates while Karl Schwenzfeier of the Air Force Academy is the U.S. coach.

GOOD POSITION. St. Viator's Joe Kellner (22) has the good rebounding position and takes the ball away from St. Joseph's Wayne Mobley in action Friday night at the Lion gymnasium. St. Viator's strong second half defense helped turn the game around and give the Lions a 52-46 victory.

Defense helps St. Viator topple St. Joseph, 52-46

by DAVID HESS

Coach Ron Creiger of St. Viator sounded like his team had just lost its season's finale instead of winning 52-46 going away over visiting St. Joseph.

"It was terrible. The best house of the year and we played poorly.

"The whole game was sloppy," said Creiger. "In the first half we committed 17 turnovers and had 32 for the game. We can't make that many mistakes and expect to win in the regionals."

It was the Lions' defense that overcame a seven-point halftime deficit, and held the Chargers to two baskets in the third quarter. Forcing St. Joseph into costly turnovers with an occasional press, St. Viator capitalized on the opponent's mistakes and pulled away despite a 20-point, 15 rebound performance by Charger forward Andy Cooper.

"They weren't expecting that press, and I think it bothered them," said Creiger. "It got 'em thinking."

St. Joseph was forced to play most of the second half without their two best big men. Ray Donald and Andy Cooper who scored 14 of his game high 20 points were forced to sit when each collected their fourth foul early in the third quarter.

Creiger was pleased with his team's defense. "We have to play good defense in order to win. We have to play perfect."

Viator hurt themselves in the first half by making only three of 11 free throws, but straightened out in the second half by hitting nine of eleven from the charity stripe.

Steve Notaro came off the bench and to lead the Lions in scoring with 16 points, 12 in the second half. Glen Girard threw in 15 for St. Viator's balanced attack. Underclassmen Joe Kellner, Jack White, and Paul Wiloff also came off the bench to split 11 points and 16 rebounds.

"I'd have to say our 8-6 conference record is disappointing," said Creiger. "We lost a couple close games that could have gone the other way, but in the regionals you throw all those records away."

The Lions, 8-15 overall, face their first regional foe, Maine North, 8:30 Tuesday night at Wheeling.

Warriors use late surge to top Niles East, 66-55

The Maine West Warriors used a fourth quarter surge, mainly from the free throw line, for a come-from-behind win at Niles East, 66-55, Friday night.

Led by Buddy Doroskin, who came in from the bench off the final period, West outscored East 23-11 in the last eight minutes of the foul plagued contest.

West won the game at the charity stripe, connecting on 26 of 42 attempts. A total of 58 fouls was whistled in the contest, 34 of them against Niles East.

Doroskin watched from the bench for the first three quarters, bothered with a slightly sprained ankle he suffered in practice Wednesday. His return to the lineup turned things around for the Warriors, who were struggling in the third period where they were outscored 21-7.

Six players fouled out in the fourth quarter, four from Niles East. Bob Zuccarini and Pete Karabas fouled out for the Warriors.

Zuccarini led Maine West in scoring with 14. Bill Fininis contributed 12, all of them coming in the first half.

The win gives the Warriors third place in the Central Suburban League South, one game behind second place Maine South, which upset league leader Niles West, 75-73 Friday night. The Warriors finish 10-4 in the league.

MAINE WEST'S Karen Gafrick tries to find an opening against visiting Sacred Heart. Gafrick equalled her scoring average with 22 points, but the Rolling Meadows parochial school won the game, 53-35.

GOOD POSITION. St. Viator's Joe Kellner (22) has the good rebounding position and takes the ball away from St. Joseph's Wayne Mobley in action Friday night at the Lion gymnasium. St. Viator's strong second half defense helped turn the game around and give the Lions a 52-46 victory.

Defense helps St. Viator topple St. Joseph, 52-46

by DAVID HESS

Coach Ron Creiger of St. Viator sounded like his team had just lost its season's finale instead of winning 52-46 going away over visiting St. Joseph.

"It was terrible. The best house of the year and we played poorly.

"The whole game was sloppy," said Creiger. "In the first half we committed 17 turnovers and had 32 for the game. We can't make that many mistakes and expect to win in the regionals."

It was the Lions' defense that overcame a seven-point halftime deficit, and held the Chargers to two baskets in the third quarter. Forcing St. Joseph into costly turnovers with an occasional press, St. Viator capitalized on the opponent's mistakes and pulled away despite a 20-point, 15 rebound performance by Charger forward Andy Cooper.

"They weren't expecting that press, and I think it bothered them," said Creiger. "It got 'em thinking."

St. Joseph was forced to play most of the second half without their two best big men. Ray Donald and Andy Cooper who scored 14 of his game high 20 points were forced to sit when each collected their fourth foul early in the third quarter.

Creiger was pleased with his team's defense. "We have to play good defense in order to win. We have to play perfect."

Viator hurt themselves in the first half by making only three of 11 free throws, but straightened out in the second half by hitting nine of eleven from the charity stripe.

Steve Notaro came off the bench and to lead the Lions in scoring with 16 points, 12 in the second half. Glen Girard threw in 15 for St. Viator's balanced attack. Underclassmen Joe Kellner, Jack White, and Paul Wiloff also came off the bench to split 11 points and 16 rebounds.

"I'd have to say our 8-6 conference record is disappointing," said Creiger. "We lost a couple close games that could have gone the other way, but in the regionals you throw all those records away."

The Lions, 8-15 overall, face their first regional foe, Maine North, 8:30 Tuesday night at Wheeling.

Warriors use late surge to top Niles East, 66-55

The Maine West Warriors used a fourth quarter surge, mainly from the free throw line, for a come-from-behind win at Niles East, 66-55, Friday night.

Led by Buddy Doroskin, who came in from the bench off the final period, West outscored East 23-11 in the last eight minutes of the foul plagued contest.

West won the game at the charity stripe, connecting on 26 of 42 attempts. A total of 58 fouls was whistled in the contest, 34 of them against Niles East.

Doroskin watched from the bench for the first three quarters, bothered with a slightly sprained ankle he suffered in practice Wednesday. His return to the lineup turned things around for the Warriors, who were struggling in the third period where they were outscored 21-7.

Six players fouled out in the fourth quarter, four from Niles East. Bob Zuccarini and Pete Karabas fouled out for the Warriors.

Zuccarini led Maine West in scoring with 14. Bill Fininis contributed 12, all of them coming in the first half.

The win gives the Warriors third place in the Central Suburban League South, one game behind second place Maine South, which upset league leader Niles West, 75-73 Friday night. The Warriors finish 10-4 in the league.

Boat show setting sail to area

Boating enthusiasts planning to attend the 7th Annual Midwest Boat Show during its 10-day run at Arlington Park Race Track March 5-14, can still purchase discount tickets from a variety of local dealers.

A savings of one-third off the gate price of $3 is available for adults at such outlets as Boat Supermarket in Rolling Meadows, the U.S. Navy Recruiting Station in Palatine, Metal Craft Sales in Prospect Heights and Ahlstrand Marine in Wheeling.

Other discount ticket locations include Midwest Trail Cruise Sailboats and Tri-City Upholstery in Barrington, Kirby of McHenry County in Crystal Lake and Nelson Marine, Inc. in Des Plaines among others.

Every kind of boat, from rubber dinghy to 30-foot cruisers will be on display in addition to canoes, houseboats and sailboats of every shape and size.

Everything under the roof will be for sale during the 10-day show and the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary will present short courses in boating safety.

Swimming

Camp Duncan

The Camp Duncan YMCA Swim Team rounded out their grueling season this past weekend with double wins. The CDY Gold team won a triangular meet against Elgin YMCA and Kankakee YMCA, which was held in Kankakee, while the Blue team won over the High Ridge Y.

The CDY Dolphins swam a record number of meets this season, totaling more than 44 duel, Triangular and Invitational meets. The CDY Girls had a perfect season with no losses, while the boys had only one loss to mar their record, losing to the National Champions B.R. Ryall in a close meet.

The Dolphin swimmers are now working in preparation for the Satellite and State Championships, which will be held in March.

Golfers' own caddies can be used in Opens

Beginning in 1976, contestants in the United States Open and Women's Open Championships may employ caddies of their choice. It had been the policy of the United States Golf Association that caddies in these competitions be drawn by lot from a pool of caddies recruited by the host club.

The change in policy had been announced earlier this year, but not to take effect until 1977. Since that earlier announcement, the host clubs for the 1976 Open and Women's Open have waived a provision of their contracts with the USGA granting host clubs the prerogative of supplying all caddies. The 1976 sites are the Atlanta Athletic Club, Atlanta, Ga., for the Open, and the Rolling Green Golf Club, Springfield, Pa., for the Women's Open.

The change in policy was explained earlier by Frank D. Tatum, Jr., of San Francisco, chairman of the USGA Championship Committee, as follows:

"For some time the Executive Committee has been reviewing our caddie policy. The impact of golf cart use has substantially reduced the number of experienced competent caddies available throughout the country. Our concern has been, because of increasing difficulty in locating the required number of caddies competent to perform in the Opens, that some player may be at an unfair disadvantage because he or she has a caddie not competent for the event. In other words, we are less concerned about someone being assisted in winning an Open by a particularly effective caddie than by someone losing an Open because of a caddie who is less than competent."

West trackmen in title defense at league meet

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

If there's an area track team farther along than Maine West, let it come forward now.

Now is the time, believe it or not, for the Warriors of coach Ron Brown to defend their Central Suburban League indoor title, and Brown's boys seem to be pretty heavy favorites to do it, too.

Maine West will meet the challenge of strong teams from Maine East and Maine South, as well as the rest of the CSL South schools, when the indoor championships get under way at 12:30 today at Maine East's fieldhouse.

The Warriors have already put five meets behind them and are nearing their indoor peak. They have strength and depth in the distances, the sprints, the hurdles, the high jump and the long jump. The only apparent weaknesses are in the triple jump and the shot.

For the first time the CSL will conduct separate indoor championships for the North and the South divisions. They may be the earliest indoor conference meets ever held in Illinois.

Conant and Hoffman Estates of the Mid-Suburban League will join a large field at the Glenbard South Relays today at noon. In other track action, Fremd visits powerful Bloom, Schaumburg travels to Glenbard North, and Hersey hosts Phillips at 10:30 a.m.

In the only meeting of MSL teams, Wheeling entertains Elk Grove, beginning at 10 a.m.

Prospect made its MSL indoor debut on Wednesday, dropping a 71-51 decision to Rolling Meadows, but they picked up seven first places in the process. Senior Jim Wright took three of the wins in the 50-yard dash (:05.8), the 60-yard highs (:07.9), and the 60-lows (:07.5).

Prospect's Bryan Granzin reached 12-6 for a victory in the pole vault and Mark Smith swept the mile (4:51.4) and the two-mile (10:06.1).

Versatile junior Brad Millar will join the Knights at the conclusion of the basketball season. Millar scored points last year in the MSL outdoor high jump and long jump finals.

Rolling Meadows standout Jeff Lund rolled to three victories against Prospect — in the high jump (6-0), long jump (20-½), and triple jump (39-10). Lund had reached 6-1 in the high jump at the Panther Relays the previous weekend.

Meadows sprinter Rick Sutton made his first competitive effort in the 440-yard dash a winning one with a time of :56.0, a decent clocking on the Prospect oval. Sutton, a junior who will be defending his MSL outdoor 100 title, ran the 50-dash in :05.55 for a close second to Addison Trail's Jim Rosone at the Panther Relays.

Hersey buried Maine North 95-28 Thursday by taking 12 firsts, including wins in all three relays. Gary Modesto won a couple of events, the 50-yard dash (:06.0) and the long jump (19-½).

Dave Koelper reached another season best in the triple jump with a 41-6½ effort and teammate Tony Becker was second with his top jump of the year, 40-8½. Huskie shotputter Dave Komiss, the first area weightman to surpass 50 feet, settled for 48-1¾ and a win on Thursday. Matt Zakula threw 47-11 for second and also high jumped 5-4 for first place in that event.

Be careful of unscrupulous teachers

by JOE GONZALEZ
A Karate Instructor

When a person initially undertakes the study of karate today, he simply wants to learn to fight. However, as his training continues to progress he becomes aware of a higher calling, one that suggests improving character, establishing dignity and developing a sense of honor in addition to fighting ability.

If this theory at first seems doubtful or odd to you, direct your attention to early English history when men received the title of knighthood as a result of displaying valor, dignity as well as skill in the arts of combat. Obviously, people receiving recognition of personal development is not new by any means. In early Japan this same procedure was practiced and those who earned it were honored by being raised to the status of the samurai. Neither in England nor in Japan was this rank taken lightly for each had proven his abilities which demanded respect from his fellow man.

Because advancement and self-improvement have traditionally been the goals of the martial arts student, it is not surprising to see this same attitude among practioners today. The black belt is an award which is issued to the modern day knight or samurai who has devoted himself to discipline and development of his mind and body until he has reached the peak of attainment. In other words, the black belt is the symbol of an expert.

Before qualifying for the black belt the practitioner, known as a karateka, progresses through a series of levels until the Sho-dan (first black belt) is awarded. This represents the student as having mastered the basics of the art and is now ready for additional training in advanced form. As he continues to learn and advance he'll receive "Dans" or degrees of black belt.

The purpose of this belt escalator is to provide motivation to the student. To this end it has worked very well. Unfortunately, because of this system problems have arisen.

One is the diversity of standards. There is no universal agreement as to what each rank and degree represents among dojos over the world.

The standards set forth by the Japanese have been altered to suit the purposes of some unscrupulous teachers who would rather dupe the public than correctly instruct the true nature of the art. On the other hand, it is difficutl to establish a set of standards due to the individuality of each person and his reactions during training. The problem is this is exactly what must be done if the rank of black belt is to have real value and meaning. If unqualified students continue to receive black belts by unqualified instructors, the end result will be disgrace not only to themselves but to the entire art of karate.

To prevent this devaluation of karate, the public must be informed of the differences in ranking and of the ability of a truly qualified black belt. They should be alert to those clubs which use the term black belt as a lure only to recruit students. It should be known that in a respectable club a black belt can be earned only after three to five years of hard work and only under the guidance of a competent instructor.

Those in the karate field for its true meaning feel it is their responsibility to serve as educators to the public at large and to promote and establish a standard system of testing the black belt applicant. It is just as important for the karateka to understand that the black belt he seeks is not a gift, but a goal and a symbol of one's sacrifices and great effort. By doing this, the art of karate in general will benefit resulting in a greater sense of pride and achievement in being awarded the rank of black belt.

Consider the knights and samurais of old who allowed nothing to tarnish their honor nor take away prestige. Should those who are sincerely interested in the art today desire anything less?

To be awarded a black belt is to be awarded a great honor. May it continue to prevail.

Swimming

Camp Duncan

The Camp Duncan YMCA Swim Team rounded out their grueling season this past weekend with double wins. The CDY Gold team won a triangular meet against Elgin YMCA and Kankakee YMCA, which was held in Kankakee, while the Blue team won over the High Ridge Y.

The CDY Dolphins swam a record number of meets this season, totaling more than 44 duel, Triangular and Invitational meets. The CDY Girls had a perfect season with no losses, while the boys had only one loss to mar their record, losing to the National Champions B.R. Ryall in a close meet.

The Dolphin swimmers are now working in preparation for the Satellite and State Championships, which will be held in March.

West trackmen in title defense at league meet

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

If there's an area track team farther along than Maine West, let it come forward now.

Now is the time, believe it or not, for the Warriors of coach Ron Brown to defend their Central Suburban League indoor title, and Brown's boys seem to be pretty heavy favorites to do it, too.

Maine West will meet the challenge of strong teams from Maine East and Maine South, as well as the rest of the CSL South schools, when the indoor championships get under way at 12:30 today at Maine East's fieldhouse.

The Warriors have already put five meets behind them and are nearing their indoor peak. They have strength and depth in the distances, the sprints, the hurdles, the high jump and the long jump. The only apparent weaknesses are in the triple jump and the shot.

For the first time the CSL will conduct separate indoor championships for the North and the South divisions. They may be the earliest indoor conference meets ever held in Illinois.

Conant and Hoffman Estates of the Mid-Suburban League will join a large field at the Glenbard South Relays today at noon. In other track action, Fremd visits powerful Bloom, Schaumburg travels to Glenbard North, and Hersey hosts Phillips at 10:30 a.m.

In the only meeting of MSL teams, Wheeling entertains Elk Grove, beginning at 10 a.m.

Prospect made its MSL indoor debut on Wednesday, dropping a 71-51 decision to Rolling Meadows, but they picked up seven first places in the process. Senior Jim Wright took three of the wins in the 50-yard dash (:05.8), the 60-yard highs (:07.9), and the 60-lows (:07.5).

Prospect's Bryan Granzin reached 12-6 for a victory in the pole vault and Mark Smith swept the mile (4:51.4) and the two-mile (10:06.1).

Versatile junior Brad Millar will join the Knights at the conclusion of the basketball season. Millar scored points last year in the MSL outdoor high jump and long jump finals.

Rolling Meadows standout Jeff Lund rolled to three victories against Prospect — in the high jump (6-0), long jump (20-½), and triple jump (39-10). Lund had reached 6-1 in the high jump at the Panther Relays the previous weekend.

Meadows sprinter Rick Sutton made his first competitive effort in the 440-yard dash a winning one with a time of :56.0, a decent clocking on the Prospect oval. Sutton, a junior who will be defending his MSL outdoor 100 title, ran the 50-dash in :05.55 for a close second to Addison Trail's Jim Rosone at the Panther Relays.

Hersey buried Maine North 95-23 Thursday by taking 12 firsts, including wins in all three relays. Gary Modesto won a couple of events, the 50-yard dash (:06.0) and the long jump (19-½).

Dave Koelper reached another season best in the triple jump with a 41-6½ effort and teammate Tony Becker was second with his top jump of the year, 40-8½. Huskie shotputter Dave Komiss, the first area weightman to surpass 50 feet, settled for 48-1¾ and a win on Thursday. Matt Zakula threw 47-11 for second and also high jumped 5-4 for first place in that event.

Be careful of unscrupulous teachers

by JOE GONZALEZ
A Karate Instructor

When a person initially undertakes the study of karate today, he simply wants to learn to fight. However, as his training continues to progress he becomes aware of a higher calling, one that suggests improving character, establishing dignity and developing a sense of honor in addition to fighting ability.

If this theory at first seems doubtful or odd to you, direct your attention to early English history when men received the title of knighthood as a result of displaying valor, dignity as well as skill in the arts of combat. Obviously, people receiving recognition of personal development is not new by any means. In early Japan this same procedure was practiced and those who earned it were honored by being raised to the status of the samurai. Neither in England nor in Japan was this rank taken lightly for each had proven his abilities which demanded respect from his fellow man.

Because advancement and self-improvement have traditionally been the goals of the martial arts student, it is not surprising to see this same attitude among practioners today. The black belt is an award which is issued to the modern day knight or samurai who has devoted himself to discipline and development of his mind and body until he has reached the peak of attainment. In other words, the black belt is the symbol of an expert.

Before qualifying for the black belt the practitioner, known as a karateka, progresses through a series of levels until the Sho-dan (first black belt) is awarded. This represents the student as having mastered the basics of the art and is now ready for additional training in advanced form. As he continues to learn and advance he'll receive "Dans" or degrees of black belt.

The purpose of this belt escalator is to provide motivation to the student. To this end it has worked very well. Unfortunately, because of this system problems have arisen.

One is the diversity of standards. There is no universal agreement as to what each rank and degree represents among dojos over the world.

The standards set forth by the Japanese have been altered to suit the purposes of some unscrupulous teachers who would rather dupe the public than correctly instruct the true nature of the art. On the other hand, it is difficutl to establish a set of standards due to the individuality of each person and his reactions during training. The problem is this is exactly what must be done if the rank of black belt is to have real value and meaning. If unqualified students continue to receive black belts by unqualified instructors, the end result will be disgrace not only to themselves but to the entire art of karate.

To prevent this devaluation of karate, the public must be informed of the differences in ranking and of the ability of a truly qualified black belt. They should be alert to those clubs which use the term black belt as a lure only to recruit students. It should be known that in a respectable club a black belt can be earned only after three to five years of hard work and only under the guidance of a competent instructor.

Those in the karate field for its true meaning feel it is their responsibility to serve as educators to the public at large and to promote and establish a standard system of testing the black belt applicant. It is just as important for the karateka to understand that the black belt he seeks is not a gift, but a goal and a symbol of one's sacrifices and great effort. By doing this, the art of karate in general will benefit resulting in a greater sense of pride and achievement in being awarded the rank of black belt.

Consider the knights and samurais of old who allowed nothing to tarnish their honor nor take away prestige. Should those who are sincerely interested in the art today desire anything less?

To be awarded a black belt is to be awarded a great honor. May it continue to prevail.

Golfers' own caddies can be used in Opens

Beginning in 1976, contestants in the United States Open and Women's Open Championships may employ caddies of their choice. It had been the policy of the United States Golf Association that caddies in these competitions be drawn by lot from a pool of caddies recruited by the host club.

The change in policy had been announced earlier this year, but not to take effect until 1977. Since that earlier announcement, the host clubs for the 1976 Open and Women's Open have waived a provision of their contracts with the USGA granting host clubs the prerogative of supplying all caddies. The 1976 sites are the Atlanta Athletic Club, Atlanta, Ga., for the Open, and the Rolling Green Golf Club, Springfield, Pa., for the Women's Open.

The change in policy was explained earlier by Frank D. Tatum, Jr., of San Francisco, chairman of the USGA Championship Committee, as follows:

"For some time the Executive Committee has been reviewing our caddie policy. The impact of golf cart use has substantially reduced the number of experienced competent caddies available throughout the country. Our concern has been, because of increasing difficulty in locating the required number of caddies competent to perform in the Opens, that some player may be at an unfair disadvantage because he or she has a caddie not competent for the event. In other words, we are less concerned about someone being assisted in winning an Open by a particularly effective caddie than by someone losing an Open because of a caddie who is less than competent."

Women golfers to hold meeting

The Buehler YMCA Women's Golf League is announcing its annual signup coffee 9:30 a.m., Monday, March 8, at the Y, located on Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive in Palatine.

This will be followed by a potluck luncheon to be held April 12. Mrs. Joseph Chase, President of the league, announced that season play will begin May 3 at Thunderbird club in Palatine and will continue on Monday mornings through Aug. 30. The membership fee will be $5 for Y members and $10 for non-members.

Horicon Marsh limits goose use

Migrating geese will be discouraged from stopping at the Horicon Marsh paradise in Wisconsin.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources will de-emphasize management concepts that would encourage further development of the Canada goose concentration in east-central Wisconsin.

In a joint announcement Wednesday, Regional Director Jack Hemphill of the Service and Anthony Earl, secretary of the Wisconsin DNR, said the two agencies propose to reduce goose use of Horicon Marsh, the nucleus of Canada goose activity in the Badger state.

The wildlife officials said the objective of the joint management effort is to reduce the peak goose concentration at Horicon Marsh to 100,000 by 1980.

The Horicon goose flock, a portion of the Mississippi Valley goose population that winters in Illinois, keynotes a peculiar success in wildlife management.

The Mississippi Valley population increased from 45,000 in 1936 to recent post-hunting season peak populations of 300,000. The portion of the population using east-central Wisconsin mushroomed from zero to recent peak numbers exceeding 200,000 birds.

The rags-to-riches story is not without bittersweet impact in the 19 townships around Horicon Marsh. Much of the area is rated as Utopian goose habitat.

The goal to move geese out of the area is largely contingent on manipulating the food, water, and sanctuary on state and federal lands.

Before the concentration can be reduced, adjustments in the land and water features at Horicon would have to be made, the officials said.

Under the proposal, now in the work plan stage, lowland browse croplands would be permitted to revert to natural moist soil plant growth to reduce the availability of roosting and feeding areas. De-watering strategic portions of the marsh is another measure of the goose-management proposal.

Earl said the coop effort will focus on "reducing the peak concentration — not the population."

"Our chief concern is the resource," the DNR Secretary said. "Better distribution of the geese would reduce the potential threat of disease to the flock."

State and federal waterfowl managers fear the concentration makes the birds vulnerable to diseases such as fowl cholera and duck viral enteritis.

The officials said thinning the concentration would help alleviate crop losses in the private sector. However, Hemphill explained that weather must be considered when evaluating the problems of goose depredations.

"In dry years farmers normally harvest crops before the migrant geese congregate in the area," he said. "In wet years, the birds may have an opportunity to pilfer some of the standing crops, and some complaints can be expected."

Reducing goose use by 50 per cent and dispersing the flock from the Horicon Zone before December 5 is part of the strategy, Earl said.

The manipulation plan to reduce the goose flock has some hidden benefits for ducks. Upland agricultural fields on Horicon National Wildlife refuge and all state-managed areas in east-central Wisconsin will be converted to dense nesting cover. "Converted uplands would be unnattractive to geese but would lend well to duck production," Hemphill said.

Widespred public interest in the geese is evident. When the birds wing into the area from summer nesting grounds in Canada, thousands of people visit Horicon to see the spectacle. Traffic congestion is a nagging problem in the area.

In spite of the planned reduction, Wisconsin will still have a sizeable goose population to enjoy. To most observers, the proposed change in the goose population would not be apparent, the officials said.

The agencies have not ruled out an increase in the hunting quota for the Horicon zone. "It would be premature to suggest an increase in the harvest quota at this time," Hemphill cautioned. "This door must be left open, but whether or not an increase in the harvest quota will be necessary is purely speculative at the moment."

The statewide harvest quota is established at 28,000 geese, of which 16,000 is assigned to the Horicon Quota Zone.

The state-federal changes planned for goosedom are expected to produce a more equitable use of the resource, particularly in states to the south — much to the anticipated chagrin and joys from mixed sentiments in the upper Midwest. Emotion is a factor in the Horicon story, the officials said.

In their joint announcement, Hemphill and Earl disclosed that an action plan encompassing a number of options is being prepared by the agencies. The options would be implemented in various combinations, depending on weather cycles and other factors, they said.

Unique tournament lures pheasant hunters

Illinois-Iowa Open gets a shot

Outdoors

Jim Cook
Outdoor Editor
394-2300

With events such as bass fishing, skeet shooting and fly fishing transforming the outdoor sportsman's world into an arena of professional competition, it was only a matter of time before pheasant hunting joined the sport-for-money lineup.

John M. Mullin, owner-manager of Arrowhead Hunting and Conservation Club in Goose Lake, Ia., has proposed the Iowa-Illinois Open Team Pheasant Hunting Championship, March 6-7.

The team concept is relatively unique to woods and waters enthusiasts who have rarely been forced to depend upon the skills of a partner.

A third required member of the team is a hunting dog — either of the pointing or flushing variety. The canine need not be pure-bred or registered, but better not have a cold this particular weekend, either.

After a team has paid its $120 entry fee by the deadline of Thursday, March 4, a drawing will be held during which time teams will be assigned one of two 40-acre fields of relatively equal habitat and size.

The competition is limited to 50 teams and, of course, no spectators will be allowed either at the clubhouse or near the hunting areas.

The rules are fairly simple, with emphasis on speed (the time it takes the dog to find and flush the birds), accuracy (hunters are allowed only 16 shells between them) and skill (only eight birds are released for each team).

A 30-minute time limit will accompany each team in the field with bonus points awarded for a team that bags its eight birds prior to the deadline and also for a team that uses less than its 16-shell allotment.

The drawing may be the key element of the contest since eight birds will be released before each team enters the field. If the team that kicks off the tournament fails to bag a bird, for example, the second team would likely have 16 targets to choose from.

The winning entry (provided the shootout draws 50 teams) will receive $625 plus two trophies while the runnersup cash for 30 per cent of the purse and third place 20 per cent.

Although Mullin insists he's catering to the ordinary hunter in such an event, that potential $625 first-place check could conceivably lure some of the top shorpshooters from the two-state area.

A judge will supervise each team's hunt to ensure proper etiquette and sportsmanship.

Obviously no birds may be shot on the ground and pheasants caught by the dog that are not shot in the air by the team won't count.

Birds caught after being shot will be counted if, in the judge's opinion, the bird was hit and the dog's activities are to be considered a retrieve of a wounded bird.

As is the case at most hunting preserves, hen pheasants may be taken, but a valid Iowa hunting license is required. The club offers a special $5 hunting preserve license that will suffice for the two-day hunt.

Interested hunters can receive additional information by calling or writing Mullin at Arrowhead Hunt Club, Goose Lake, Ia. 62750 or by calling 319—577-2267.

TEAMWORK will be emphasized during the Iowa-Illinois Open Team Pheasant Hunting Championship next weekend at Arrowhead Hunting Club in Goose Lake, Ia.

Elk Grove club presents clinic

The Elk Grove Sportsman's Club will hold a fishing seminar Sunday, March 7 from 1-5 p.m. in the auditorium of Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village.

Guest speakers are Tony Portincasco, field editor for Fishing Facts magazine and Wisconsin guide Tony Rizzo. The pair will present two one-hour lectures before answering questions from the floor.

Portincasco will speak on "Jig Fishing Technique" from perch to musky and Rizzo, a resort owner and free lance writer will cover walleye and musky fishing.

Admission is $2 and tickets will be available at the door. Free door prizes include three 2-man coho fishing trips, an electric trolling motor, a $10 gift certificate and a Fish-Hawk depth locator.

For more information, contact seminar chairman Eric Swoelfer at 727-5137.

Match trolling motors to needs

Vic
Watia

The growing popularity of electric trolling motors is shown by some 100 models presently on the market and costing anywhere from about $30 to more than $300.

The motors are available in a variety of mounts and styles, with 12 volt and 12-24 volt models the most popular.

But the angler who decides to purchase an electric motor must take a few things into consideration. The most important step is to match the electric motor to the boat he'll be using and the water he'll be fishing.

For example, if a fisherman plans to fish with only a 10-foot boat and on quiet farm ponds, he doesn't need a 24 volt unit to push his craft around. A 12 volt unit will do an excellent job, and costs less.

But the angler who uses a variety of boats and fishes a variety of water, may be interested in an electric trolling motor offering the option of both 12 and 24 volt power.

The development of permanent magnetic motors contributed to today's boom in electric trolling motors. The magnetic motor allows more power with less drain on a battery.

Before such motors were developed, fishermen often got only a couple of hours use from electric motors on fully charged batteries. But many motors now can be used all day before the battery requires charging.

Most electric models marketed today are equipped with magnetic motors, but some models consume more power than others. Usually it depends on the amount of thrust of the motor.

For example, the higher the thrust (power) — say 18 pounds instead of 10 pounds — the more electricity the motor may draw, resulting in a faster drain on the battery.

But some trolling motors draw less amps (electricity) per pounds of thrust than others, so it often is worth the consumer's effort to check the specifics before he buys.

Many models are equipped with variable speeds and using a lower speed results in less draw on a battery and longer use per battery charge. The variable speeds allow an angler to use more thrust under windy conditions and less when lakes are calm.

It's fairly simple for even the beginner to figure out how long a motor will run on his battery without a charge. Two facts must be taken into consideration: the ampere hours of a battery and the amps drawn by the motor.

For instance, if a 60 ampere battery is purchased, that means the user gets 70 amps of use in one hour. If his electric motor draws only 10 amps on high speed, it means he can run his trolling motor for six hours straight on the 60 amp battery before it requires a charge.

Therefore, the higher amp battery purchased, the longer the trolling motor can run. But the angler should remember the more powerful the battery, the more it usually weighs.

The 12-24 volt systems are almost a necessity on heavy boats, especially if the fisherman wants to be able to hold his craft in windy conditions. But the 24 volt system requires two batteries.

Some anglers make the mistake of skimping on a battery once they purchase an electric trolling motor. The most common mistake is to purchase a car battery instead of a marine battery, which is designed to take frequent charges.

A marine battery stays hot through more charges without losing its original amp hours, while a car battery can deteriorate under continued charging.

Marine batteries also are safer because they are designed to take the beating handed a boat in rough water and there is less chance the battery will break and spill acid in the boat.

Migrating geese will be discouraged from stopping at the Horicon Marsh paradise in Wisconsin.

Horicon Marsh limits goose use

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources will de-emphasize management concepts that would encourage further development of the Canada goose concentration in east-central Wisconsin.

In a joint announcement Wednesday, Regional Director Jack Hemphill of the Service and Anthony Earl, secretary of the Wisconsin DNR, said the two agencies propose to reduce goose use of Horicon Marsh, the nucleus of Canada goose activity in the Badger state.

The wildlife officials said the objective of the joint management effort is to reduce the peak goose concentration at Horicon Marsh to 100,000 by 1980.

The Horicon goose flock, a portion of the Mississippi Valley goose population that winters in Illinois, keynotes a peculiar success in wildlife management.

The Mississippi Valley population increased from 45,000 in 1936 to recent post-hunting season peak populations of 300,000. The portion of the population using east-central Wisconsin mushroomed from zero to recent peak numbers exceeding 200,000 birds.

The rags-to-riches story is not without bittersweet impact in the 19 townships around Horicon Marsh. Much of the area is rated as Utopian goose habitat.

The goal to move geese out of the area is largely contingent on manipulating the food, water, and sanctuary on state and federal lands.

Before the concentration can be reduced, adjustments in the land and water features at Horicon would have to be made, the officials said.

Under the proposal, now in the work plan stage, lowland browse croplands would be permitted to revert to natural moist soil plant growth to reduce the availability of roosting and feeding areas. De-watering strategic portions of the marsh is another measure of the goose-management proposal.

Earl said the coop effort will focus on "reducing the peak concentration — not the population."

"Our chief concern is the resource," the DNR Secretary said. "Better distribution of the geese would reduce the potential threat of disease to the flock."

State and federal waterfowl managers fear the concentration makes the birds vulnerable to diseases such as fowl cholera and duck viral enteritis.

The officials said thinning the concentration would help alleviate crop losses in the private sector. However, Hemphill explained that weather must be considered when evaluating the problems of goose depredations.

"In dry years farmers normally harvest crops before the migrant geese congregate in the area," he said. "In wet years, the birds may have an opportunity to pilfer some of the standing crops, and some complaints can be expected."

Reducing goose use by 50 per cent and dispersing the flock from the Horicon Zone before December 5 is part of the strategy, Earl said.

The manipulation plan to reduce the goose flock has some hidden benefits for ducks. Upland agricultural fields on Horicon National Wildlife refuge and all state-managed areas in east-central Wisconsin will be converted to dense nesting cover. "Converted uplands would be unattractive to geese but would lend well to duck production," Hemphill said.

Widespred public interest in the geese is evident. When the birds wing into the area from summer nesting grounds in Canada, thousands of people visit Horicon to see the spectacle. Traffic congestion is a nagging problem in the area.

In spite of the planned reduction, Wisconsin will still have a sizeable goose population to enjoy. To most observers, the proposed change in the goose population would not be apparent, the officials said.

The agencies have not ruled out an increase in the hunting quota for the Horicon zone. "It would be premature to suggest an increase in the harvest quota at this time," Hemphill cautioned. "This door must be left open, but whether or not an increase in the harvest quota will be necessary is purely speculative at the moment."

The statewide harvest quota is established at 28,000 geese, of which 16,000 is assigned to the Horicon Quota Zone.

The state-federal changes planned for goosedom are expected to produce a more equitable use of the resource, particularly in states to the south — much to the anticipated chagrin and joys from mixed sentiments in the upper Midwest. Emotion is a factor in the Horicon story, the officials said.

In their joint announcement, Hemphill and Earl disclosed that an action plan encompassing a number of options is being prepared by the agencies. The options would be implemented in various combinations, depending on weather cycles and other factors, they said.

Unique tournament lures pheasant hunters

Illinois-Iowa Open gets a shot

Outdoors

Jim Cook
Outdoor Editor
394-2300

With events such as bass fishing, skeet shooting and fly fishing transforming the outdoor sportsman's world into an arena of professional competition, it was only a matter of time before pheasant hunting joined the sport-for-money lineup.

John M. Mullin, owner-manager of Arrowhead Hunting and Conservation Club in Goose Lake, Ia., has proposed the Iowa-Illinois Open Team Pheasant Hunting Championship, March 6-7.

The team concept is relatively unique to woods and waters enthusiasts who have rarely been forced to depend upon the skills of a partner.

A third required member of the team is a hunting dog — either of the pointing or flushing variety. The canine need not be pure-bred or registered, but better not have a cold this particular weekend, either.

After a team has paid its $120 entry fee by the deadline of Thursday, March 4, a drawing will be held during which time teams will be assigned one of two 40-acre fields of relatively equal habitat and size.

The competition is limited to 50 teams and, of course, no spectators will be allowed either at the clubhouse or near the hunting areas.

The rules are fairly simple, with emphasis on speed (the time it takes the dog to find and flush the birds), accuracy (hunters are allowed only 16 shells between them) and skill (only eight birds are released for each team).

A 30-minute time limit will accompany each team in the field with bonus points awarded for a team that bags its eight birds prior to the deadline and also for a team that uses less than its 16-shell allotment.

The drawing may be the key element of the contest since eight birds will be released before each team enters the field. If the team that kicks off the tournament fails to bag a bird, for example, the second team would likely have 16 targets to choose from.

The winning entry (provided the shootout draws 50 teams) will receive $625 plus two trophies while the runnersup cash for 30 per cent of the purse and third place 20 per cent.

Although Mullin insists he's catering to the ordinary hunter in such an event, that potential $625 first-place check could conceivably lure some of the top shorpshooters from the two-state area.

A judge will supervise each team's hunt to ensure proper etiquette and sportsmanship.

Obviously no birds may be shot on the ground and pheasants caught by the dog that are not shot in the air by the team won't count.

Birds caught after being shot will be counted if, in the judge's opinion, the bird was hit and the dog's activities are to be considered a retrieve of a wounded bird.

As is the case at most hunting preserves, hen pheasants may be taken, but a valid Iowa hunting license is required. The club offers a special $5 hunting preserve license that will suffice for the two-day hunt.

Interested hunters can receive additional information by calling or writing Mullin at Arrowhead Hunt Club, Goose Lake, Ia. 62750 or by calling 319—577-2267.

TEAMWORK will be emphasized during the Iowa-Illinois Open Team Pheasant Hunting Championship next weekend at Arrowhead Hunting Club in Goose Lake, Ia.

Ask Andy

How Andy picks questions to publish

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Eddie Perez, 11, of Huntington Beach, Calif., for his question:

HOW DOES ANDY SELECT QUESTIONS FOR THE COLUMN?

The column answers questions from readers between the ages of 7 and 17. Naturally, interested adults may read the column if they wish, but Andy does not answer their questions. He cannot even answer all the questions from his young pen pals, since it is possible to answer only two questions for the column each day.

Some people think that Andy runs a sort of contest for the best questions. This is just not so. Every thoughtful question is a good question, so trying to judge them is unfair. Since selecting just two questions each day is a difficult task, a few rules were established to make it as fair as possible for everyone.

First of all, Andy tries to pick questions that are likely to interest most of his faithful readers. As a rule, these questions are of two types. Some concern rare and fascinating subjects that nobody ever thought of asking about before. Others are popular favorites that many pen pals ask over and over again. Choosing a question that has been asked by only one reader is much easier than picking one posed by 20 or so readers — and this is when Andy checks his rulebook.

Let's say that 20 pen pals ask the question: "Why is the sky blue?" Andy knows that whichever letter he chooses, he might make 19 other readers sad or mad. So Andy reads each letter very carefully. Some of the letters are disqualified because the writing is almost unreadable. Fancy lettering and perfect spelling are not important in this case, but the words should be bold and clear so that Andy can read them without getting a headache.

Some pen pals write beautiful questions and then forget to sign their names. And many others forget to include their home address complete with ZIP code. Since the reader selected receives an award, this information is necessary. Many letters cannot be chosen because the writers forget to give their age. This is important because younger readers like simpler answers, while older readers enjoy deeper explanations.

By now possibly only two of the original 20 questions remain. Both pen pals included their name, age, address and ZIP code, and they were both easy for Andy to read. In this case Andy selects the letter that seems to be most polite and friendly. As you know, Andy is a great one for politeness.

It is also easier for Andy when you send your questions on post cards, instead of letters with hard-to-open envelopes. And when you use a post card, remember to put all the necessary information at the bottom — so that your name doesn't get canceled along with the stamp.

If your question was answered for someone else, please do not feel angry or sad. You asked one good question, and Andy is sure you can think of another. Who knows? One of yours may be selected very soon.

Andy sends a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Greg Cook, 11, Fredericton, N.B., Canada, for his question:

WHY CAN'T SOME ANIMALS LIVE IN CAPTIVITY?

A wild animal is just that — wild. He is free to wander, search, migrate and mate as his instincts direct him. True, he may remain in one particular area for his entire life, but that is a decision he has made for himself, not one that has been imposed on him. Wild animals often thrive in zoos and other restrictive circumstances, but some cannot adjust to being confined in any way. They become weak and listless, do not eat normally, cannot reproduce and sometimes die before their natural life span is reached.

Animals, like humans, vary enormously in disposition. One member of a species does not behave in exactly the same way as another. Zoologists have found that wild animals reared in captivity fare better than those who have had a taste of complete freedom. New facilities and methods for the care of captive animals are continually improving. Even so, there will probably always be some wild creatures who will only live successfully in total freedom.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

MAGIC PICTURES

Paint across a piece of white paper and watch a picture appear like magic! Here's the secret:

Put a sheet of waxed paper over smooth white paper (like typing paper). Draw a picture on the waxed paper. Use a pencil or the tip of a wooden spoon handle. Press very hard. Lift off the waxed paper.

Mix water color or tempera paint with some water in a cup. Paint over the paper. Your picture will appear!

Blue, green, or red paint will work better than yellow. Paint over each part of the paper only once. The picture may disappear if you go over the same spot too much. You may want to try using two colors of paint. Let them flow together to make a new color.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

There's more to ballet than tutus and tights

Stories by Jill Bettner

On recital night every little girl is an angel, but it takes a lot of hard work

"Positions, girls."

The command is given quietly but firmly by the stately woman who moves with the fluid grace of a dancer. She has lived the disciplined life of a ballerina since childhood. It is 4 p.m., precisely, and class will begin on time today as always.

The students, nine young ladies dressed in the required uniform of black leotard, pink tights and slippers, each with her hair secured neatly on top of her head, respond to her words instantly.

They line up quickly at the bar, turn to face their teacher and say in unison, "Bonjour, Madame."

It is a gesture of respect and part of the regular routine at the Galina Dance and Music Studio, Des Plaines, perhaps the only European-style ballet school in the Northwest suburbs.

Madame Galina presides here and insists on the same decorum in her mirror-lined classroom that existed in the Ukrainian Bolshoi-type school she attended as a child.

That was in Kharkow, the former capital of the Ukraine, back before the Russian troops moved into the country, when there were beautiful schools for serious students of the arts.

She entered one of them at the age of nine, and for the next nine years, spent at least two hours each day in the dancing studio besides attending academic classes, working toward her goal of becoming a professional dancer.

The rows of pictures that line the walls of her tiny office in the storefront studio at 1610 Linden St. are the rewards for those years. Madame Galina and her husband, Mr. Alex, (as he was known professionally) with Rudolph Nureyev, the Panovs, Margot Fonteyn. She knows them all.

Teachers advise: visit the dancing school before enrolling a child in class

Choosing a dancing school for your child from the wide variety of schools in the Northwest suburbs can be a confusing and difficult task.

There are at least 13 schools in this area alone, not to mention the scores of studios in nearby suburbs and the hundreds available in Chicago.

Nearly all schools offer ballet, tap and acrobatics, though some may provide instruction in other specialized types of dance such as modern jazz, Hawaiian, ballroom or ethnic dancing.

Schools differ widely in the size of classes, the number of instructors, dress required and the length and cost of lessons.

On the average, the charge is about $11 per month for a one-hour group lesson with about 10 students once a week. Some schools offer 45-minute classes or lessons that may be as long as 1½ or two hours. Most also provide semi-private or private lessons for an additional fee. Private lessons usually range from about $10.50 to $15 per hour.

To outfit a child for beginning combination dance classes that usually include some tap, ballet and acrobatics or tumbling, parents can expect to spend between $30 and $40. Leotards usually sell for about $7 to $10, depending on the size and style; tights are about $4 to $6; tap shoes may range from $10 to $15 and ballet shoes average $6 to $8. Instead of a leotard, the uniform for boys is usually a black or white T-shirt and black pants.

Many schools purchase the required clothing from dance suppliers or wholesalers and make the items available for sale to students.

Teachers agreed that there's no set procedure for choosing a good dancing school, but offered a few suggestions on.

here," she says in her soft guttural accent. "With the kind of training I had myself, I just can't stand to see something done just somehow. It has to be right. Sometimes I think people in this country don't understand what it means to have respect for a teacher, respect for a school."

Some parents she says have not understood or been able to see the reason for some of her rules — why students must wear pink tights and not white ones, for example, or why they must put their hair up for class.

"We don't believe in fooling around. The rules are not difficult, but they are my rules," she says. "I am the teacher and students should come here because they want to learn what I can teach. That, to me, is what a school is for. I have had a few complaints — not many — but some, and when I get them, I just say the door here opens both ways. Nobody has to stay."

Most of Madame Galina's students take three, four or even five lessons per week. Like most ballet teachers in the Northwest suburbs, she requires several years of classical ballet training before students are allowed to attempt toe dancing or go "sur les pointes."

Wearing those delicate, but for some painfully uncomfortable, shoes with the long satin ribbons that lace around the leg, seems to be the dream of every little girl who has the chance to take dancing lessons. But there's a lot involved in preparing a youngster for toe work.

Most schools in the area will accept students as young as three or four years old in classes that usually consist of some tap and acrobatics in addition to basic ballet moves. Some students may take the combination classes for several years before deciding to concentrate on ballet.

"All of our beginning students take the combination classes," says Sharon Kassel, owner and director of the Kassel School of Dance, Rolling Meadows. "Ballet, tap, acrobatics — they all help each other and help the teacher keep the short attention span of young children. Of course, we hope they'll develop an interest in going on with ballet in particular, but ballet is a difficult subject and to teach it right, you have to build up the muscles and the bones."

Allowing students, especially children, to wear toe shoes too soon — before their feet and spines are ready — can do serious damage, Ms. Kassel says. The Kassel school and many others require a physicians's statement before students can begin learning toe work.

"The beginning lessons are designed to be fun and enjoyable and to develop the body so that the child is ready for toe work when the time comes." she says.

In addition to learning the basics of ballet in those first years, students become familiar with the terms for each movement in French, the international language of ballet. By the time many students are seven or eight years old, they know to bend at the knees when the teacher says "plie," stretch a leg when she says "battement tendur" and have the "reverence," or dancer's curtsey, down pat in time for the annual dancing school recital.

Nearly all area schools have recitals, some more than once a year. It's a chance for mom, dad and the rest of the family to see what Susie is learning in dancing school and a chance for the young performer to acquire some poise and confidence before an audience.

Every little girl in tights and a tutu is a princess. For anxious mothers and fathers fidgeting in the audience at her dance recital, something magical happens when the big night finally arrives. Some undoubtedly are surprised to find that after months of delivering a freckle-faced tomboy with skinned up knees to dancing lessons week after week, the music starts and the curtain rises on a budding ballerina.

In the mind of each proud parent, there's only one star of the show. She may be the best slugger on the fifth grade baseball team and a holy terror in tennis shoes, but recital night in her dancing slippers, she's an angel.

The theme of the show and the routines it will include may be worked out as early as January for a June recital. From the moment it's decided the three-year-olds will play dancing bunnies and which advanced students will perform solos, work begins on building the show.

Patti Byrnes, director of Patti Byrnes' Dance Workshop, 274 Beau Dr., Des Plaines, prefers to give her students stage experience by having them perform in shows at area nursing homes.

"I don't like recitals myself," says the petite blonde who opened her studio over the cabana at the Bainbridge Apartments a few years ago after practically growing up on stages around the country. She appeared with her father then in a traveling act called "Byrnes and Patti" and still performs solo occasionally at industrial and trade shows in the Chicago area.

"I know a lot of teachers have big recitals every year and I've done them myself because parents say they like them, but it doesn't seem fair to ask parents to pay for recital tickets after they've been paying for lessons all year. I'd rather do shows at nursing homes where the kids can entertain senior citizens."

Ms. Byrnes believes in the value of performing experience as do other teachers who say there are a wide variety of social benefits to dancing lessons besides learning steps.

"Let's say a child comes to dancing school when she's fairly young. She may know she never wants to be a prima ballerina, but when she gets into high school and wants to be a cheerleader, she'll know how to move," Ms. Byrnes says. "To me, being able to move is the most important thing. I teach correct technique, but I don't stress it right away. Anybody can spend three years at the bar and look beautiful in positions, but what good is it if they can't move?"

what to look for when you're shopping around.

Dance studios are not required by law to be accredited by any particular agency. However, teachers may obtain certification from the Chicago Assn. of Dance Masters or belong to any of several dance organizations including the Cecchetti Council or the Ballet Guild. The affiliations are not required, but Sharon Kassel, director of Kassel School of Dance, Rolling Meadows, recommended that parents find out as much as possible about the professional involvment and background of a school's teachers before enrolling a child for lessons.

"A professional teacher is someone who's been on the stage and knows what the theatre is about plus someone who knows about children — not just somebody who decides to put a shingle out and call it a dancing school," she said.

Several teachers also suggested that parents visit a class or two to get an idea of how lessons are conducted and what may be expected of their child. Most teachers also arrange special days throughout the year when parents may sit in on lessons after a child is enrolled to enable them to monitor his or her progress.

"I would encourage anyone to observe a class before picking a school," Patti Byrnes said. "They should look to see that the students are not doing any exercises that could damage their legs especially. With the wrong exercises, muscles in a youngster can become overdeveloped. They need work that has the same amount of push and pull for muscle tone, not bulges."

"Of course, the other big thing to find out is when the teacher will allow students to go on pointe," she said. "I require at least three years of instruction and a child must be at least 10 years old. Their feet have to be ready, their body has to be ready and they have to know what they're doing. You can really do serious damage to a child by letting them go on their toes too early."

Some schools, such as Vivian's School of Music, Dance and Entertainment Services, Wheeling, offer nothing but private lessons. Vivian Pintacura, who runs the small school in her home at 1008 S. Wolf Rd., urged parents to consider the value of individualized instruction.

"I give nothing but private lessons because I was in both myself as a child and saw the difference," she said. "In private lessons, students are not self-conscious or worrying all the time about what everyone else is doing. It's good for them because they can work and progress at their own speed."

Whatever school is decided on, all the teachers agreed that parent involvement shouldn't end once the child is signed up for lessons or surface only around the time of recitals.

"A child has to have the continued encouragement of his pf rents to succeed in dance like anything else," Ms. Pintacura said. "The child who doesn't have it is usually the one who will lose interest and drop out after just a few months."

Dance studios are not required by law to be accredited by any particular agency. However, teachers may obtain certification from the Chicago Assn. of Dance Masters or belong to any of several dance organizations including the Cecchetti Council or the Ballet Guild. Jim Durham:

THE VOICE OF THE BULLS

by Bill Hill

The teletype machine was doing its usual thing — coughing out stories for the station's newscasters to read aloud for its listeners in central Illinois.

Since it was a Saturday morning, the stories were of little significance, just features and short "news fillers." The bells that give warning of important stories were silent.

But the noisy machine next to Jim Durham's desk couldn't be ignored. If he, or someone else, didn't take notice, the yellow paper being fed out of the top of the machine would soon overtake the small newsroom.

It was April 1973. Durham was using his day off at the Bloomington radio station to put together a special slide show for State Farm Insurance. Routinely, he tore off the wire stories and placed them on their proper hooks.

There was one that caught the 26-year-old sports announcer's attention. It, too, was not a "bell-ringer," BUT THE REPORT THAT Chicago Bulls basketball announcer Jack Fleming had quit his job with WIND radio in Chicago was certainly an eye-opener for Durham.

"I always kept my resume handy. I sat down, updated it, wrote a letter and sent in my demo tape. It was a long shot deal. But what did I have to lose. All they could say was 'No,'" says Durham.

More than 40 others also applied for the Bulls job, including at least nine announcers already broadcasting for National Basketball Assn. teams. Durham received a prompt reply thanking him for applying, but there was no further word and he "forgot all about it." But in July the announcement came that the job as Bulls announcer was his.

From rags to riches. Small town boy makes good. Anyone making it to the top in the highly-competetive broadcasting field has a similar rise-to-fame account. But for Durham, it is all true.

He grew up in Donovan, Ill., a small town (Pop. 343) settled among the corn fields southeast of Kankakee.

"Donovan is so small we didn't even have a village idiot. My brother and I had to take turns," Durham laughs.

"Since I was 10-years-old, I knew I wanted to be in sports. But I stopped growing when I was 5-8, and I couldn't hit a curve ball, so I started looking for another way to be involved with sports," he says.

"I knew I had the talent, or ham, that it takes in radio. But it also takes a lot of luck to get to the big leagues," says Durham.

And a lot of time. For Durham it involved a start at the campus radio station at Illinois State University, a clean-up boy, part-time disc jockey job at a small station in Normal, an afternoon drive-time D.J. spot in Peoria, and (after almost two years in the U.S. Army) a short stint in Salina, Kan.

"Kansas and I didn't get along," he says, so he jumped at the chance to join WJBC in Bloomington. He worked there for three years as the station's sports director, with the additional job of evening disc jockey if he was not broadcasting a game. "I worked at night, no matter what," he says.

Durham then reached the big leagues — three years ago at the age of 26. Then, and now, he holds the distinction of being the youngest announcer in the league.

He looks even younger than he is, and his enthusiasm further disguises his age. Usually he talks basketball, completely serious and straight-forward, though he occasionally throws in a fine imitation of Howard Cosell.

He speaks with confidence, but never hestitates to emphasize how lucky he was to land the Bulls job.

"I was one of the few guys who knew no one, took a shot in the dark, and made it. Phil Nolan (WIND general manager) was taking a big chance on me. In the broadcast world, who was I? I was a nobody," says Durham.

But he was an instant success, says Nolan, who calls Durham "one of the two best announcers in the league," along with Chick Hearn of the Los Angeles Lakers.

"I prefer Jim's style," Nolan says. "He's totally in control of himself. He gets excitement and emotion into his voice without getting unglued. He doesn't miss a thing by getting carried away. He always gives a coherent word-picture of the game."

As the "Voice of the Bulls," Durham broadcasts all 82 regular season games, several exhibition games and any playoff games each year. When he is in Chicago, he also gives three sports reports on morning radio.

The lifestyle of the Durham family has, obviously, changed since leaving Bloomington. The mobile home days have been left behind; the family of four now has a home in Hanover Park. But he is not there much during the season.

"The travel is a little tough," he says. "I don't mind the physical toll of traveling; eventually it becomes numbing, going endlessly from games to hotels, to airports, to games. All I do is follow the tall guys.

"But you don't really think about all the traveling that much. Not until you go home and your son doesn't know who you are. That's when you stop and think," he says.

It's just part of the price he must pay, as is living in the Chicago area, which he says he doesn't like: "For someone raised on a farm, it's a tough adjustment."

But he's right at home when it becomes game-time. He usually works alone, although former Bulls player John "Red" Kerr provides color commentary at most home games.

"The Bulls haven't scored in a month," is the Durham-style for describing

From tip-off to the final buzzer, Durham gives fans a "word picture" of the game. The non-stop chatter can be tiring. "It becomes numbing going from games, to hotels, to airports. All I do is follow the tall guys."

Envelope honors farmer

Bicentennial Era The American Farmer

The U.S. Postal Service will release an embossed envelope honoring the American Farmer in ceremonies March 15 during the annual convention of the National Farmers Union in New Orleans.

The 13-cent envelope is the third in the Bicentennial Era series which includes the American Seafaring Tradition envelope issued last October and the American Homemaker envelope released Feb. 2.

The new issue is on brown laid-finish stock and carries a brown silhouette of a plow with a green indicia depicting a sheaf of wheat.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Farmer Envelope, Postmaster, New Orleans, LA 70113" enclosing the proper remittance which is 15-cents per envelope. Collectors should also enclose self-addressed, stamped envelopes so the new issue can be returned to them under cover. Postal officials will supply the new issue in the standard 6¾ size unless collectors specifically request the larger No. 10 envelope.

Stamp notes

by Bernadine M. Rechner

The United Nations Postal Administration (UNPA) will mark the 30th anniversary of the World Federation of United Nations Associations (WFUNA) with the release of a commemorative stamp March 12.

The adhesive will be issued in three denominations — the U.S. 13-cent and 26-cent and the Swiss F.s. 0,90.

On the same date, the UNPA will issue a souvenir card marking the WFUNA anniversary. Cards are available in mint condition ($1.00 each), canceled/New York with a new issue 13-cent stamp affixed ($1.18) and canceled/Geneva with a new issue F.s.0,90 adhesive affixed.

Requests for first day cancellations and souvenir cards should go to "The United Nations Postal Administration, United Nations, New York, NY 10017."

BANKAMERICARD

Rare coins to be displayed

A rare Bicentennial collection of 1776 coins and currency, valued at more than $10,000, will be on display at the Continental Bank in Chicago starting Monday.

The collection, on exhibit through March 26, consists of Continental and Colonial currency and coins from 35 foreign countries including France, England, Germany, Holland, Spain, Ireland and Malta.

Highlighted in the exhibit is a Continental dollar struck in pewter, the first silver dollar size coin ever proposed for the U.S. The display can be viewed during regular banking hours from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the second floor of the bank, 231 S. LaSalle.

Diamond cutter shows skills at jewelry store

Thomas Mills, a diamond cutter, will demonstrate his skills Thursday and Friday at Persen and Robbin Jewelers, 24 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Born in Wheaton, Mills is a graduate of the American School of Diamond Cutting in Gardnerville, Nevada. His tools include a cast iron wheel, a wooden tang (pronounced tongue), which holds the adjustable copper wire upon which the dop rests. Dops are designed to hold the diamond at different angles as the wheel cuts it.

Mills will demonstrate his technique from noon to 8 p.m.

Local group plans theater party

Reservations are now being taken for the Hoffman Estates Park District's Adult Tour Group which will see "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers" at Drury Lane North Theatre April 17.

The comedy, at Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort, stars Shelia McCrae and Jack Heller. Included in the trip package is a prime rib dinner.

Reservations must be made today or Sunday by visiting or writing the park district office, 650 W. Higgins Rd. Cost is $20 per person. The bus will leave the district office parking lot at 6:15 p.m. and return at 1:30 a.m.

WTTW previews the movies

by Karen Blecha

If you're like most people, you don't like to waste money on a bad movie.

To solve your problem, at least this week, WTTW-Channel 11 has a show for you. "Opening Soon . . . At A Theater Near You," Monday at 7 p.m., previews four of the new movies in town. The films get basically good recommendations from critics Roger Ebert and Gene Siskel. And to balance the program, they throw in their choices for "Dog of the Month," movies that at all costs should be avoided.

Ebert and Siskel give their opinions on one violent film, two family shows and the latest effort of director Francois Truffaut.

Movies reviewed include Martin Scorsesse's "Taxi Driver," starring Robert De Nero which Siskel considers a violent film; John Huston's "The Many Who Would Be King," a swashbuckling extravaganza with Michael Caine and Sean Connery; "The Story of Adele H.," about Victor Hugo's youngest daughter who eventually cracks up like most of Truffaut's women; and "Hester Street," the story of a Jewish immigrant family in New York featuring Oscar nominee for best actress, Carol Kane.

The critics, sitting in a mock-up of a movie theater designed by the Channel 11 crew, present their views with wit and humor, pull no punches and don't always agree. They also throw in their opinions about who should win the Academy Awards in March.

Half of the show is devoted to film clips, so if you don't agree with what the critics have to say you can at least get an idea of what's in the movies. Some of the words have been bleeped, but it's easy to decipher what's missing.

This will be the first time Channel 11 has broadcast the show. Producers are considering making it a regular series, but have no definite plans.

Roger Ebert and Gene Siskel take a look at the new movies in town.

'Young Pioneers'

Producer hopes to attract teen viewers

by Vernon Scott

Producer Ed Friendly hopes to capture television's turned-off set, the high school and college age group who don't dig kid programs and are bored by cop shows and sitcoms.

He thinks he's found the answer with a television movie, "Young Pioneers," which could become a series.

It's the story of an 18-year-old boy and a 16-year-old girl who marry and head for the Dakota Territory circa 1873. If the film wins high ratings Monday at 7 p.m., ABC will make it a series in the fall.

Friendly says he snagged the post-pubescent crowd as co-producer of "Laugh-In" and is convinced he can lure them back again with a series based on the forerunners of today's restless young people.

"This isn't a western," said Friendly, a former NBC executive. "And it's more than a love story.

"There's a corollary between modern youngster and the two principals. Kids have a yearning to split from their families and crowded cities to head out on their own.

"A hundred years ago they packed their belongings in wagons and headed west. Today they escape in vans or motorcycles to the Northwest or Alaska. Some of them are still homesteading.

"It's a basic drive to return to the land, to seek old values.

"Young people haven't changed over the last century in these respects. Today's kids can identify with the couple. They can't identify with characters on most shows, so they simply don't watch."

Friendly, who originated and produced "Little House on the Prairie," is convinced his casting of that show insured its success. He was equally meticulous in finding the right faces for "Young Pioneers."

His casting director interviewed 400 young actors and actresses for the lead roles. Friendly talked to 80 prospects and had 40 of them read for the parts. Seven were eventually screen tested.

"It's not enough to bring two strangers together and have them play a young couple in love convincingly," he said.

"So I called a meeting of the four girls and three guys who were in the running for the parts. I had them exchange telephone numbers and told them to read the scenes together over the weekend and work on the lines, first with one partner and then another for the tests.

"The two who came off best as a team would get the roles. As it turned out, Linda Purl and Roger Kern were the ones who set sparks flying. They were signed for the parts."

Friendly hopes his new offering will appeal to the entire family despite the fact that it is aimed primarily for the age group which prefers movies to television.

In order to capture respectable ratings the show must attract a broad demographic spectrum.

"Younger kids can anticipate the sense of adventure we're dealing with," Friendly said. "Older people have already gone through that stage of life and can enjoy it again in retrospect. It will also give them some insight into what is going on with their own offspring."

He has another problem. ABC-TV has ordered 25 pilots for next season. Friendly's series will be competing with them for air time.

"The trend is still toward half-hour situation comedy," he acknowledged. "But the pendulum has swung too far in that direction. It's bound to swing back again to the long form.

"The network has ordered more scripts for future episodes of our show, which is a good sign. There is no violence or sex in our film so there won't be any trouble with the family hour time period."

Friendly is a knowledgeable producer, but he may lose the audience he is seeking in the first episode. Today's kids often are turned off by marriage and just head for the hills to live together without benefit of clergy.

Perhaps some of them did that too back in 1873, but he couldn't put it on the air.

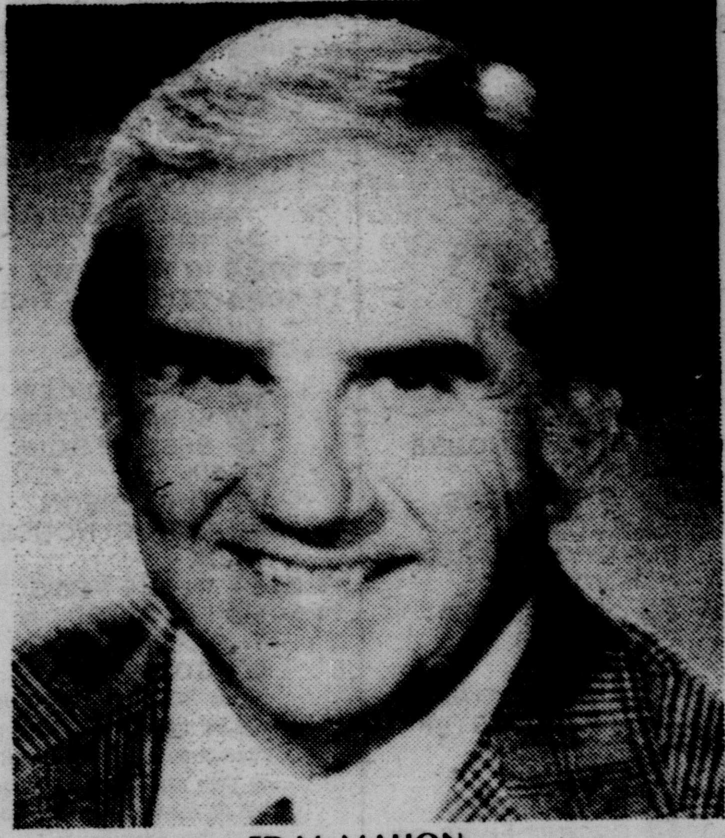
McMahon's really a tea-totaler



ED McMAHON

HOLLYWOOD (UPI — Ed McMahon plays a lush in a new movie and the wise guys nod their heads and cry, "Type casting."

For better or worse, jolly Ed shares Dean Martin's reputation as a world class toper.

During 14 years as Johnny Carson's sidekick on the 'Tonight Show" Ed has been kidded for schlepping sauce on a gargantuan scale.

Whever he lifts a coffee cup on the show the audience titters. They know McMahon, like Jackie Gleason, is sipping 98 proof firewater. Booze jokes are tailor made for the big, bluff Irishman.

Strangers are compelled to send a round of drinks to Ed and his girlfriend whenever they show up at a restaurant.

He's been accused of being a test pilot for National Distillers.

Ed's heard more gags about the size and condition of his liver than a French doctor at Vichy. If his eyes are puffy from the Los Angeles smog, it is taken for granted McMahon is nursing a hangover.

In "Dick and Jane" Ed plays a businessman souse with such authority he is certain to add to his legend as a two-fisted drinker.

The prospect doesn't bother Ed a bit.

"My image as a heavy drinker has given me a good relationship with the American public," he said soberly in the Burbank Studios commissary during the noonday break. "People feel they can sit down and have a drink with me. It gives us a common bond."

Ed had just completed a scene with costars Jane Fonda and George Segal and had sipped a glass of champagne celebrating Segal's birthday.

"Just one glass," he hastened to say.

"There's no way anybody could drink as much as I get credit for and still be walking around. Or even crawling around."

Ed's apartment at the beach recently burned, forcing him to move. There were unfounded rumors the blaze was caused by spontaneous combustion of alcoholic fumes.

His association with a national brewery as a television pitchman hasn't dimmed Ed's reputation as a drunk either. But he takes it all good naturedly. He feels it's better to have that image with the public than no identification at all.

"The whole thing has added pizzazz and color to my career," he said.

"It's true, that isn't coffee in the cup I drink from on the show. It's tea. Just plain tea."

He patted his abdomen and said he had lost 35 pounds in recent years.

"No one can lose as much weight as I have and drink very much," he said. "And I work too hard to pay away as much booze as I get credit for. These days I drink mostly white wine.

"I haven't missed a 'Tonight Show' since we went on the air. It's tough enough trying to keep up with Johnny Carson sober. It would be impossible to try if I were drunk.

"Almost every weekend I fly out of town to do my nightclub act. And I have a contract with a company that builds shopping malls. I appear at eight mall opeings a year.

"On top of that I play Las Vegas four to six weeks a year. And I'd hate to walk on stage with a snootful."

Dramatic acting is a new wrinkle in Ed's career. He previously played a straight role in "The Incident" eight years ago and would like to do more picture work.

"It's not an easy thing for me to do," he said. "My scenes in this movie have to be juggled to fit my schedule on the 'Tonight Show.' I leave here at 4:30 every day and rush over to NBC in time to introduce Johnny.

"He is a constant source of delight to me. He's full of surprises and I have to be on my toes at all times."

Has he ever showed up three sheets to the wind for his catch phrase, "Heeeeeer's Johnny!"

"Not once," he concluded, raising a glass of ice tea. "And I'll drink to that."

Bonnie Franklin

Could you please tell me all you can about Bonnie Franklin, who's on the series "One Day at a Time" and print her picture?

R.B.

Sure. Bonnie, who plays Ann Romano on that series, began entertaining as a child. At age four, she was doing Shakespeare and five years later she was the tap dancing protege of Donald O'Connor. By the time she was a teenager, she made TV appearances as an actress and dancer. She continued to perform in musicals and plays throughout her college career.

Bonnie feels that 1969 was a blossoming year in her career. Since that time, she has starred in Broadway and off-Broadway productions, on TV, and in regional theater productions. She won the Theater World Award, the Outer Critics Circle Award, the Aegis Theater Award and a Tony Award nomination for her performance in "Applause" on Broadway.

Bernadette Peters

A holy man changed her life

Bernadette Peters is a name of the future.

She is a young, blonde, well-endowed New Yorker who soon will be seen in three movies and a Norman Lear television series which has a good chance to make the CBS lineup.

Bernadette has a kewpie doll face which doubtless encouraged her to collect the old-fashioned dolls. She is, however, a new-fashioned girl in her 20s who found it difficult to find a job a year ago.

A success on Broadway in "Mack & Mabel" with Robert Preston, Bernadette moved to Hollywood for a shot at the movies. There was no fanfare of trumpets, no producers with contracts awaiting her at the plane.

She landed a good role with Cliff Robertson in "Ace Eli and Rogers of the Skies," a forgettable picture which, she says, was released for a single day before being shelved as a disaster. Next was a small part in "The Longest Yard."

"Then nothing," she said. "For two years I couldn't find any work at all.

"But while I was in New York doing a night club act last May I met a holy man who changed my life. He doesn't represent any organized religion. It's just meditation and truth. Ever since my association with him my career has been booming,"

Bernadette chose not to reveal the name of the mysterious man. She did, however, say their relationship was strictly platonic.

"All the good things that are happening to me now are not coincidence," she said. "I wore glasses before I met him. Now I don't need them anymore.

"And I'm not surprised at the sudden boom of my career. It's all due to my strong belief in God. I'd never been religious before I met the holy man."

It is suspected her new found devotion to vegetarianism may be due to his influence as well.

Bernadette, who was reared in Queens, is a singer as well as an actress. Since falling under the spell of the holy man she has performed on "The Carol Burnett Show" and "Cher."

Additionally, she has worked in "Maude," "All in the Family" and "McCloud" for television.

In 1975 she played key roles in "W. C. Fields and Me" and "Vigilante Force." Now she has a top part in Mel Brooks' new feature film, "The Silent Movie."

Surely as important as the man with the message in her life is the influence of producer Norman Lear who is not on record as a holy man but surely is a sorcerer with five hits going for him on the tube.

BERNADETTE PETERS

Lear is not a vegetarian either but he knows new talent when he sees it.

Bernadette's off-beat flair for comedy inspired him to cast her with Richard Crenna in the new series, "Strange Bedfellows."

"It's the first situation comedy based on politics. I play a 23-year-old free lance girl photographer. Dick plays a Washington, D.C., columnist. My character is very liberal and he's an arch conservative."

Bernadette, is single, unconventional and reminiscent of Clara Bow in appearance. She lives alone in the Hollywood Hills and is learning to operate a camera for her role in the show.

She pulled an expensive 35mm camera from her handbag and took several pictures in the very dark restaurant where she was having lunch.

"I think I'm doing pretty well," she said. "Of course none of my pictures have been developed, but I think I look professional."

Shelby Lyman on chess

Are you suffereing from the Bicentennial doldrums? A bit tired perhaps of uninspired reenactments of the Revolution and the trinketism that accompanies them?

If you play chess even a bit, you may like the following somewhat tongue-in-cheek project.

A group of Boston chessplayers, through the agency of the Boylstron Chess Club, has challenged the city of London to a Bicentennial telephone match, a "bloodless replay of the American Revolution."

If British chauvinism runs to form and the Londoners accept, a very good match could ensue. Boston boasts one U.S. Open Champion Norman Weinstein at first board, while the redcoats have a reservoir of ex-British champions available.

And there are distinct possibilities of television coverage here at home.

Some Bostonians, however, seem concerned. "What will happen they argue, if we should lose?"

Why you'll be forced to swallow your own poisoned pawns, that's what!

Hint and Explanation for Beginner's Corner: Black's king is exposed, and his rook though powerful-looking is undefended.

The 1975 U.S.S.R. Champion Tigran Petrosian lost only one game in this year's 16 round event. But in that loss the careful Armenian grandmaster was tornadoed off the board.

Solve-It: A smart sacrifice of a knight by his opponent Romanishin (16.N-Q5!) opened vital lines leading to Petrosian's king. White's rooks, bishops, and queen had a field day, though analysis may yet show there was an adequate defense. The sacrifice of the knight accelerated and freed the white forces for the attack, while black's cramped army could only twist and turn with lesser effect.

The perplexing question in such situations, "Who stands better, the defender material ahead or his opponent pressing the attack?" is never easy to answer.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

When your partner leads the king of a suit against a suit contract you are supposed to play high with a doubleton in order to ask your partner to continue the suit and let you ruff the third lead.

East knew this play very well. He didn't know that there was no reason to give this come-on signal when you really didn't want to ruff so he played his eight of hearts at trick one.

West continued with the ace and another heart and East ruffed happily. Then he looked around for new worlds to conquer but there weren't any. South got in, drew trumps and eventually discarded a diamond on dummy's queen of hearts.

Now look what would have happened if East had played his deuce of hearts. West would have shifted to another suit and probably to a diamond. East would get a trick with his king and his trick plus two hearts and a trump would have cooked South's goose.

by Oswald and James Jacoby

When your partner leads the king of a suit against a suit contract you are supposed to play high with a doubleton in order to ask your partner to continue the suit and let you ruff the third lead.

East knew this play very well. He didn't know that there was no reason to give this come-on signal when you really didn't want to ruff so he played his eight of hearts at trick one.

West continued with the ace and another heart and East ruffed happily. Then he looked around for new worlds to conquer but there weren't any. South got in, drew trumps and eventually discarded a diamond on dummy's queen of hearts.

Now look what would have happened if East had played his deuce of hearts. West would have shifted to another suit and probably to a diamond. East would get a trick with his king, and his trick plus two hearts and a trump would have cooked South's goose.

Shelby Lyman on chess

Are you suffereing from the Bicentennial doldrums? A bit tired perhaps of uninspired reenactments of the Revolution and the trinketism that accompanies them?

If you play chess even a bit, you may like the following somewhat tongue-in-cheek project.

A group of Boston chessplayers, through the agency of the Boylstron Chess Club, has challenged the city of London to a Bicentennial telephone match, a "bloodless replay of the American Revolution."

If British chauvinism runs to form and the Londoners accept, a very good match could ensue. Boston boasts one U.S. Open Champion Norman Weinstein at first board, while the redcoats have a reservoir of ex-British champions available.

And there are distinct possibilities of television coverage here at home.

Some Bostonians, however, seem concerned. "What will happen they argue, if we should lose?"

Why you'll be forced to swallow your own poisoned pawns, that's what!

Hint and Explanation for Beginner's Corner: Black's king is exposed, and his rook though powerful-looking is undefended.

The 1975 U.S.S.R. Champion Tigran Petrosian lost only one game in this year's 16 round event. But in that loss the careful Armenian grandmaster was tornadoed off the board.

Solve-It: A smart sacrifice of a knight by his opponent Romanishin (16.N-Q5!) opened vital lines leading to Petrosian's king. White's rooks, bishops, and queen had a field day, though analysis may yet show there was an adequate defense. The sacrifice of the knight accelerated and freed the white forces for the attack, while black's cramped army could only twist and turn with lesser effect.

The perplexing question in such situations, "Who stands better, the defender material ahead or his opponent pressing the attack?" is never easy to answer.

Searching for Bicentennial bad taste

LUCKENBACH, Tex. — So many entries are coming into the National Buy-Centennial Bad Taste contest that Mayor Hondo Crouch thinks his city, pop:. 3, may even get its post office back.

The once-active post office has received stacks of letters from throughout the nation with suggestions for the most flagrant commercial abuse of the bicentennial theme.

Awards for the best suggestions will be given during a Leap Year Day National Non-Bicentennial celebration Sunday.

Luckenbach proclaimed itself the nation's first National Non-Bicentennial City last August and decreed that "no man, woman, child or animal is permitted to walk through the streets dressed in an Uncle Sam suit; no red, white and blue souvenirs made in China, Taiwan or Uganda are sold; no federal funding is spent on anything."

"We had our own post office awhile ago and even our own individual zip code, but the bureaucrats took it away because of a lack of business," Crouch said. Mail to and from Luckenbach now is routed through nearby Fredericksburg.

"Looks as though this volume business will get it back for us in this Buy-Centennial year," said Crouch.

Letters to the National Non-Bicentennial Commission now are sent to Luckenbach, Tex. 78624, via Fredericksburg.

Jack Harmon, a publicist and one of several San Antonio residents helping the three Luckenbachians carry off the spoof, said that judging from early nominations it may be tough to decide on a Buy-Centennial Bad Taste Award.

One entry quoted a Chicago radio commentator as saying, "Let's cut out the pretense. After all, aren't we all in it for the buck?"

Other suggestions include the inventors of red, white and blue devices, Christmas trees, beer cans, cigar boxes, caskets and other objects too personal for public mention, Harmon said.

"We are confident we have not yet plumbed the depths of commercial abuse of the Bicentennial, even though we have seen examples of bad taste that boggle our minds," Harmon said.

"Two weeks ago I would have sworn I never would have seen anything worse than a Buy-Centennial toilet seat," he added.

"Nothing will surprise me now."

JIM DURHAM:

a scoring drought during a game. But his description of the game is not cluttered with the overused clinches that mark the accounts of most announcers. His concise, coherent style is a reason for his popularity, Nolan says.

Durham points to the fact that he had plenty of practice perfecting his play-by-play announcing. At Bloomington, he worked more than 100 basketball games a year by covering high schools in both Bloomington and Normal, as well as Illinois State University and Illinois Wesleyan University.

But he never tires of the game. Nolan calls Durham "a student of the game." He attends many of the Bulls practices to know in advance what plays are likely to be used, and he studies intently the styles of opposing players in the league.

"Pro basketball players are the greatest athletes in the world," Durham says. "I used to think college basketball was more exciting. I thought the pros were so good, but dull. But in three years at the pro level, I've learned more basketball than I could have in a lifetime."

Though the style of play is different, Durham says he did not adjust his style of announcing. That was not what worried him about the Bulls job. Coach Dick Motta did.

"I knew I had to do a show with him every game, so I really wondered how he'd accept me. I wondered what type of guy he really was.

"He had a reputation of violence and quick temper, but he's nothing like what you read about him. We hit it off great. We're just two farm boys from small, unknown towns," Durham says.

The job can get tough, though, when the Bulls are losing often, he says.

"But I'm in the business of entertaining. I still have an audience. I can't let myself get down. Of course, I'm still a reporter so I can't look past the negative, but I have to look for the bright spots."

It is the best job in the world, he says.

"It sure beats working. I mean, I get paid to go out and watch guys play games. I get to see the greatest athletes in the world. If you're not moved by that and appreciate that every night of the season, then you've got no right to be in this business."

Millions spent to keep kids, schools safe

by MARILYN McDONALD

If your child's school caught fire today, would he make it out alive?

Ninety-five teachers and students perished in 1958 when Our Lady of the Angels Catholic School in Chicago went up in flames on a cold December morning. The tragedy — that made headlines across the nation — was also the catalyst that brought about legislation to make school buildings safe.

The issue took on added urgency six months after the fire when the Illinois Supreme Court ruled in a school accident case that a public school district could be held liable for its negligence.

The Illinois Health and Life Safety Code was adopted by the Illinois General Assembly 11 years ago and sets minimum standards of construction and safety for public schools in the state.

MAXIMUM OCCUPANCY, requirements for smoke screen barriers, fire detection, alarm and sprinkler systems and construction material standards are included in the code. Local school districts are spending millions of dollars to put their buildings into compliance.

"I think it's a good program that looks after the lives of teachers and pupils, said James Monroe, director of building and grounds for Arlington Heights Dist. 25. "Most local fire and safety codes try to protect the building, the firemen and then the people," he said.

But Robert Hayes, a member of the state committee that drew up the life-safety code, remembers when the code was not popular.

Hayes, an assistant county superintendent of schools who is now responsible for enforcing the code in all 720 suburban public schools, talks about the school districts' fight in the state Supreme Court against the code, and the way the code was weakened to enforce only "minimum standards" of safety.

A STATE COMMITTEE spent five years researching school safety, producing a life-safety code in June 1964. Public school officials balked at working with the regulations, protesting the new safeguards would cost too much to enforce.

Sometimes, life-safety inspections reveal the poor construction of schools hastily built in the days when school populations were booming. Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 officials spent $15,000 bringing Blackhawk School, 370 Illinois Blvd., Hoffman Estates, into life-safety compliance in 1971, but decided to close the school after this year because of the building's poor construction.

"The school is safe," said Marvin Lapicola, Dist. 54 assistant superintendent for finances. "But the classrooms are too small and there is a lack of storage space in the school. The thing that saved it from being totally unacceptable is that there is an outside door in each room."

Blackhawk's pupils will be sent to the new Enders-Salk School when it opens in the fall.

LAPICOLA, HOWEVER, said the $15,000 spent on Blackhawk's life-safety work was not wasted. "I feel that the four years of added safety in the building certainly was worth $15,000," he said.

In Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, the high cost of renovating Cardinal Drive School, 2300 Cardinal Dr., Rolling Meadows, is forcing board members to think twice about keeping the school open.

Faced with spending $303,989 to renovate Cardinal Drive, amost as

Sue Ann Sulaski — a leapyear baby.

For Leap Year girl, birthdays are special

by TONI GINNETTI

Sue Ann Sulaski is 19 going on 5.

Er, that is, she's 4 going on 20.

Well, actually, she's 4 going on 5 and 19 going on 20 both . . . at the same time.

And it's all because her birthday is Feb. 29.

Sue Ann is a Leap Year baby, one of those rare individuals who timed their birth for a day that only comes around once every four years.

WHEN YOUR BIRTHDAY occurs that seldom, years take on a different significance.

And while most will be thinking of this year as the nation's time to celebrate, to Sue Ann, 545 Gateshead South Ln., Elk Grove Village, 1976 is her year — a birthday year.

"I guess I've looked forward to 1976 because I knew it was going to be a birthday year," Sue Ann says. "You think of years in terms of 'birthday years.' "

Like 1972, when Sue Ann had both her "fourth" and "Sweet Sixteen" birthdays — and got her driver's license to boot.

Or nonbirthday 1974 when she graduated — at age 4½ — from Elk Grove High School.

HOW DOES A CHILD feel growing up and only getting a birthday once every four years? For Sue Ann, now a clerical employe at Fountain Products, Elk Grove Village, the novelty was never disappointing.

"My parents always explained it when I was young that it was something special. I was always told that it was something special not everybody gets to have and because it was explained that way, all my friends used to wish they could have been born on that day, too."

But being a Leap Year baby has led to some awkward situations sometimes, Sue Ann admits.

"You know how some movies you can't get in to see unless you're a certain age? We kid about things like I can only see the 'G' movies."

And when people find out her birth date, the reaction is always the same.

" 'Oh, you're a Leap Year baby,' they say. And they ask how old I am and I say '4.'

"I TRIED TO GET a license plate with my birth date on it, but they didn't give it to me."

The candles on this year's cake will be glowing for the fifth official celebration of her Feb. 29, 1956 birth. And as is the family's custom, Sue Ann will get the red carpet treatment.

"The family does something special for me like give special presents or things like that," she says. "What they're planning this year is a big dinner. That will be my special present. The whole family will get together on that day."

The family will include Sue Ann's parents; brothers, Ted, 16,

No serious violations found

Greens code check to take month

Cook County officials said it will take about a month before inspections are completed for alleged building, fire and safety code violations at the Greens of Golf Mill apartment complex, Maine Township.

An investigation into alleged building, fire and health code violations at the complex, 8884 Stevens Dr., was ordered last month by County Board Pres. George Dunne after he met with representatives of the Greens Tenants' Assn., a group formed last fall to improve conditions at the complex.

County officials have said they have discovered some violations at the complex, but nothing of a "critical nature."

KEITH MARVIN, president of the tenants' group, Wednesday said he would not comment on the county's findings until officials complete inspections in the 127-building complex.

"I've talked to the inspectors, and they've told me most of the things they have found are minor," he said. "I think that I would rather reserve judgment on that until they are finished.

"I think there are more than just minor violations here," Marvin said. "I think there are some major problems."

Complex residents have complained about rodents, poor security, poor garbage pickup, poor maintenance and dirty drinking water.

Raymond Welsh, county deputy building commissioner, Wednesday said no violations that endanger health or life have been found at the complex.

"WE HAVE FOUND none of the health problems the residents talked about," he said. "We have uncovered nothing along the lines of roaches, rats or mice in any of the buildings we have inspected so far."

He said the inspection crew is able to inspect three buildings a day, and estimates the inspections at the complex will be completed in about a month.

County officials said the apartment management is being notified of all code violations, and will be told to correct them or face court action.

Officials from the Littlestone Co., the firm that manages the complex, have refused to recognize the tenants' group or respond to its charges. The complex is owned by U.S. Managers Inc., a California firm.

Welsh and other county officials have said they believe many of the problems at the complex could be solved if the tenants' group met with the apartment management.

What's a name? Dist. 214 hopes for prestige

How about "Meadow Grove Heights Dist. 214?"

Do you like "Tri-Township Dist. 214?"

Maybe "The Towers High Schools?"

All this name-dropping is the result of a contest sponsored by what is now called "Township High School Dist. 214" in an effort to come up with a new name and insignia to enhance the image of the school district.

ENTRIES FOR "Project Image" began flowing into the district office in December. The deadline, which was Friday, has been extended to mid-March. A selection committee

Heat wave breaks records, but winter skies will return

Records are kept to be broken and the weather did just that Friday. It was the hottest Feb. 27 since 1896, when the temperature hit only 58 degrees.

That's cool compared to the 74 degrees recorded at O'Hare Airport Friday afternoon.

It was an afternoon for shedding coats, catching some rays and expecting an early spring. But the forecast begs to contradict.

The National Weather Service predicts wet snow for Sunday in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and lower Michigan with the temperatures in the upper 30s or lower 40s.

But there will be a slight lull before shades of winter return. Today should be partly cloudy and warm with highs in the upper 40s or lower 50s.

And that's a lot warmer than the normal high of 38 degrees. So whether March's lamb or lion appears, he should be prepared to shed his coat. It might prove too warm.

Flu bug reaches epidemic stage

ATLANTA (UPI) — Influenza reached epidemic proportions in the United States last week, claiming 875 lives, 339 above the epidemic threshold, the national Center for Disease Control said Friday.

Heaviest outbreaks of the illness were reported in the Northeast, Middle Atlantic, Pacific and western Mountain regions of the nation.

The CDC explained the 875 figure included 536 flu deaths that normally could be expected this time of year, plus 339 believed caused by the current epidemic.

The previous week flu-like illnesses claimed 711 lives, 533 of which were expected and 178 of which were blamed on the current outbreak.

THIS WEEK MARKED the second consecutive week this flu season the death rate has been above what the CDC terms the epidemic threshold, and Don Barreth, CDC information officer, confirmed that the disease has now reached epidemic proportions.

Medical authorities, meanwhile, were conducting intensive investigations to determine if a new swine-type flu virus first found in New Jersey poses a potentially serious national health problem.

But there was growing evidence that the outbreak of the new virus may have been limited to its original site, Ft. Dix, N.J., although blood tests showed exposures to the A-swine flu have occurred in Tennessee and Wisconsin.

The national Center for Disease Control said influenza cases, caused primarily by the A-Victoria flu virus, were occurring in all states with the exception of Maine, Rhode Island and North Carolina.

THE A-VICTORIA strain is similar to influenza viruses which caused flu epidemics in recent years and can be guarded against by use of the current flu vaccine. The swine-type flu, however, is a new mutation for which there is no effective vaccine.

The swine-type virus is believed to be similar to the strain that caused the 1918-1919 influenza pandemic. That outbreak claimed 20 million lives worldwide.

Most of the A-Victoria flu deaths this past week, the CDC said, were in the New England and Middle Atlantic states, where influenza reached near-epidemic proportions.

For the first time, the Pacific and Mountain regions showed pneumonia and flu deaths above the epidemic threshold.

The CDC said 15 states reported widespread outbreaks of influenza, another 18 listed regional activity and 14 reported isolated cases. States hardest hit by the illness were Alaska, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, Mississippi, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Washington.

93126 312314

The color drawn was:

Yellow

Matching the 2-digit number is worth $5. Matching the 3-digit number is worth $20. Matching the 4-digit number is worth $100. Matching the 5-digit number is worth $500. Matching the 6-digit number gains entry for the ticket-holder into the weekly playoff game for prizes of $100,000 ($10,000 for 10 years), $25,000, three $2,500 prizes and a minimum of $1,000.

Matching the 2-digit number and the color wins $15 and matching the 3-digit number and the color wins $40.

Suburban digest

Arlington woman big lottery winner

An Arlington Heights woman walked away with $25,000 Friday night as second-place winner in the Illinois State Lottery weekly $1 drawing. Jean McGill, an accountant, said "I'm going to take all the money and invest the entire thing." An insurance broker with a history of winning things took the top $100,000 prize. Lee Gleasner, 66, Chicago, said he is "insurance poor but lottery rich. And I'm an awful lucky man." Gleasner has previously won a trip to Africa, a Kaiser car, a Vega and a mink coat for his wife. "I just knew I had to win tonight. I always win. I prayed a lot today so I knew I was going to win," he said. Richard Simes, Chicago; Martha Dean West, Cahokia; and John Golick, Sterling, won $2,500 prizes.

Village may cut services

Tree trimming, tree replacement and sidewalk replacement will be eliminated in Mount Prospect unless the village board approves charging residents directly for garbage pickup. Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said these and other cuts will be necessary to balance the 1976-77 budget based on current revenue. The village currently pays for residential garbage service with general tax money. A garbage fee would bring up to $863,000 in revenue. Eppley, who was unhappy with many of the recommended cuts, said "In recent years, Mount Prospect has made a reputation for constantly improvings its programs and services. I think that municipalities, like civilizations, start to perish when they stop improving."

Trailers to be relocated

Residents of the Elk Grove Mobile Home Park, 941 W. Higgins Rd., should be moved within 30 to 60 days, with most trailers to be relocated at the Oasis Mobile Home Park, Bensenville. The relocation is necessary because the Elk Grove park is within the area of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Project and will be subject to flood threat once the project's main dam is completed next fall. The relocation of residents will begin after arrangements are made with individual trailer owners.

Stocks drop again; Dow slips 6.22

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market fell Friday for the second consecutive day after being battered by tighter credit prospects, foreign trade problems and Russian grain speculation.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange slowed considerably from recent levels, a factor analysts considered favorable. Despite the slowdown Friday, however, turnover for the week was the second heaviest in NYSE history.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 15.74-point loser Thursday, fell another 6.22 points to 972.61. The closely watched average had been off 11 points before bargain-hunting in the last hour curbed its slide.

For the week, the Dow, which touched the 996 level three times without pushing through 1,000 at the close, fell 15.19 points. It was the second worst setback of the year. It fell 20.38 points the week ending Feb. 6.

THE TURNOVER OF 26,940,000 shares Friday was down sharply from the 34,320,000 traded Thursday. Volume for the week reached 161,787,900 shares, second only to the all-time record of 162,230,705 the week ending Jan. 30.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index Friday declined 0.40 to 99.71, the NYSE common stock index 0.27 to 53.35 and the average price of an NYSE common share 17 cents.

Declines routed advances, 1,088 to 458, among the 1,891 issues crossing the tape.

Nervous traders cashed in heavily during the afternoon when short-term money instrument rates rose sharply, and the Federal Reserve Board failed to take any action to drive them down.

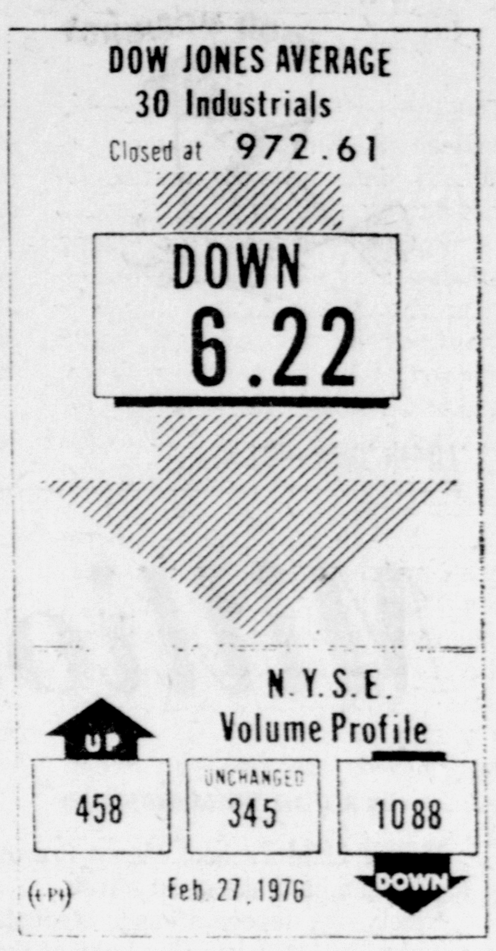
First National City Bank of New York raised its prime rate a quarter point to the prevailing 6.75 per cent level.

THE COMMERCE Dept. triggered even more selling by reporting the nation had a $72.6 million trade deifict in January, the first in a year.

In addition, the Agriculture Dept. reported farm prices rose 0.5 per cent in the month ended Feb. 15.

Simplicity Pattern topped the Big Board actives, off 1¾ to 19¾ on 315,700 shares, including a block of 151,000 shares at 20. Litton Industries followed, up 1/8 to 12¼ on 256,400 shares. Merrill Lynch wss the third most active issue, up ½ to 30-1/8 on 238,300 shares.

Prices closed lower in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased nine cents. Volume totaled 4,820,000 shares, compared with 5,800,000 traded Thursday.



Aide charged with more murders

Denise Watson, 21, a nurse's aide, was indicted Friday on eight more counts of murder in the Wincrest Nursing and Rest Home fire which cost the lives of 23 patients.

A Cook County grand jury returned the new indictment following the deaths in recent weeks of eight more elderly Wincrest patients in area hospitals.

Miss Watson previously was charged in the deaths of 15 patients who died in a Jan. 30 fire or before her arrest Feb. 2. She pleaded innocent to the earlier charges.

The fire broke out on the third floor in a four-patient bedroom of the North Side facility. Thick smoke and fumes from burning bedclothes and towels were believed to have taken the lives of the elderly victims, many of whom were attending mass in a chapel on the same floor.

'Yellow kid' buried

Perhaps if the Yellow Kid had lived to 101, he could have finagled a burial next to his wife and child.

But the $195 in his pocket when he died Thursday was not enough to put 100-year-old Joseph Weil, perhaps the greatest con man the nation has known, into the ground next to his wife, Anna, and daughter, Josephine.

A spokesman for Rosehill Cemetery said the burial cost for opening the grave and the grave box is $410.

If the public aid department had assumed responsibility for the burial arrangements, he said, the cemetery would have handled Weil's burial for the standard $150 public aid fee.

Instead, Michael Harrington, director of the Barr Funeral Home, said Weil was buried Friday at the Archer Woods Memorial Park in suburban Willow Springs.

Weil spent his last years in a wheelchair at the Lake Front Convalescent Center, relishing a career based on the theory that you cannot cheat an honest man but, happily, there's a sucker born every minute.

He boasted he made and lost $8 million — at least — in his time, all of it dishonestly.

"A truly honest man would have had none of my schemes," he once said. "I never fleeced anyone who could not afford to pay my price for a lesson in honesty."

'Welfare Queen' car seized

A 1973 Cadillac belonging to Linda Taylor, Illinois' alleged "Welfare Queen," was seized Friday by police.

A spokesman for Bernard Carey, Cook County state's attorney, said the car was confiscated under an Illinois law that allows seizure of a vehicle believed used in the commission of a crime.

Police said they think the auto was used to transport the fur coat, television, diamond ring and kitchen appliances allegedly stolen from an occupant at a residence where Miss Taylor formerly lived.

Miss Taylor was charged this week with burglary and child neglect after police found sons Willie Walker, 7, and Jose Walker, 5, living in squalor. The children were placed in custody of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Miss Taylor, 40, is awaiting trial on charges she defrauded the state of $7,000 in welfare payments while using a number of aliases.

Appellate Judge takes oath

Illinois Appellate Court Judge George N. Leighton was sworn in Friday as a U.S. District Court Judge for Illinois' northern district.

Leighton, 63, embraced each of the present and senior district court judges and said he was "quite grateful." President Ford had appointed him to the bench.

Chief Judge James B. Parsons said he agreed to let U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry administer the oath because Perry had known Leighton for many years.

During the ceremony, Don Reuben, chairman of the American Bar Association's standing committee on the federal judiciary, said the committee had found Leighton well qualified and welcomed him to the federal bench.

John Menk, president of the Chicago Bar Assn., said Leighton's greatest quality was his "compassion and feeling for his fellow man."

Leighton was first elected to be a circuit court judge in 1964 and was elected to a 10-year term on the Illinois Appellate court in 1970.

Attorney told to return funds

Attorney Roy Cohn and his law firm have been ordered to return $219,000 in funds held for defrauded stockholders in a Chicago firm or face contempt charges that could lead to imprisonment or fines.

Cohn, who first achieved prominence in the 1950s when he represented Sen. Joseph McCarthy in Senate anti-Communist hearings, was given 20 business days to return the money to the escrow fund for stockholders in Pied Piper Yacht Charters Corp.

Failure to do so could result in a fine or imprisonment.

In issuing the order Thursday, federal judge Edmund Palmieri said the entire escrow fund "has been dissipated. There is now nothing."

The judge accused Cohn of "engaging in tactics of obfuscation by bold assertions of half-truths and untruths."

Former President tired, limping

Chinese physician attends Nixon

KWEILIN, China (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, occasionally limping and looking fatigued Friday night, is being attended by a Chinese specialist from Peking and followed by an ambulance during his tour of southern China.

The Chinese have been obviously concerned about the health of Nixon, who has suffered from phlebitis for several years and almost died in 1974 when he underwent an operation and went into shock.

Nixon from time to time has shown signs of exhaustion. He appeared fatigued Thursday night at a song and dance show following a seven-hour boat cruise down the scenic Li River.

Nixon also has started to limp from time to time.

The Chinese assigned Dr. Shang Teh-ting, a heart and cardiovascular specialist from the Fu Wai hospital in Peking, to accompany Nixon on the Kweilin-Canton legs of his trip.

A white van with a Red Cross on the side also has followed the Nixon entourage everywhere in Kweilin. No such ambulance was seen during Nixon's days in Peking.

Robert Dunn, a medical corpsman, accompanied Nixon and checked his blood pressure frequently and administers anti-coagulant pills as he needs them. Dunn also carries oxygen on Nixon's sightseeing trips for any emergency.

During the cruise Dunn gave Nixon one of the anticoagulant pills. Nixon dropped the pill and had to get up to find it and appeared in a bad mood for a few minutes.

Medical authorities said Nixon's left leg is still swollen and he can stand for only an hour or so at a time when he must sit with his leg thrust out parallel with the ground.

Nixon attended the variety show in a theater in the compound of the Yung Su Guest House where he is staying. It consisted of a gymnastic and ballet performance by children, a children's song and dance team, martial arts exhibition and several other song and dance arts.

After the performances, Nixon and his wife, Pat, went to the stage to shake hands with each of the performers and received a large bouquet of flowers.

Earlier, Nixon received three gifts from his host here. One was a shell sculpture showing the landscape of Kweilin, which Nixon called the most beautiful city in the world on Thursday.

The other gifts included satin material made by the people of Yi nationality, one of several non-Han minority nationalities in Kwangsi autonomous region, and a tea set.

During the day, Nixon took a lazy cruise up the Li River and said the scenery was so beautiful "it makes you want to come back."

At one pont, Nixon bet a bottle of Chinese Mao Tai wine on a forthcoming ping pong match between two of the Chinese officials accompanying him and Huang Chen, the chief of Chinese liaison office in Washington.

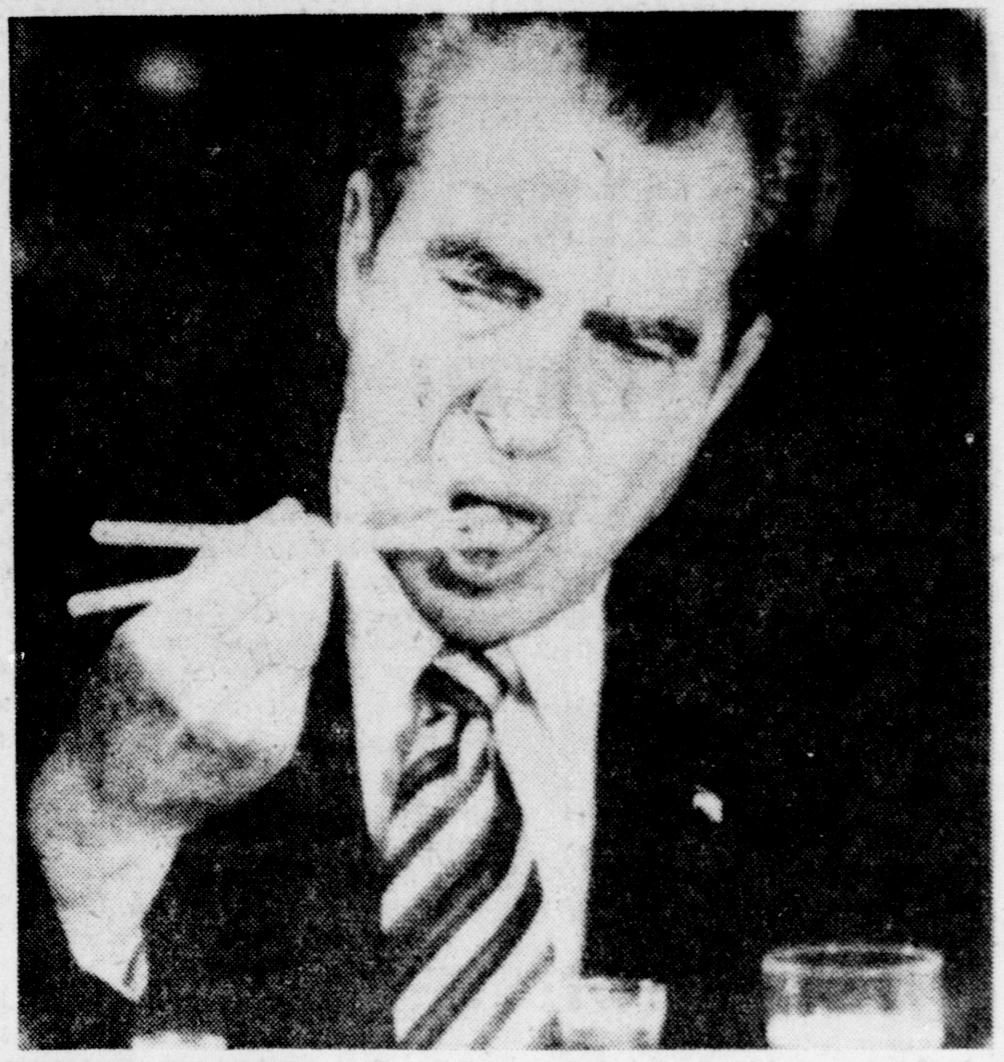
Mrs. Nixon asked about the experience of the two players and was told that the man Nixon bet on had only taken up the game while his opponent had been playing ping ping for 30 years.

"It looks like you bought a bad one here," Mrs. Nixon told her husband.

Laughing, Nixon turned to the man he bet on and said, "You'd better win. I'm afraid I've got the bad bet here."

Nixon compared the beauties of the river and the surrounding scenery to Yosemite National Park in the United States and said the karst formations looked like the pyramids of Egypt.

Cold weather and rain kept Nixon inside a glassed in upper deck area for most of the trip and shortly after he came out to the observation deck for one part of the cruise he became cold and returned, saying, "I'll go in now."



FORMER PRESIDENT Richard M. Nixon uses chopsticks during a banquet welcoming him to Kweilin, the third Chinese city he has visited.

Soviet Union outspending U.S. militarily: CIA

The Central Intelligence Agency estimated Friday that the Soviet Union is outspending the United States militarily by about 40 per cent. The new estimate, released by the House Armed Services Committee, updated an earlier one in which it was thought the Soviets were outspending the United States by about 35 per cent. One of the chief new factors is a decrease in U.S. spending.

The number of Americans receiving food stamps climbed to 19.1 million in January, the highest since the record 19.3 million last April and May, the Agriculture Department reported Friday. The estimate was issued 24 hours after the department disclosed details of a proposed new set of regulations which would eliminate an estimated 5 million persons from the program and reduce benefits for an additional 5 million.

FBI denies New York Times report

The FBI Friday denied a report that during the last 10 years it has halted most of its efforts to track down foreign spies operating in the United States. The New York Times, quoting "a number of well-informed sources," Friday reported that the late Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered a phaseout of counter espionage activity and shifted his attention to domestic radical organizations.

Protestants have 'stranglehold' on Belfast

Protestant crowds spilled into the streets of Belfast Friday night, setting up road blocks with burning vehicles and imposing what police called a "stranglehold" on 80 per cent of the city.

Guerrillas announce forming of republic

Algerian-backed guerrillas Friday announced creation of an independent Arab Saharan Democratic Republic, defying Saturday's official takeover of the former Spanish colony by Morocco and Mauritania. The official Algerian news agency dispatch, datelined "Liberated Territories," said the Polisario guerrilla movement had "announced the birth of the republic."

Workers given raise in Argentina

President Isabel Peron's Argentinian government presented a 90-day economic program Friday, giving workers a raise and freezing prices to boost the economy and appease the labor wing of the Peronist party.

Middle East peace policy dead: Sadat

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Friday that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's step-by-step Middle East peace policy is dead. He urged an early reconvening of the Geneva peace conference with Palestinian participation as the only way to end Arab-Israeli wars. The call for a return to Geneva was the dominant theme in Sadat's remarks as he hopped across the Arabian Gulf, flying from Abu Dhabi to Bahrain to Qatar on a tour to bolster Egypt's sagging prestige and bank account in the Arab world.

Despite trade balance dip

Economic indicators rise 2.2%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher imports of oil, cars and trucks in January tipped the U.S. balance of trade into a marginal deficit of nearly $73 million for the first time in 12 months, the Commerce Department said Friday.

In a separate financial development, strong demand for imported petroleum boosted the index of leading economic indicators 2.2 per cent, the biggest gain in six months.

The index shows the direction of the economy. An improving economy needs more oil to run factories and utilities. But importing more oil affects the trade balance.

The Commerce Department said the United States imported $9.176 billion in oil, autos, food and other products in January and exported $9.103 billion — a deficit of $72.6 million.

In 1975, the United States had its largest trade surplus — $11 billion — and January was the only deficit month — $262 million.

Last month's slight deficit was not ominous. Nations try to balance imports and exports to avert inflation and increase production and jobs.

U.S. trade deficits in the early 1970s contributed to the 12 per cent inflation of 1974 and the worst recession since 1941. The huge trade surplus in 1975 helped recovery and banked inflation.

The Labor Department Friday reported the total number of workers hired, recalled from layoffs or transferred rose in January while layoffs declined to their lowest level in 18 months, 1.2 per cent.

It said the "accession" rate of hirings, recalls and transfers rose from 3.8 per cent in December to 4.4 per cent in January — the highest level in more than two years, due mostly to recalls of laid-off workers.

The index of leading economic indicators had been nearly unchanged for four months after rising 2.5 per cent last July. The index measures 12 sectors of the economy. Eleven sectors were available, and nine improved in January.

In still another economic development announced Friday, the Agriculture Department said prices of raw farm products rose 0.5 per cent in the month ending Feb. 15. The increase was the first of 1976 following a 0.5 per cent drop in January. Prices were 11 per cent above a year earlier.

To OK candidates' funding

U.S. election panel given extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Friday granted the Federal Election Commission another 20 days to approve federal funds for presidential candidates while Congress decides whether to renew the commission along constitutional lines.

President Ford promptly urged the House and Senate to take quick action, but pledged to veto any legislation going beyond a simple change in the way the commission members are appointed.

Under the court's Jan. 20 decision on the campaign reform law, the commission was ruled illeglly constituted, but was given a 30-day grace period that was to expire at midnight Sunday.

As of Thursday, the FEC had certified a total of $9,050,795 in matching funds for 14 candidates. Had the commission lost that power Sunday, it could have caused some temporary financial hardship for the candidates.

Asked to grant the panel an additional 30 days, the court — with Justice Harry A. Blackmun dissenting — compromised on 20 more days, through March 22.

In that interim, the commission will continue to authorize federal matching funds to the presidential candidates.

The court acted Friday on a petition by the citizens' lobby Common Cause, the League of Women Voters and other groups, which noted Congress was working to remedy the court's objections to the makeup of the commission.

As set up in the campaign law, four of the panel's six voting members are congressional appointees. The court decreed this unconstitutional because the four are not "officers of the United States" appointed by the president.

The Senate is expected to take up next week a bill approved by its Rules Committee that would reconstitute the FEC as outlined by the court but with added restrictions on its investigatory powers.

The House Administration Committee is working on the same bill, which was drafted by its chairman, Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio. The committee resumes work Monday with a goal of finishing by the end of the week — meaning the House might not get it until the week of March 8 at the earliest.

Ford, noting the proposed new changes, said in his statement that was written before the court's announcement and revised slightly afterwards:

"With the 1976 elections only nine months away, I do not believe this is a proper time to begin tampering with the campaign reform laws, and I will veto any bill that will create confusion and will invite further delay and litigation."

After learning of the court's action, the commission dropped plans to hold a special meeting on Sunday, and scheduled its next session for Wednesday.

Cancer cases on upswing, bad environment blamed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The incidence of cancer in the United States has more than doubled in this century and 60 to 90 per cent of the cases worldwide can be traced to environmental factors, many manmade, the administration told Congress Friday.

But the sixth annual report by the President's Council on Environmental Quality also contained some good news: the quality of the nation's air and water is improving.

The council said in its 763-page report that cigarette smoking remains the biggest single cancer cause, and such natural factors as sunlight and radiation also are involved. The council said it based its environment related conclusion on studies showing wide variations of cancer incidence at different locations in he United States and elsewhere.

"The only prudent policy toward cancer is to increase the emphasis on prevention," the council said, and cited figures showing that the cancer rate is more than twice that at the turn of the century.

The council, headed by former industrial chemist and Delaware Gov. Russell W. Peterson, also said:

- Air pollution has improved "greatly" since Clean Air Act modifications five years ago, with the atmosphere in general containing 14 per cent fewer solid particles and 25 per cent less sulfur dioxide.
- "Encouraging progress" has been made against water pollution, with only 3 per cent of the 87 government monitoring stations reporting levels in the poor or severe categories, compared with 16 per cent in 1971.

Jury won't hear Patty's polygraph

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey, in a surprise move, Friday withdrew his attempt to put before the jury a lie detector test Patricia Hearst took shortly before her bank robbery trial.

The lawyer told the court cryptically that he was doing so "reluctantly" because introduction of the polygraph test could be construed as a waiver of Miss Hearst's 5th amendment right against self incrimination.

Bailey previously pressed for admission of the results of the test.

The prosecution indicated Thursday it was finding severe flaws in the way the lie detector examinations were administered.

The trial entered its second month Friday, and Bailey said he hoped to rest his case on Monday. It was expected to go to the jury at the end of next week, although the trial could be prolonged by lengthy final arguments and the judge's instructions to the jury.

The third defense-called psychiatrist, Dr. Robert Jay Lifton of Yale University, was on the witness stand throughout the day to back up the contention that Miss Hearst through "coercive persuasion" was forced to act as she did.

Lifton said he would stake his 23 years experience that she could not have put on a performance for him and faked a "traumatic neurosis" during the 15 hours he interviewed her in jail.

A woman juror, Mrs. Ellen Westin, became ill during the morning session with an upset stomach which sent her bolting from the courtroom. The trial was recessed briefly but Mrs. Westin ws able to hear the rest of the day's testimony. Talking about withdrawing his lie tetector test outside the courtroom, Bailey said he felt that if Miss Hearst is convicted he has strong grounds for appeal to a higher court as the result of her being "forced" to take the 5th Amendment 42 times before the jury.

U.S. denies Cambodian attack charges

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The United States Friday denied as "ridiculous" a Cambodian claim that three U.S. F111 warplanes bombed and badly damaged the town of Siem Reap, killing and wounding dozens of persons.

Radio Phnom Penh said Friday bombers raided the town, five miles from the fabled ruins of Angor Wat, on two occasions Wednesday, killing 15, injuring 40 and nearly destroying the Siem Reap hospital. It said the planes fled toward the Thai border.

Most diplomatic sources in Bangkok were puzzled by the report. The last F111 planes were withdrawn from Thailand last June and no other U.S. warplanes are stationed on the Southeast Asian mainland.

U.S. military and embassy spokesmen flatly denied the charge.

"The report is ridiculous and completely without truth," a joint statement said.

In Washington Pentagon duty officer Maj. Duane Austin said of the report, "I am totally unaware of it."

A Thai spokesman said his air force was "absolutely not" involved in the incident.

One diplomatic source in Bangkok with knowledge of events in Cambodia speculated that Siem Reap, a provincial capital 150 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, had been attacked by anti-Communist rebels.

Noting such attacks have been on the increase in Cambodia, the source said the Communist regime may have invented the F111 story for the benefit of the Cambodian people, knowing the planes bomb quickly — sometimes without even being seen.

Radio Phnom Penh, monitored in Bangkok, reported the raids in a broadcast mostly taken up with a lengthy condemnation of "U.S. imperialists."

It said the Americans, angered by the Communist victory in Cambodia last April 17, attacked Siem Reap "like air pirates."

According to the broadcast, at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday "one U.S. imperialist jet plane — an F111 type — flying at high altitude, dropped three bombs over the center of Siem Reap town."

On the same day at 2 p.m., "two other planes of the same type dropped air bombs on the same spot and then flew quickly northward, again in the direction of Thailand," the radio said.

The nearest known F111s to Cambodia are stationed in South Korea and there are no other U.S. warplanes in mainland Southeast Asia. The closest are in the Philippines and would require in-air refueling to reach Cambodia.

Honesty laws, not amendments

Thompson vows effort to reform state politics

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson said he plans to present bills to the legislature this spring that, if passed, would make the political honesty amendments to the state constitution unnecessary.

Thompson told members of the Wheeling Township Republican Organization he is having bills drafted by his staff. The bills would prohibit double dipping, legislative conflict of interest and the practice of legislators drawing their pay one or two years in advance.

"I'm going to give those bills to the legislature and tell them that if those pass I'll withdraw my support for the honesty amendments," Thompson said.

THE AMENDMENTS are being supported by the Coalition for Political Honesty, which is circulating petitions to put them on the November election ballot. Republican and Democratic legislators have opposed the amendments on the grounds the practices they would prohibit ought to be the subject of laws, not constitutional amendments.

Thompson has endorsed the coalition's efforts.

Also Thursday, Thompson, who is considered a shoo-in in the March 16 GOP primary, honed his attacks on Democratic gubernatorial candidates Gov. Daniel Walker and Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

"The Howlett-Walker politics will turn off the voters of Illinois," Thompson said. He said he will campaign against Walker on the basis of his record if Walker wins the primary, and will campaign against Howlett on his ties to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley if Howlett is his November opponent.

Thompson criticized Howlett for a statement he made before the county Democratic organization this week that "Illinois doesn't need reform. It needs a governor who will be a Democrat 365 days a year."

"ILLINOIS DOES need reform," Thompson said, "and if the Democrats are going to run Paddy Bauler (who in 1955 said, "Chicago isn't ready for reform,") they ought to bring him back and run him."

Thompson said he has started calling the Howlett slate of state candidates the "yessir boss" slate because of the way they were chosen by Daley and the Cook County Democratic Party.

He also said that if elected governor he won't necessarily attempt to become the leader of the state Republican Party.

"I will be a leader, but I'm not going to proclaim myself king because I think that would be counterproductive," he said.

Citizens panel to study state funding of schools

A Citizens' Commission will be appointed by the Illinois Office of Education to study the method of state funding of local schools.

Thursday the Illinois Board of Education authorized the state office to begin to select members of the commission, which will review the current state aid and grant reimbursement programs.

Topics to be discussed by the commission will include the impact of inflation and declining enrollment on current methods of state funding.

It will also study whether local property taxes should remain the major point of equalization in state aid and whether the state aid formula should reflect the median family income of local school districts.

The group will work in cooperation with the state legislatures and the governor's office and will submit a proposal to the state board and the legislature during the 1977 session.

The commission will attempt to project its findings over the five-year period from 1977 to 1982.

The commission will include state board members, leaders from the Congress of Parents and Teachers, and business, farm and labor groups. A technical advisory group, including university experts, legislative and state budget staffers and Illinois Office of Education staff also will work with the commission.

UOP reports loss of $3.19 a share

UOP, Inc., Des Plaines, recently reported an estimated net loss for 1975 of $34,868,000 or $3.19 a share. Estimated revenues were set at $615,046,000.

The figures compare to 1974 net income of $27,752,000 or $2.78 a share on revenues of $781,003,000.

The company reported an estimated $25,730,000 loss from operations before provisions for income taxes. A reserve against obligations and a write-off of receivables were cited in connection with the construction of a refinery at Come-by-Chance, Newfoundland.

Estimated fourth quarter results include a net loss of $39,994,000 or $3.67 a share on revenues of $186,113,000. Net income for the same period a year earlier was $5,044,000 or 50 cents a share on revenues of $177,953,000.

Scout group honors past president

Leslie Milligan, Park Ridge, past president of the Northwest Suburban Council, Boy Scouts of America, was honored by the scout organization at its monthly luncheon recently.

Milligan was presented with a painting showing his scout activities and awards, Order of the Arrow, Silver Beaver and Eagle Scout, and his hobbies of amateur archaeology and wild flower photography.

Mikva protests ouster of area EPA director

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, and two other Midwest congressmen protested Friday to federal environmental officials over the ouster of Francis T. Mayo, the local director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

In a sharply-worded letter to Russell Train, the head of the EPA, Mikva and U.S. Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., and U.S. Rep. J. Edward Rouss, D-Ind., said they were disappointed with the decision to remove Mayo as the director of Region V of the EPA.

The congressmen called Mayo "courageous" and committed to dealing with the problems of the Great Lakes as well as other environmental problems.

They charged the removal of Mayo may be interpreted as a decision by the EPA to reduce enforcement of its policies.

The congressmen said while they "hoped this was not the case," they urged Train to reinstate Mayo so that any such doubts would be dispelled.

Mayo, who directed EPA policy for the entire Midwest, had developed a reputation for strict enforcement of government regulations.

School safety costs millions but worth it

much as the school cost to build in 1961, board members may decide in March to send Cardinal Drive's pupils to nearby Kimball Hill School, 2905 Meadow Dr., Rolling Meadows, next year.

In Dist. 25, officials recently agreed to close North School, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, in the near future to save money.

NORTH WAS BROUGHT into life-safety compliance in 1970, but like Lapicola in Dist 54, Dist. 25 Supt. Donald Strong is philosophical about the money spent to improve the school.

"No money spent for safety is ever wasted," he said. "This is certainly something people wouldn't argue with."

Since the program began, school districts have had financial help from the state in meeting the life-safety requirements. First, all schools were divided into three categories according to the time they were built. Each category has a separate deadline for compliance, which allows school districts to space out the cost of needed work. The categories are:

- Category I schools, built prior to Jan. 1, 1955. These buildings had to be surveyed by an architect by July 1, 1967 and brought into compliance with the life-safety code by July 1, 1970.
- Category II schools, built between Jan. 1, 1955 and July 1, 1965. These schools had to be surveyed by an architect within 10 years of their construction, and brought into compliance with the life-safety code three years later.
- Category III schools, built after July 1, 1965. These buildings are supposed to utilize the code's features in planning and building so they will be built in compliance with the code.

Eight of the 13 Northwest suburban school districts say they have completed their life-safety work and are waiting for final inspection by the Cook County Superintendent of Schools. All local school buildings must meet the code by 1978, the state deadline.

The Illinois General Assembly allows school districts to levy up to 5 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation to finance life-safety work. School districts also may issue bonds without a referendum for any amount approved by the county and state school superintendents to finance life-safety work.

School vote tally to stand despite snarl in signup

Results of a September 1975 school referendum in Elk Grove Township will stand despite improper voting registration procedures during the month before the vote was taken.

Elk Grove Township Supervisor Richard Hall said Friday the Dist. 59 and Harper College referendums held Sept. 27, 1975 will not be affected by a ruling from the state board of elections on the registration irregularities.

The irregularities resulted when some persons registered for the referendum during the 28 days before the vote, in violation of state law.

HALL SAID referendums are valid if no challenge is filed within 30 days after the election.

"The problem seemed to be confusion on what election laws were applicable," Hall said. He said he questioned the registration procedure when persons came to the township office just prior to the referendum to register.

"It was our opinion they were not legally eligible to be registered," Hall said. "We contacted the state board of elections and the Cook County clerk's office and were given explicit instructions to register applicants even on the day of the election."

Hall said the voters were registered "under protest."

THE TOWNSHIP AFTER the referendum again wrote to the state saying the registration rules first given to the township applied to counties with less than 1,000,000 population, but not to Cook County.

The state has now confirmed that voter registration in Cook County must end 28 days prior to school elections, Hall said.

Hall has sent a letter on the ruling to the county's 30 suburban township clerks and clerks of the cities and villages within Elk Grove Township.

Dist. 214 seeks prestige in name and insignia

will choose three names and three insignias for presentation to the board of education in April. A plaque carrying the winner's name and winning entry will be placed on display in the district's administration center.

The majority of entries have come from residents of the community although a few entries have been received from Dist. 214 teachers and students.

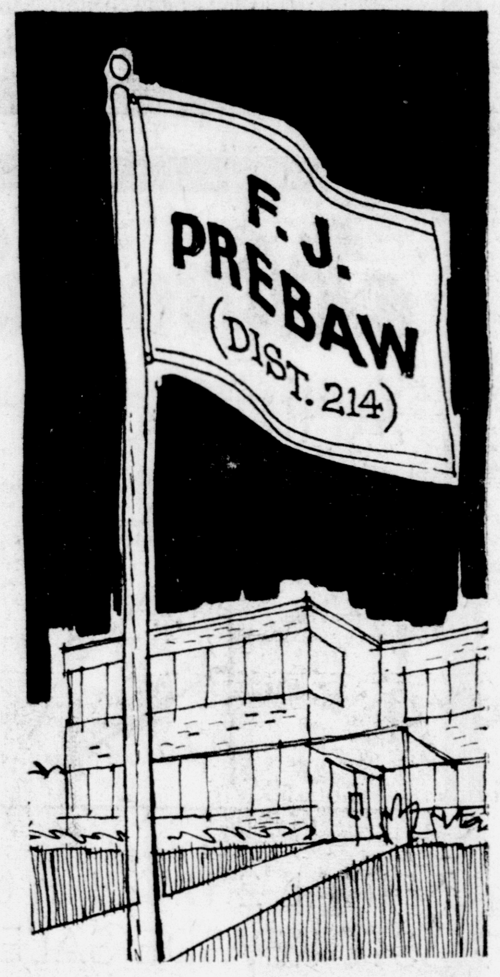
The entry "Tri-Township Dist. 214" carried an insignia consisting of three books each titled with names of townships in the district: Wheeling, Elk Grove and Palatine townships.

Several entries played on the names of the district's eight high schools — Arlington, Prospect, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove, Forest View and John Hersey.

ONE SUCH ENTRY gave the name "F. J. Prebaw High School District." The fictitious name comes from the first initial of the eight schools. The contestant suggests that the fictional character could be imagined as a folk hero in the Northwest suburbs, a la Paul Bunyan.

"Beacon Heights Community Schools" was an entry patterned after the Bicentennial and was taken from Beacon Hill, a historical place in Boston.

A total of 14 separate entries have been received by the district along with one letter from a member of the Dist. 214 staff saying that the present name is just fine and asking the committee not to change it.



Entries may be mailed to William Warner, assistant superintendent for student and community relations, High School Dist. 214, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect 60056.

Property tax relief forms at Maine assessor's office

Property tax relief grant forms for 1975 are available at the Maine Township Assessor's Office, 2510 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines.

Township assessor James Parks said the state will provide a grant of up to $500 to homeowners and renters who are over 65 or disabled, and whose income in 1975 was less than $10,000.

Eligibility and the amount of the grant is determined by a formula based on the ratio of income to property tax. In the case of renters, property tax is considered equal to 25 per cent of rent.

Parks said grants also are available to nursing home residents, but are based on the amount paid for occupancy.

Persons who are eligible for grants in previous years but did not apply can do so now, Parks said. The grants were first available in 1972.

Parks said persons who applied for grants last year need not reapply, because forms will be automatically mailed to them this year.

For further information call the Maine Township Assessor's Office, 297-2510.

Class in glassblowing set

The basic techniques of glassblowing will be taught in a five-week Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult Continuing Education Program course beginning Monday at Maine South High School, 1111 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge.

The classes, to be held from 7 to 10 p.m., will teach the rudimentary techniques of forming solid glass figurines and blowing art objects. Students will work with glass torches on their own projects.

Tuition for the course is $35. Students must purchase their own materials.

For information, call 967-5821.

Biofeedback radio topic

Biofeedback: what is it for and how does a psychiatrist make use of it in his practice?

Robert Barnes, chief of psychiatry at St. Luke's Hospital Medical Center, Phoenix, Ariz., will explain biofeedback and its uses Sunday on "The Search for Mental Health," a public service radio series produced by the Forest Hospital Foundation.

Dover Roth of Forest Hospital will join Barnes in the discussion at 8 a.m. over WJJD-FM (104.3).

THESE YUGOSLAVIANS saw little more than the inside of their Des Plaines motel during the 30 hours they spent waiting for their airplane to be repaired. After a wearying wait, the visitors successfully boarded their plane Friday and headed home.

Jet breakdown strands Yugoslav tourists

by JOE FRANZ

About 100 Yugoslavians who got an unexpected vacation in Des Plaines this week were headed back to their native land Friday afternoon.

The visitors, most of whom spoke no English, were stranded Wednesday when their 10 p.m. chartered flight was grounded at O'Hare airport because of mechanical problems.

It was a 30-hour vacation paid for by Yugoslav Airlines, but no one seemed too interested in sightseeing. Most of them saw little more than their motel rooms at the Chelsea Motor Inn, 1275 Lee St., and the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Needless to say, most of the stranded persons were glad to be on the repaired Boeing 707 jet at 2:20 p.m. when it took off for Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

JADRANKO DUMANCIC, 23, one of the few stranded persons who spoke English, said he found Des Plaines "a nice place to visit," but that he "wouldn't want to live here."

"It's a nice place, but there's nothing to do," he said. "We've been waiting and waiting and we're very bored."

Tanya Nastovska, 21, said she had no complaints about Des Plaines or the accommodations, but that she was anxious to leave.

"They (airlines) are doing their best to make us happy," she said. "We're not bitter, we're just bored.

"I have been in Detroit visiting my boyfriend," she said. "I either want to be with him or at home, but not here."

MISS NASTOVSKA said the layover was particularly difficult for older passengers, many of whom were in the country for the first time.

"It's terrible for a lot of the older people who can't speak English," she said. "They have no idea of what is going on."

Miss Nastovska said despite the problems, she has enjoyed all three of her visits to the United States and may some day take up residence here.

"I really like things here and I like things in Yugoslavia," she said. "They're two different places and I don't want to compare the two."

Dumancic, a naval architecture student at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, said although he does not want to live in the United States, he would like to return to complete his education.

"I LIKE AMERICAN student life," he said. "The American system of study is much better than in Yugoslavia.

"But I don't like the American large cities," he said. "I got a headache from Chicago. It's so big, there are so many people moving around and the traffic here is bad.

"I don't like American large cities," Dumancic repeated. "They're terrible and aren't for humans."

Laura O'Connell, a spokesman for United Airlines, which handles ground operations for Yugoslav Airlines, said the plane was grounded because of a problem in its hydraulic system.

The problem was complicated, she said, because the plane was modified somewhat and standard American tools and equipment could not be used.

"NOT ONLY WAS it a bigger job than we anticipated, but our country's fittings just didn't seem to work," she said. "Another thing was that every time something was fixed and seemed to be operating all right, something else would go wrong."

Miss O'Connell said in addition to United Airlines, the Boeing Co., British Airways, American Airlines and Northwest Orient Airlines assisted in getting the Yugoslav plane repaired.

"It's been a real cooperative effort in getting that plane ready to take off this afternoon," she said.

Reagan returns 'home' to find door locked

The young couple who live in the apartment where Ronald Reagan was born said Friday they were told to clean it out and stay out of the way during Reagan's nostalgic trip home to Tampico, Ill. this week.

As a result, Reagan was locked out of his old homestead.

Robert and Cindy Lauts, who have lived in the four-room apartment 14 months, were willing to comply with the instructions. Then, they said, they were told at the last minute Reagan wouldn't have time to visit the place.

So they locked the door and left, meaning Reagan wasn't able to get in when Secret Service agents led him up the stairs.

Reagan visited his home town (pop. 880) Tuesday for the first time in 25 years. He was born in 1911 in an apartment above what used to be a bank and is now his honorary national headquarters.

State officials discuss birds

An aide to Rep. Paul Simon said Friday a Dept. of Interior lawyer indicated that "it would be extremely difficult to legally prove" that a roost housing five million blackbirds near Metropolis, Ill., is a human health hazard.

Terry Michael, the Simon aide, said representatives of Simon's office, Illinois Dept. of Public Health Director Dr. Joyce Lashoff, and Illinois Senators Adlai Stevenson and Charles Percy met Friday afternoon with interior department officials to discuss the roost problem.

Simon had sought the declaration of the roost as a human health hazard by the Illinois health department to clear the way for the interior department to order the spraying of the roost with Tergitol, a detergent, to exterminate some of the birds and break up the concentration.

Simon will contact the Federal Aviation Administration about the possibility that blackbirds from the roost are interfering with flights at Barkley Field near Paducah, Ky., less than 10 miles from the roost, Michael said.

Illinois briefs

I may win: Cooper

Richard Cooper, who said last week he doesn't expect to win the March 16 GOP gubernatorial primary, said Friday he now thinks he may have a slight chance of beating James Thompson.

Cooper told reporters this week's primary in New Hampshire and recent polls in Illinois show a large segment of voters is still undecided.

Cooper said he hopes to draw on the undecided voters to beat Thompson. However, he said he does not plan to do anything different to convince uncommitted voters to cast their ballots for him. "There will be no tricks up my sleeve."

Just last week Cooper told some reporters that "cross my heart and hope to die, I don't expect to win" the primary.

He also said he will not spend any more money on campaign advertising. He said he has spent $120,000 of his own money on the campaign so far. "I don't want to win it in the last week with a slick ad campaign," Cooper said.

Cooper fired a public relations firm that was handling his campaign because voter recognition of his candidacy had not increased appreciably. He said recognition is still a problem confronting both him and Thompson.

Carter to speak in Marion

Jimmy Carter, an early frontrunner in the Democratic presidential nomination sweepstakes, has scheduled a speaking engagement in Marion March 10.

Robert Gottlieb, program coordinator for the Marion Civic Center, said Friday Carter's Illinois campaign headquarters in Chicago confirmed the appearance.

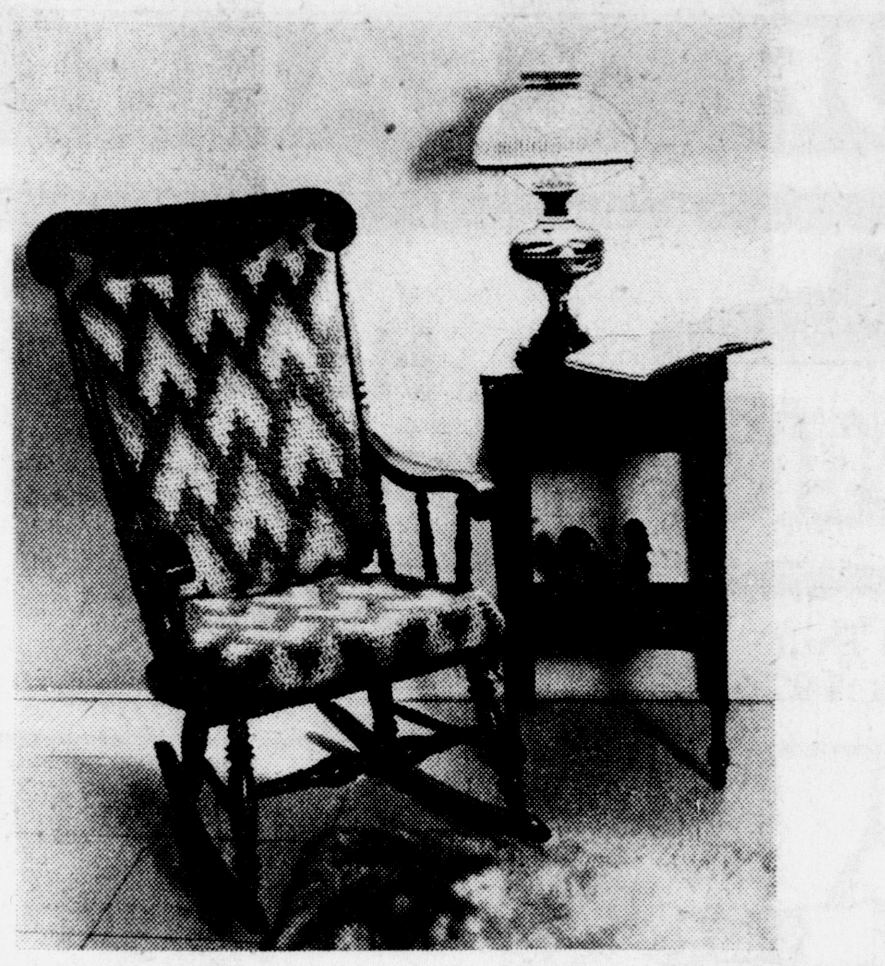
Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

Rayo lamp often copied



Lighting — to dispel the shadows and afford protection from dangers lurking outside the cave — has been a consuming need of man, along with food, clothing and shelter, from the very beginning. First, light from the campfire, the hearth fire, simple oil burning lamps, candles, and then with the invention of kerosene as a fuel, lamps in a vast profusion of styles and types — that's the chronology of lighting up to the age of electricity.

There are probably as many collectors of lamps as there are types of lamps, and one of the most popular models is the Rayo, shown in the picture.

Rayos were made of metal, vase-shaped with a rounded elliptical font for the kerosene, supported on a base made of the same metal or sometimes by a filigreed or fancy base of other metal. The burners were adjustable by means of the wick and wick knobs (some lamps had more than one wick). Shades were usually of glass, often two-layered glass of white inside and dark green, or perhaps a yellow outer surface.

THE GLASS SHADES were quite heavy, of course, and supported by metal arms. A glass chimney covered the burner and was usually somewhat taller than the shade. The lamp in the picture has been converted to electricity, which is rather easily done, and has no chimney.

If you should find an old Rayo lamp complete, they say (now understand, I don't say — they say) that you can tell whether the shade is old or new merely by rubbing your finger along the bottom edge. Old shades are supposedly smooth, new ones rough. But I have an old Rayo, and the shade is old, I know, for I know who owned it and for how long, and it definitely is from about 1888. However, the bottom of the shade is rough. Maybe someone forgot to polish it.

Rayo lamps are almost always made of brass, but later ones, say from about 1900 on, were often plated with nickel. Nickel plating was extremely popular for many objects, for it didn't require the polishing and perhaps, being silver-colored, seemed more elegant. At any rate, if you prefer your old Rayo returned to brass, the nickel plating may easily be stripped off (by a professional stripper).

THIS SORT OF lamp has been reproduced or copied for electric lamps a great deal during the past generation. I received a pair of brass Rayo-type lamps as a wedding gift 30 years ago, and I recall that they had checked gingham shades with a ruffled edge, and were most compatible with my "Early Marriage-Early American" decor, but I really preferred antiques and when I found some to replace the new ones, they disappeared in a long-ago garage sale. Now I sometimes wax nostalgic over them and when I told my daughter the newlywed about them, she wished I had kept them for her. "After all, mom, anything you got as a wedding present has to be at least semi-antique!" So what does that make me?

As you can see in the picture, Rayos are most fitting in an antique setting, with the old rocker and one-drawer pine table, but I feel they are on the "primitive" side and would not work out too well in say, a Victorian or fancier decor. The lamp in the picture seems to be quite dented and worn, but that's how it is with antiques — and oftentimes their owners. (Picture from Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Women's role Lenten study

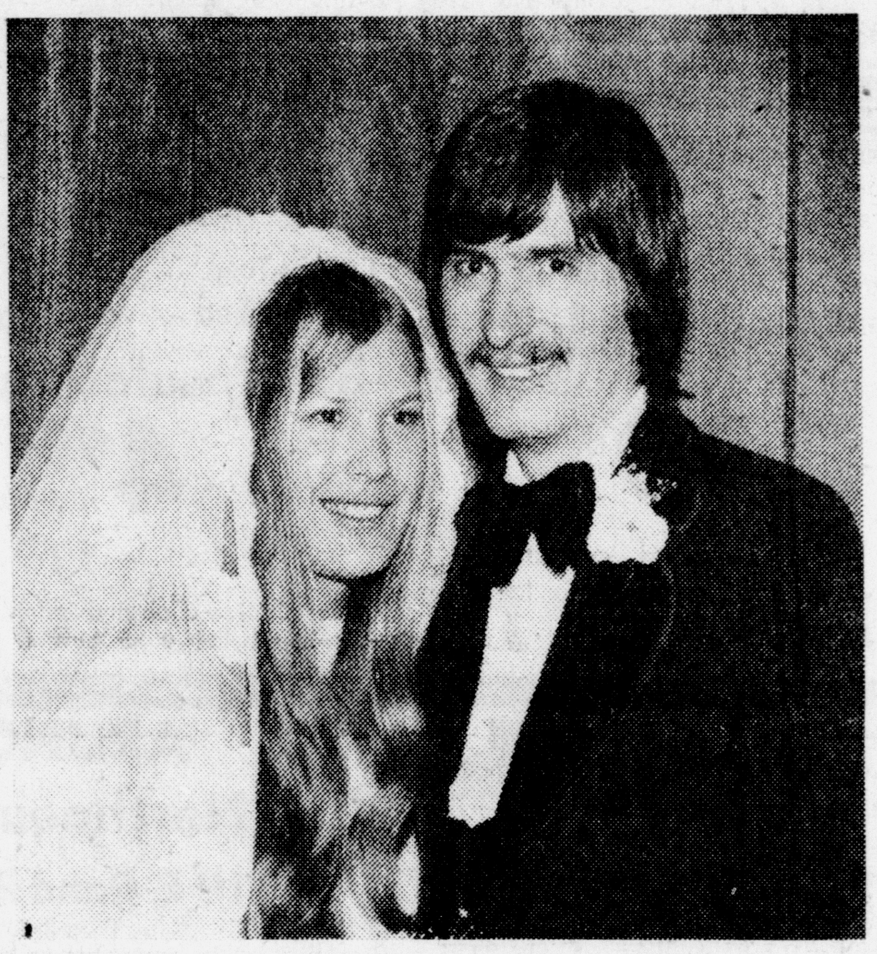
Linda Patrick, who served on the Commission on Status and Role of Women in the Church headed by Bishop Pryor, will teach the Lenten study for women at First United Methodist Church of Des Plaines.

The study, beginning at 9 a.m. Monday, March 8, will continue for three consecutive Mondays. "What Is Your Role in Church and Society?" will be the topic.

The study book, "Women in Church and Society," will be available from the church office for $1.50. The author, Dr. Georgia Harkness, discusses the role of women from a historical and theological point of view.

All area women are invited. A baby sitter will be provided.

Weddings



Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eskew

Betty Prang— Richard Eskew

In a double ring, candlelight service Jan. 31 in St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights, Betty Prang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Prang, Palatine, became the bride of Richard Eskew, son of Mrs. Joyce Eskew of Rushville, Ind. The pair met at Indiana University of which Betty is a '75 graduate.

For the 5:15 p.m. service Betty wore a white organza gown with Chantilly lace and carried a bouquet of white roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

CONNIE BOLES, Palatine, was maid of honor, and Marsha Irich, Ruth Ann Hastings and Pam Kohnke, all Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore burgundy knit gowns with jackets trimmed in marabou and they carried pink carnations, roses and baby's breath.

The groom's niece and nephew, Amy, 5, and Brent Eskew, 3, were flower girl and ring bearer.

The groom's brother, Darryl, was best man, and ushers were Tom Schmit, Mark Spurgeon and Randy Haler, Sigma Chi fraternity brothers from Bloomington, Ind.

A reception for 100 guests was held at the Barn of Barrington and after a honeymoon cruise in the Caribbean, the newlyweds are residing in Indianapolis.

Pamela Schuetz—Jeffrey S. Coghill

After a two-week honeymoon in Acapulco, San Diego and Las Vegas, Pamela Ann Schuetz and her bridegroom, Jeffrey Steven Coghill, are residing in Palatine. Married Jan. 31 in St. Ann Catholic Church, Barrington, Pamela is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Schuetz of Inverness, and Jeffrey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Coghill, Wood Dale.

The 3:30 double ring service took place during mass with Pamela wearing a gown trimmed in seed pearls and Alencon lace. Lace bordered her hem and also her chapel train, and a lace headpiece held her chapel veil. She carried white roses and stephanotis with baby's breath.

PEGGY SCHUETZ was her sister's maid of honor, and junior bridesmaid was her sister, Nancy. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Diane, and Margaret Swanson, Cresthill, Ill., and Beth Hammond, Chicago. The maids wore copper gowns in a Grecian style and carried copper mums, yellow plumaria and white baby's breath.

Skip Coghill, Hoffman Estates, was his brother's best man, and ushers were the bride's brother, Michael, along with Chip Hammersmith, Elmhurst, and Brad Bilhorn, San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey S. Coghill

A dinner reception for 200 guests was held in Inverness Golf Club.

A 1970 graduate of Fremd High and a '74 graduate of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, Pamela is employed as a sales representative for American Home Foods. Her bridegroom, a '74 graduate of the University of Denver, is vice president of Midwest Tar Sealer, Itasca.

Cheryl Koehler—John Lancaster

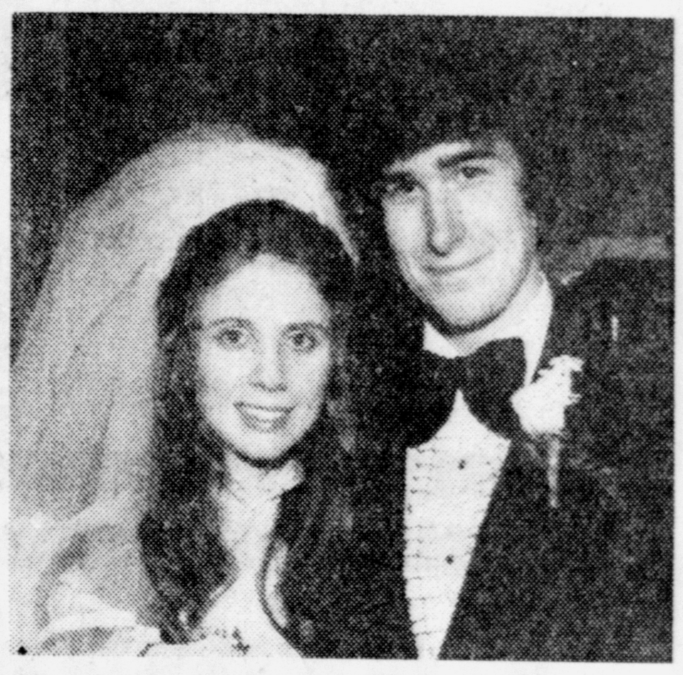
Heart-shaped place card holders made by the bride's mother were used at the reception following the wedding of Cheryl Lynn Koehler and John Kenneth Lancaster.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Koehler, Palatine, Cheryl and John, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kenneth Lancaster, Palatine, were married Jan. 31 in St. Theresa Church, Palatine. The reception for 175 guests was held at the Fontana D'Or, Chicago.

For the 3 p.m. double ring service Cheryl chose an ivory gown of sata peau with Cluny lace trim. The princess gown was made with cathedral train, also trimmed in Cluny. Mrs. Koehler made her daughter's floor-length, lace-trimmed veil. Cheryl's flowers were pink and white roses with baby's breath, stephanotis and roses.

MAID OF HONOR was Cheryl's sister, Debbie, and bridesmaids were the groom's sisters, Kathy and Jeanine, Susan Louis, Hoffman Estates, and Barbara Scofield, Arlington Heights. All wore turquoise jersey gowns with matching jackets and hoods trimmed in marabou. They carried white and pink roses with baby's breath and mums.

Best man was Tony D'Allaird, Palatine, and ushers were Robert Olsen, Palatine, Jerry Rudolph, North Riverside, William Kelly, cousin of the groom from Hoffman Estates, and Chris Eugenis, Des Plaines. Junior ushers were the couple's brothers, Michael Koehler and James Lancaster.



Mr. and Mrs. John K. Lancaster

The newlyweds, who honeymooned at Marco Island, Fla., are now residing in a Palatine apartment. The new Mrs. Lancaster, a graduate of Fremd High and Harper College, is employed as a secretary at Golden Bear Corp., Mount Prospect, and her bridg-
Golden Bear Corp., Mount Prospect, and her bridegroom, a graduate of Palatine High, studies at Loyola University and is employed by Morse Shoes,

Debra Janczewski — Andrew Korpan

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Korpan

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Keller, Schaumburg, and Raymond Janczewski, Palatine, Debra and Andy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Korpan, Fox Lake, met at the lake when her parents joined Korpans Landing Yacht Club. Andy, a graduate of Grant High, is employed in his parents' business, and Debra, a '75 graduate of Schaumburg High, is employed by Evans at Woodfield.

Their 3 p.m. double ring wedding took place in St. Walter Church, Roselle, with Debra wearing a white velvet gown trimmed in marabou. A chapel veil trimmed in marabou and a white marabou muff with white carnations and stephanotis completed her bridal ensemble.

NANCY KELLER was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister-in-law, Ann Korpan, Fox Lake, Darla Blaesing, Addison, and Karen Nielsen, Minneapolis, Minn. Their rust gowns were topped with jackets trimmed in marabou and they carried rust carnations and white carnations with marabou.

Flower girl, wearing white velvet with marabou trim, was Tera Lynn Flink of Mount Prospect, a cousin of the bride. Her flowers were carried in a basket.

The groom chose his brother, Walter Jr., as best man, and ushers were Denny Eul, Edison Park, and Jim and John Lull, Ingleside, Ill.

The reception for 180 guests was held at Nordic Hills Country Club.

Chicago Flower Show a salute to America

One of the lead-off events for Chicago area Bicentennial observances in '76 will be the Chicago Flower and Garden Show March 20-28 at McCormick Place. The show will center around a star-spangled salute to "America, the Colorful!" with a wide range of educational and entertaining features for all ages.

Visitors will travel from Independence Square down gas-lit Main Street, U.S.A., to see formal gardens and exhibits instructing on the hows and whys of horticulture at home. A market section will house commercial exhibits offering gardening needs as well as hobby and craft items, fresh flowers and green plants.

To spotlight the rich heritage of the nation a full schedule of special programs will be featured including ethnic dancing, patriotic marching bands, films and special guests. The show will emphasize not only the important place horticulture has enjoyed in the nation's history, but also the present emphasis on urban beautification and ecology.

THERE ARE several eating facilities at the show and for those who wish to bring their own picnic lunch or supper, the Forest Preserve is again providing a quaint picnic woods complete with tables but no ants. The Forest Preserve will also provide craft house where old-time skills and trades

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Stomach has its own protective lining

About three times a week I take a spoonful of Metamucil and I find if I don't wash the glass and spoon right away, it leaves a slimy surface on the glass and it takes hot water to get it off. I wonder if it could coat my stomach and intestines so I could not get the good from my food. I don't take any other laxatives and the Metamucil works fine.

No, it won't hurt you a bit. Your entire digestive system is constantly forming secretions that bathe its surface. Your stomach already has a layer of thick mucus over its surface which would make what you are talking about on your glass look like nothing at all. That mucus surface protects the stomach cells for its own acid digestive juice.

The lining of your intestine is shed and replaced as often as every three days. The lining incidentally is digested and absorbed for food for your body so you don't lose energy or important proteins this way.

Metamucil is a good bulk expander and isn't harmful. I do hope, however, that you include in your diet enough bulk and particularly cereal fiber from whole wheat products. If you use enough of that or bran or bran buds, you may not need Metamucil to provide bulk for you.

Those wanting information on controlling constipation can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 2-1, Irritable Colon and Constipation. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I was so delighted to have your article stating that oysters do not have a high cholesterol count. I called a dietitian at the hospital where I had been a patient and she said I could also have shrimp, lobster and crab. I've no idea where her information comes from and I hope it's true, although since you didn't mention the other shellfish I'm rather skeptical.

There are two diets I'm supposed to follow, a low cholesterol and low sugar or starch diet because I'm hypoglycemic. However, the cholesterol diet is of first priority. Do you have any recent information regarding this particular diet? I know there must be a great number of people who have this same dietary problem.

You should be skeptical. You can eat almost any food if you limit the amount depending on what other items you include in your diet and still have a low cholesterol intake.

Oysters are relatively low-fat, low-cholesterol foods based on the most recent findings which replace older values that listed them as high-fat, high-cholesterol foods. A three and a half ounce serving of raw oysters contains from 37 to 58 milligrams of cholesterol; a similar amount of shrimp is 150 milligrams; lobster, 200 and crab 52 to 98.

You can eat shrimp in moderation, restrict your lobster intake a little more and need not be concerned about crab any more than you would any similar amount of meat. If you limit your cholesterol intake to 300 milligrams a day, you can't eat much shrimp and lobster and still eat other cholesterol contaning foods you need for a balanced diet.

Kitty granules have many uses

The home line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Pretty regularly you've been mentioning strange and different uses for the granules used in kitten boxes. We were talking about it and, while we don't have a cat, it sounds as if it might be a smart thing to have a sack of it around. What do you think?—Margot Romero

What a wonderful idea! The absorptive qualities of this stuff are remarkable. It is useful to get traction when a car gets stuck in ice or snow. A layer of it on oil on a driveway or garage absorbs the stains fairly quickly. If a child gets carsick, it not only dries up the mess so it can be swept up, but eliminates the odor.

It's a help in deodorizing work shoes. Some use it with potting soil instead of sand to make the soil lighter and more aerated. All this in addition to being used for puppy stains and for cat boxes. Maybe there are other aids I've never heard of. Anyone have more?

Dear Dorothy: This is how I keep my iron pots and skillets from rusting. After use and a thorough cleaning and rinsing, place the pan over a low gas flame for five or 10 minutes. Then turn off the flame and leave pan in place to cool before storing.—Marguerite Villars.

Dear Dorothy: When I've made a stew of combined leftovers to make the evening meal and I can't get the taste just right, I find adding lemon juice, monosodium glutamate, Tabasco or Worcestershire sauce usually provides the zip it needs.—Gloria Tappan

To new homemakers: A closely woven material will wear better on your sofa than a loosely woven one. The reverse is true for draperies — loosely woven fabrics usually hang better.

Dear Dorothy: I love plants. I now have my second "spider" plant, but it isn't doing well. It seems to be drying out even though I water it regularly, mist it and keep it on a tray with pebbles which I keep wet. It is very hot in the barracks where I live. Is there anything I can do to save this plant?—Pvt. Sheilah Evans

You must let the soil dry out completely before you water — but when you water, it should be thorough. Then spill off the excess. After this, add water to the pebbles, making sure the water level does not touch the bottom of the pot.

Dear Dorothy: My sister sent me her old (but good) electric can opener when she received a new one. I hate to ask her, but I haven't been able to open evaporated milk with the opener. What's the trick to it?—Evelyn Short

To trick. Many of the old openers do not work on cans which have no rims. Still got your old opener?

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

of early settlers will be demonstrated.

Area gardeners will also be interested in the "Happy Birthday, America" show sponsored by the Garden Club of Illinois in which Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Inverness and Palanois Park garden clubs will be competing for ribbons in the artistic class. This class includes table settings as well as exhibits of fresh and dried material. Junior gardeners, too, will be participating.

Mrs. Dale Schafernak

"HAPPY BIRTHDAY, America" will also feature horticultural exhibits and educational exhibits such as gardens of American trees, flowers and shrubs, demonstrations and native crafts exhibitions of dyeing, spinning and quilting.

Mrs. Dale Schafernak, Palatine, is co-chairman of the Garden Club of Illinois show and among committee-chairmen are Mrs. Fred Cimaglio, and Mrs. Charles Falgout, Palatine; Mrs. Eugene Tamillo and Mrs. L. E. Copeland, Des Plaines; Mrs. Joseph F. Koenen, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Jerome Thelander and Mrs. Emil Fick, Mount Prospect.

Advance tickets for the Chicago Flower Show are available from all Ticketron outlets, local florists and garden club members at $2.75 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12. At the door tickets will sell for $3.50 and $1.50, respectively.

Local clubs charter buses to exhibits

Three area garden clubs and two area park districts are chartering buses for transportation to and from the Chicago Flower and Garden Show.

Those wishing to take advantage of the transportation, which unloads passengers in the mallway adjacent to the entrance of the show, do not have to be members of the local clubs. However, to assure transportation reservations should be made early.

Sponsoring buses Saturday, March 20, and again on Monday, March 22, is Arlington Heights Garden Club. Buses leave Pioneer Park at 10 a.m., returning from McCormick Place at 3 p.m.

COMBINED COST for the show ticket and bus is $5.50 although tickets may be purchased separately for $2.75, and round trip bus fare for $3. Beverly Ray, 396-1432, is taking reservations.

Buses chartered by Mount Prospect Garden Club for Monday, March 22, will be leaving the Mount Prospect Community Center at 10 a.m. and returning to Mount Prospect by 3:30. The club has extended an invitation to area senior citizens to join club members for this day at the flower show.

Tickets for the show are $2.75 in advance; the bus round trip is $2.50. Mrs. Joan Barker, 255-7289, is taking the reservations.

Des Plaines Garden Club is sponsoring buses Tuesday, March 23, leaving Rand Park Field House at 9 a.m. and returning at 4 p.m. Tickets are $2.75, bus fare, $2.75. Tickets are available by calling Mrs. E. J. Tamillo, 824-1383.

TUESDAY, MARCH 23, Hoffman Estates Park District will sponsor a bus to the show. The bus will leave at 10 a.m. from the park district office, 650 W. Higgins, and return by 5 p.m. Combination show ticket and transportation is $7 and reservations may be made by calling the park district office at 885-7500.

Palatine Park District will be sponsoring a bus to the show Wednesday, March 24. A package deal including transportation, lunch at the Magic Pan on Walton Street in Chicago and admission to the show, is $10 per person. The bus will leave the park office at 262 E. Palatine Rd., at 10 a.m., returning by 5 p.m. Reservations, open to all area women, may be made by calling the park office, 359-0333.

Schaumburg Park District and St. John United Church of Christ in Arlington Heights, who sponsored buses in 1975 are not sponsoring buses this year.

The show, being held at McCormick Place March 20-28, opens at 11 a.m. Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. Saturdays and Sundays. It closes at 10 p.m. each night except Sunday, March 28, when the show is over at 8.

Clothing needed

Do you have good clothing which your family has outgrown? Why not give it to a foster child?

Shelter, Inc. has started a clothing bank and is accepting donations of clothing for boys and girls of all ages.

Especially needed are coats, jackets, sweaters, street clothes, boots and gloves. Personal items such as underwear, sleepwear and shoes will be secured through other resources.

Persons wishing to contribute to the clothing bank may call Judy Lahey at 882-2222.

NCJW plans communication class

A course in effective communication skills geared to parents, teachers and anyone interested in better communications will be offered in Palatine during March. Exact time, location and costs depends upon enrollees and the number of persons registering.

Sponsored by Northwest Suburban Section of National Council of Jewish Women, the course will be given in four weekly sessions. Taught will be active listening, communicating feelings responsibly and no lose conflict resolving.

Interested persons may call Shelly Solomon, 398-0235, or Roberta Katz, 253-0023.

Happenings

Passover foods for sale

Orders for hamantaschen, available in cherry, prune, apricot or poppyseed, are now being taken by Woodfield Jewish Congregation Sisterhood. Priced at 35 cents or three for $1, order deadline is Friday, March 5. The hamantaschen will be ready for delivery Sunday, March 14, at the temple in Hanover Park.

Phylis Cohen, 884-0085, and Susan Forkos, 289-4808, are taking orders.

To save trips into Chicago or searching local stores for Passover needs, the sisterhood will also be offering matzos, gefilte fish, Passover candy and other supplies for the holiday which commemorates the Jewish flight from Egypt to freedom. Those wishing order lists may call Mrs. Cohen or Mrs. Forkos.

Organization workshop

"I've Got to Get Organized!," an all-day workshop on home, time, and money management will be offered by the Harper College Women's Program next Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the college board rooms. Tuition is $8, including lunch.

Rena Trevor, coordinator of Women's Programs, Audrey Inbody, associate counselor for Continuing Education, and Suzanne Herron, catering manager, all of Harper College will join Ann Howell, former editor of Money Management, Institute of Household Finance, Chicgo, in presenting the program.

Reservations can be made by telephoning 397-3000, extension 410.

Child care is available by prior registration for an additional charge. Information 397-3000, extension 292.

The way we see it

Norman attack damaged Dems

The suburbs need a strong two-party system, but in Wheeling Township the minority party is in big trouble.

Ironically, the danger to the Democrats comes not from the Republicans but from the township's Democratic committeeman, Donald Norman, who has launched a vendetta against State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, the Democratic legislator who represents the area.

Norman's feud, which had been simmering for months, surfaced last weekend at the annual Democratic Party dinner-dance. Norman carefully avoided any mention of Mrs. Chapman or any expression of support for her — although he did say "we support" Mrs. Chapman's running mate, newcomer Joan Brennan (who the "we" is remains unclear).

Norman even prevented one of Chapman's fellow legislators from telling the crowd that she wasn't present because of a broken leg.

Mrs. Chapman responded to Norman's slight by commenting from her hospital bed that she feels Norman doesn't like her, which is a masterful understatement. Undoubtedly, she can take care of herself in an open battle with Norman.

The real problem goes beyond the quarrel itself, for it is far less certain that the Wheeling Township Democratic Party can take care of itself in a major power struggle.

Our suburbs have been traditionally Republican, a situation that can produce all the problems of any one-party system. But if there is vigorous opposition, such inattention is discouraged, and the voter benefits.

Viewed in that light, Norman's behavior takes on more importance. By attempting to discipline a respected party leader in a sledgehammer fashion, he will only damage the cause of the party in the suburbs. He should bear that in mind before he resumes battering away at his own party.

Nixon's trip an outrage

The conduct of former President Richard Nixon in his visit to China is both outrageous and sad.

While paying a "private citizen" call on his friends in Peking, Nixon is conducting himself, and being treated, as a person with diplomatic stature. He has had four-hour meetings with top government officials. He has use of official residences, is toasted at official receptions, makes public comment to the Chinese about American foreign policy, even has "spontaneous" groups of citizens on hand to greet him in the streets in the name of world peace and friendship.

Chinese officials may go daffy if they want to. Undoubtedly they feel a warm spot for the man who reopened relations between mainland China and the United States.

Nixon should understand he cannot relive the old days. And the Chinese cannot restore his lost reputation.

As a person once charged with upholding the Constitution, he should understand the impropriety of a private citizen interfering with the foreign policy of the United States.

But Nixon has a blank spot when it comes to propriety.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, a staunch supporter of Nixon before the Watergate mess occurred, said, "I don't think the average American has enough respect for Mr. Nixon anymore to really believe that what he's doing is in anybody's interest but Mr. Nixon's."

Goldwater said the best thing Nixon can do is to stay in China where he's appreciated.

In your heart, you know, he's right.

Change produces little violence

Spain moves towards democracy

by PETER UBERSAX

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Three months after the death of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain is in the midst of deep political change.

The government of King Juan Carlos is committed to holding free elections next year. It has taken the first steps toward remodeling Franco's authoritarian state and is enacting laws to grant Spaniards wider political freedoms and human rights.

With outbreaks of leftist-inspired strikes and street protests, foes of the Franco regime keep up the pressure for political change.

"Amnesty" and "freedom" are shouts heard all over Spain as demonstrators gather in streets to go through what often looks like a well-rehearsed ritual of shout and run. Police are under orders to disperse demonstrators, but not to injure them.

AS A RESULT, change in Spain has produced little violence so far.

On the right, Franco faithfuls express horror at what is happening — but the chances appear slim that they can turn back the wheel.

The pollsters say more than two-thirds of Spaniards favor democracy as the follow-up to almost 40 years of one-man rule.

Nothing illustrates the changed mood in Spain better than the virtual freedom of the press to report and discuss almost any type of news, and the new freedoms given to opposition politicians.

Communist Marcelino Camacho, who was sentenced to 20 years in jail under Franco for organizing underground labor unions, was freed under a royal pardon a week after Franco's death.

ACCORDING TO press reports, the government has provided Camacho with two police bodyguards to protect him against right-wingers.

The press now can call Franco's reign a "dictatorship" — a term that automatically would have resulted in a newspaper's closure three months ago.

It can criticize or oppose government politics with hardly any restraint. Whatever action the censors still take is confined, in nine out of 10 cases, to supposed pornography — tame imitations of Western girlie magazines.

The news magazine Guadiana recently created a furor by printing a bare-bosomed picture of Nadiuska, Spain's most famous cover girl.

This led to protests in the Cortes parliament — but not a word was said when the same magazine featured a cover story blasting Premier Carlos Arias Navarro for going too slowly on reform. The cover depicted Arias in an unflattering pose, and the headline proclaimed: "Arias — no!"

Franco himself is hardly mentioned anymore in public or in private conversation — astonishing considering he ruled Spain single-handedly for almost four decades. The reason probably is that Spaniards are too busy discussing the future to talk about the past.

"THERE IS STILL so much respect for the man that people prefer to say nothing rather than to criticize him," one newspaper editor said.

But so far, the change is largely one of mood and not of law.

The government has said change must come slowly, step-by-step and within the framework of Franco's laws. It has given itself a deadline of June 30, 1977, for the introduction of universal suffrage, a two-chamber parliamentary system and the legalization of political parties excluding Communists and other extremists.

All these changes, the government has said, must be carried out under Franco's laws a condition imposed by the politically conservative army.

Still, not all systems are go for Juan Carlos' new deal regime.

The deeply entrenched right tries to put the brakes on reform through its dominance of the Cortes and the Council of the Realm — the king's supreme advisory body. Bitter parliamentary battles are foreseen for some of the new laws.

The center and left-wing opposition, in turn, is refusing to play along with the government's scheme of gradual reform. It demands what it calls a "democratic rupture" — a start from scratch instead of the step-by-step approach.

CHRISTIAN DEMOCRATS, Socialists and Communists argue — freely and in public — that the regime is incapable of carrying out true reform and that the Spanish people have waited for democracy too long to be kept waiting any more.

The pollsters say the Socialists and the Christian Democrats, each with close to 30 per cent of expected voter strength, are Spain's potentially strongest political groups.

The Communists are given no more than 10 per cent. But they have proved their strength among labor in a recent series of strikes involving more than 300,000 workers on a single day.

The 38-year-old king opened his reign with a posture of aloofness from politics, but has begun to take a stronger pro-reform attitude.

Visiting the restive northeastern region of Catalonia, he quickly adapted to the local mood with a speech partly made in the Catalonian language, a thing Franco never would have done.

"Personal freedom cannot be renounced — because God gave it to us," he told a cheering crowd. "Spain must become an authentic democracy oriented toward the common good."

It was the first time Franco's heir had used the word democracy in public to describe where Spain was headed.

'Cut administrators first'

In response to the article which appeared in the Herald on Monday, Feb. 16, stating the Board of Education for Des Plaines Dist. 62 planned to reduce its educational standards by a $700,000 cutback, my suggestion to the board is that they delve into the possibility of administrative cutbacks and work toward better education by allowing smaller classroom sizes.

Facilitation of running a school district of 5,882 students can be accomplished by a superintendent that has a good background in curriculum, thus eliminating the necessity of having an assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum. The superintendent should also be able to hire teachers for the district thus eliminating the need for an assistant in this area. Also, on staff at the present time is a director of instructional resource which overlaps the position of IMC coordinator, who is capable of handling the efficient operation of the IMC's in the district. Dist. 62 is also affiliated with the Maine Township program in the area of special education.

This affiliation overlaps with the township program in that we, as taxpayers, are paying part of the salaries to the directors and staff members of the township and, in addition, are paying a salary to the director of special services who does the repetitive work of the township and who subsequently divides these duties into coordinator positions. Either Dist. 62 should completely affiliate with the township eliminating the need for a director of special services or become self-containing in this area and pay the salary for Dist. 62 special services.

The question of savings should be looked into more carefully in the areas of the administrative level, thus freeing thousands of dollars which could be put into effecting a better educational program for our children. Now that enrollment figures have gone down, smaller classroom sizes could be implemented thus providing our children with more individualized and effective teaching. The teaching of art and music is essential in rounding out an individual and it goes without saying that our children should stay physically fit through gymnastics.

The taxpayers and children of Dist. 62 are better served by effective teaching through the retention of all our teachers, teaching in smaller classrooms and special personnel such as our social workers and guidance counselors helping effect a positive attitude in education.

If the board which represents us, the taxpayers, is adamant about cutting back teachers, then I as a taxpayer believe a proportionate cut in administrators should occur, for without teachers, what will the over-abundance of administrators be doing?

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Feb. 28 — Patrick Henry resigned his commission upon learning that Congress had appointed him colonel in command of the 1st battalion of Virginia forces rather than brigadier general as head of all of the colonies' armed forces.

'Let's turn to the Bible'

In reference to the Herald editorial, "Cover-up makes sense," Friday, Feb. 20, concerning the hiding of pornographic magazine covers from children's view. I totally agree that we, as citizens and parents in this community, have the moral responsibility to our children, to ourselves, but most of all to our Creator for upholding the morals which He so wisely designed to control our existence.

Unfortunately, it seems many have failed to recognize His existence and their standing in His eyes.

Cover up? Why? Is there a sense of guilt? Should we have a double standard for our children and ourselves; or maybe, just maybe our Creator instilled in our conscience a sense of discerning moral conduct from immoral.

I say burn those books, don't just cover them, and let's turn our eyes once again to God's great book, the Bible. Put the Bible in these stores instead and I guarantee you won't have to be afraid of one of your children reading it or looking at its cover.

She urges 'no' vote

Library taxes are one we can do without!

If something worthwhile is to be done, how about fixing the water hole in a nearby backyard? It has been a back-up problem for about 20 years. Aldermen told us there is no money to fix it with. And that is a health hazard, a breeding place for mosquitoes.

Let's do the necessary things first.

Vote "no" on the library referendum today.

'Clearly imperative'

Church council to seek ban on plutonium energy

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

Plutonium as a religious issue?

Yes, indeed.

When the governing board of the National Council of Churches meets in Atlanta early next month it will be asked to approve a policy statement committing members to seek a moratorium on decisions to pursue the use of plutonium as a major source of energy.

The proposed policy statement, which has generated fierce debate since it was presented for a "first reading" to the governing board last October, also urges continued theological, economic and technical debate on "the plutonium economy" before any "irrevocable decisions are made to pursue plutonium reactors as a major energy source."

What makes the use of plutonium nuclear reactors as a source of energy a religious issue?

FOR SUPPORTERS of the proposed National Council policy statement the answer is found in the first paragraph of the statement:

"It is clearly imperative for the Church to reaffirm its confession of God as the Lord of all creation and to proclaim to all people that we are responsible for all the ways in which we use, abuse or neglect to use the sources of energy God has made available to us."

On a more practical level, the issue of the "plutonium economy" comes up as it appears the world's fossil fuel resources — coal and oil — are rapidly being used up, demands for energy are growing and nuclear power as a prime alternative source of energy is increasingly being considered.

In 1974, a "committee of inquiry," cochaired by prominent scientists Rene Dubos and Margaret Mead, was established to study the implications of what appeared to be the growing dependence on the use of plutonium as a commercial nuclear fuel.

The "committee of inquiry" concluded that such dependence was "morally indefensible and technically objectionable" on the basis of the lack of safeguards against theft and nuclear blackmail, and in ensuring that the highly toxic fuel not be released into the atmosphere.

"IN AN EFFORT to supress nuclear violence and coercion, to limit the spread of illicit nuclear weapons, and to encourage the needed perpetual social stability, the United States and other countries may have to undertake massive social engineering and to abrogate traditional civil liberties," the Dubos-Mead team said.

But the proposed NCC statement has not gone unchallenged.

The Atomic Industrial Forum, an association of organizations concerned with the peaceful application of nuclear energy, in a detailed critique of the proposed statement and the background report submitted by the Dubos-Mead panel, has sought to give point-by-point responses to the concerns raised by the anti-nuclear scientists.

In addition, the two sides, with the addition of three ethicists, debated the issues at NCC headquarters in New York.

AT THE BASIS of much of the debate is the question of growth.

"We don't need maximum levels of growth — more is not necessarily better," said Dr. Dean Abrahamson, of the University of Minnesota, one of the anti-plutonium panelists.

He was challenged, however, by one of the nation's best-known physicists, Nobel prize-winner Dr. Hans Bethe who said pursuit of nuclear energy was not a desire for unlimited growth, but a need for replacing what we had. "A greater burden on future generations would be for us to exhaust the fossil fuels," he said.

The issue is unresolved and will remain unresolved even after the NCC acts in March. But as both sides agree, there are ethical and religious considerations to whatever policy the nation finally adopts.

5 years.

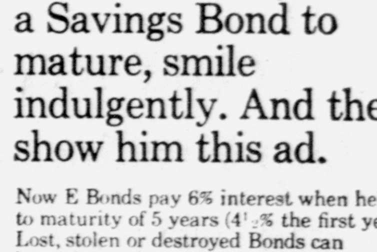
That's the exact time it takes for a U. S. Savings Bond to mature.

Unfortunately, most people still think it takes 10 years. Or 7. Wrong. It's exactly 5 years.

Of course, if you want to keep your money earning, there's a 10-year extension privilege beyond maturity.

We'd appreciate it if you'd help us clear up the confusion. Next time somebody tells you it takes 10 years for a Savings Bond to mature, smile indulgently. And then show him this ad.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.



Take stock in America.
Now Bonds mature in 5 years.

FREMD'S Doug Smidl finished out of the running for a P-Bar medal but still fashioned a 7.45 at the Rolling Meadows Sectional Friday night. The Hersey Huskies earned a trip to the state finals, winning with a 145.34 score. Rolling Meadows was second with 143.01.

Lococo only area matman in title fight

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

CHAMPAIGN — Herald area wrestling hopes received a severe jolt here Friday afternoon and evening.

With two sessions down and two remaining at the Illinois state wrestling tournament, only one area entry remains in the running for title honors from nine over-all qualifiers.

Hersey High School's 132-pounder Dan Lococo is the only grappler still alive in the championship bracket heading into today's semi-final round.

Three other Northwest suburban youngsters — Fremd's Doug McCarthy, Hoffman Estate's Jim Thomas, and St. Viator's Scott Zettek — still maintain hopes of wrestling back for places third through sixth.

Among the casualties were Buffalo Grove's trio of finalists, including previously unbeaten 126-pounder Rich Wilhelm. Wilhelm's win streak ended, 9-3, at 39 by Keith Puebla of Moline, also undefeated.

Several hours later Wilhelm was wiped out of the wrestlebacks by Jeff Gerdes of Oak Forest, 5-3.

Also falling in the wrestlebacks after winning his opening bout was Bison Greg Thomson at 132. He lost to Ed Rogers of DeKalb, 13-3. Teammate Doug Browning lost his opener at 145 and was never afforded the opportunity to come back.

Others succumbing in the opening round Friday were 119-pound Jim Carlstrom and 167-pound Ted Tyk of Rolling Meadows. Carlstrom, after losing to Dave Palmeno of Rockford East, last year's sixth place finisher, was paired off against the returning No. 3 man, Tom Best of Naperville. Best triumphed, 12-7.

Tyk, injured in his opening round setback to Eric Moll of Barrington, had the opportunity to wrestle back but was forced to forfeit out of the running.

Lococo, the only championship survivor, barely escaped an opening round battle and then roared past DeKalb's Rogers, 9-4, in the quarterfinals to earn a shot at Scott McGhee of Orland Park today in the semis. The Huskie senior trailed 9-4 after the first period of his leadoff match with Dan Murphy of Belleville East and then rallied with a startling series of takedowns and escapes to win at the buzzer, 17-16.

McCarthy of Fremd lost his opener at 126 to Bill Kaiser of Peoria Richwoods, 12-8, but won over Dave Larson of Sandburg by default.

Thomas of Hoffman, after winning 2-0 in his first bout, dropped a 10-6 verdict to Todd Whitfield of Glenbrook South in the 155 quarterfinals. Thomas then stopped Paul Jankowski of Rich East in the consolation bracket, 6-2.

Zettek of St. Viator also won, lost, and then won to stay alive for a medal. The heavyweight lost to Pat Renfrow of Bremen, 5-4, after a 4-3 triumph over Greg Thompson of Glenbard South.

In the wrestlebacks Zettke squeezed out a 4-3 overtime nod over Public League champion Steve Solaja of Washington.

Tague leads area swimming qualifiers

by BOB GALLAS
Swimming Editor

DARIEN — Led by Hersey's Chris Tague, who made the final six in two events, four area swimmers and the St. Viator freestyle relay team made the Illinois state swimming finals today through their performances here Friday night.

Meanwhile, Hinsdale Central looked like a sure bet to take its 10th state swim title in a row, taking the top times in eight of 11 qualifying events.

Friday's competition pared down the field from 388 contestants to 12 in each of the eight swimming events, 12 divers and 12 schools in each of the two relays. Those who finish first through sixth in the qualifying round are eligible for the state title today. Those who finished seventh through 12th can place no higher than seventh when finals start at 1 p.m. today.

Facing his first real competition of the year, Tague turned in the second best time in the 200-yard freestyle Friday night at the Hinsdale South pool. Tague went 1:43.778 in the event, but was edged out by Kankakee Eastridge's Rusty Walker who went 1:43.732.

In the 500-yard freestyle, where Tague had held a five second cushion most of the year, the Hersey speedster finished third, behind Carbondale's Chris Phillips (4:39.328) and Hinsdale Central's George Tidmarsh whose time dropped 12 seconds in the event to take the top spot with a 4:38.960. Tague's time, his best so far this year in the event, was 4:42.077.

For the St. Viator Lions, Marh Rohl shook off his illness of the past few weeks to come from the back of the pack to finish sixth in the 100-yard Freestyle with a time of 48.467 seconds. The Viator freestyle relay team took fifth place in the qualifying round with a time of 3:18.011.

Rohl, whose district qualifying time put him 44th out of 45 swimmers in the event, also swam a 100-yard leg of the free relay where he went 47.6, better than the winning time in the 100-freestyle. So Rohl could be a title contender when the finals begin today also at Hinsdale South.

Also qualifying for today's state finals from the Herald area was Prospect's Spencer Gilchrist, who will compete in the backstroke finals. Gilchrist's 8th place finish with a time of 57.002 qualified him for the consolation bracket today.

Hersey's premier diver, Bill Cashmore, finished seventh Friday in diving from a field of 52. Cashmore had accumulated 303.96 points at the end of competition Friday. Hinsdale Central's Dave Boldebuck leads divers with 363.54 points.

There were many disappointed swimmers from the Herald area, including Rolling Meadows' Tom Stahnke, who failed to qualify for the finals in the 50-yard freestyle or the butterfly, where he had been ranked sixth in the state.

Chris Stewart of St. Viator was also a threat in the 100-yard freestyle, but Stewart false started twice and was disqualified from the event.

Other area schools that came back empty handed from the qualifying round were Arlington, Forest View, Maine West, Rolling Meadows and Buffalo Grove.

Two state records were broken in competition here Friday. The Hinsdale South 200-yard medley relay team broke its own record set in 1971 of 1:37.4. The Red Devils' foursome turned in a time of 1:36.94.

Hinsdale South's Kevin Lange set a new state meet mark in winning the 50-yard freestyle, breaking a 1972 record of 21.5 seconds set by Glenn Disosway, also of Hinsdale South. Lange's record time was 21.316.

Despite finishing out of first for the first time all year, Tague seemed confident that he will do well today. Tague said in the 200, he wasn't going full speed.

"I died a little after the first 125 yards, so I eased up. But then after about 25 yards I felt good, so went all out," said the Hersey star who nevertheless turned in his best time of the year in the event.

St. Viator coach John Fleck was pleased with Rohl's come from behind efforts, but somewhat disappointed in his team's showing. The Lions were figured to do better than their effort, qualifying only Rohl and their relay team for today's finals, which will be delayed broadcast on WGN-TV, Channel 9, starting at 4 p.m.

$250,000 Las Vegas challenge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The slugger against the clever boxer is the advance story on Saturday's $250,000-plus "heavyweight challenge" tennis match between Jimmy Connors and Manuel Orantes.

The last time they met Orantes won the 1975 U.S. Open title by turning back the young American 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

The slugger Connors was off his game that day at Forest Hills, just about everyone agrees, and he wants to make up for it before a capacity crowd of 3,500 at Caesar's Palace tennis pavilion and before uncounted millions on CBS-TV starting at 2 p.m.

In a promotion stunt Thursday the players were weighed in like boxers and Connors scaled 165 against 170½ for Orantes.

The Saturday format is the best three of five sets with a nine point tie-breaker as needed.

Gus Lanna, who is umpire for the match, says Connors in practice here "is hitting the ball as hard as I've ever seen him."

Orantes, the quiet 27-year-old Spaniard, has impressed observers here with his drop shots, slices, lobs and other off-speed stuff. He hits a lot of "junk" like a knuckle-ball pitcher throws.

Borg wins $110,000 in Sweden

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg beat Australian Rod Laver 6-4, 6-2, 7-5, Friday night in a winner-take-all $110,000 invitational tennis tournament.

The 19-year-old Swede had no trouble winning in three straight sets against the 37-year-old veteran, who had said before the match that he had trained "hard" for five weeks before the contest.

Borg, fresh from a victory in Hawaii, found the only rough going in the third set, but managed to pull through with several well placed volleys.

"I am satisfied with the way I played tonight," said Borg. "I am satisfied that my serves went well, I lobbed pretty good and my overhead play went the way I wanted."

Laver, naturally, was disappointed. "The problem is that I am not playing consistently enough. I could hit three or four good points only to do a foolish mistake in the next two or three points."

Elk Grove takes gym show to Niles West Sectional

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

The Elk Grove Grenadiers will wear the favorite's mantle today when they take the next step in state gymnastics competition at the Niles West Sectional.

The Grenadiers coasted to the Maine West district title last week with a score of 142.79 and they will need to hit that again to hold off Niles North, Niles East and New Trier East in today's sectional.

The meet will be split into two sessions. Free ex, side horse and high bar will be contested at 1 p.m. and trampoline, P-Bars and still rings at 7 p.m.

Niles West is located at Oakton and the Edens Expressway in Skokie.

"If we hit like we can we should win it," said Elk Grove coach Fred Gaines. "Niles North has been around 140 but if we score our potential we could be around 146."

Niles North swept the Glenbrook South district title with a score of 137.10 and has several performers who could advance to the state finals at Prospect next week if they don't make it as a team.

"We've got four good free ex men," said Niles North coach John Cress. "Mike Adelson and Paul Fischburg tied for the district championship with 7.95 but they were at 8.35 in the conference meet.

"Randy Berman, who has been as high as 8.6 this year is usually better than both of them."

Berman is also a top trampoline man for Niles North while John Suzukida is a side horse threat.

"I'm optimistic," Cress said. "It should be a tossup between us and Elk Grove."

Niles East won their own district with a team composed largely of sophomores and juniors. They hit 133.71 and head coach Tom Sokalski doesn't hold much hope of a sectional title.

"The other teams involved in the sectional are quite formidable opponents," Sokalski said. "We're just happy that this group of youngsters managed to win the district in what we thought would be a rebuilding year."

John Carlson won the district trampoline title with an 8.45 and Dave Abrahamson finished second on the rings with an 8.35.

Side horse specialist Steve Smith threw an 8.1 for Niles East in the districts but the sectional title belongs to Elk Grove's Tim Connelly.

"I think he will win the state," Gaines said. "He's just too pretty. Nobody has the flair Tim does."

Connelly hit an 8.65 to win the district title and has gone much higher than that this year.

A highlight of the Niles West Sectional will be the all-around battle between the Grens' Gene Christensen and Craig Martin of Maine South.

Although Martin's Maine South team didn't advance to the sectionals he won the Niles East district all-around title.

Christensen grabbed the Maine West district all-around crown, overcoming a case of the flu to post a 7.94.

"Gene is healthy," Gaines said, "and he should be able to get through to state.

"Martin is a very solid on the side horse but Gene has some new tricks and could go 7.5 or 7.6. If he hits I think he can beat Martin."

'Showpiece game' in South Bend

Al McGuire, coach of No. 2 ranked Marquette, was talking Friday about Saturday's game with No. 6 ranked Notre Dame in South Bend and he made it sound as if there were nothing at stake. Almost, that is.

"This is an Emmy game, like Emmy or Oscar night," he said. "A showpiece game. It's a fan rivalry."

McGuire went on to downgrade the importance of the game while still admitting that the rivalry is probably the most important one of all to Warrior fans —. "A conversation game, one they'll talk about all summer."

McGuire's Warriors are assured of a bid to the NCAA tournament and, indeed, have a good shot at the national title. And that's all that worries McGuire right now.

He said he doesn't even care about losing the No. 2 ranking the Warriors have held all season.

"I could care less about that. It's nice," he said, "but it's not as important as tournaments."

Marquette, 22-1, and Notre Dame, 20-4, are two of the best teams in the country and a lot of basketball fans will be watching the outcome of a game McGuire seems to be unexcited about in most of his official pronouncements.

Digger Phelps, Notre Dame's coach, also seems to be more concerned about the tournament and his team's bid to it than about the game with Marquette, which will be televised on Channel 9 at 12 noon.

"It doesn't matter to me," he said this week. "W're 20-4 and I think we'll get a bid somewhere and that's all I care about. Plus Al's team is in for sure so winning or losing won't affect the tournament thing either way."

Michigan hopes to clinch second

Michigan can write an official finish to the Big Ten basketball race Saturday when it plays at Iowa in the only contest of four on the schedule which means anything in the conference race.

Indiana already has clinched its third undisputed championship in the last four years, and Michigan, by winning at Iowa, can clinch undisputed second place and probably an NCAA tournament berth.

Michigan goes to Iowa with a 12-3 record and while it can't catch the Hoosiers now, it can knock Iowa out of a contention with a win and also maintain its three-game edge on Michigan State with only two games left to play, assuring a runnerup finish.

Other games on the Saturday card will be Ohio State at Northwestern, Illinois at Purdue (Channel 44, 3:00) and Michigan State at Minnesota (Channel 5, 1:00).

In interesting games involving Chicago area independents DePaul, still carrying hopes for a post-season bid, will entertain Wisconsin-Green Bay at 8:00 and Loyola will host Detroit at 7:30.

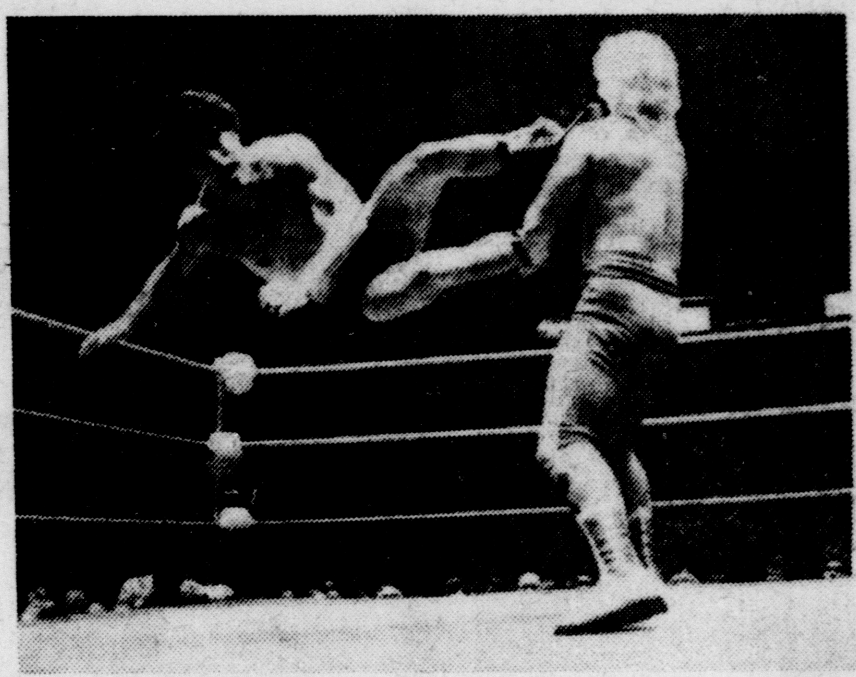
Bayi runs 3:56.1 indoor mile

Filbert Bayi ran the third fastest mile in indoor history Friday night, 3:56.1, to highlight the 88th National AAU championships in New York.

The 22-year-old defending mile champion from Tanzania, took the lead early in the first lap and led the rest of the way. Paul Cummings, of the Beverly Hills Striders, kept on Bayi's heels for most of the race as the Tanzanian sped to a 57.9 first quarter, a 1:58.0 half and a 2:58.8 three quarters.

In the last lap, Bayi pulled away from Cummings and sprinted to a 12-yard advantage at the finish. Cummings was timed in 3:58.4.

The indoor record is 3:55.0 by Tony Waldrop. The meet record, set in 1963, was 3:59.0 by Jim Beatty. The only faster mile run indoors other than Waldrop's was 3:55.8 by Marty Liquori last year.



JAPANESE WRESTLER Antonio Inoki, left, will fight world heavyweight boxing champ Muhammad Ali if and when Ali disposes of Ken Norton and George Foreman, a Los Angeles newspaper reported Friday. See related story.

'New' January fires 68 to pass Nicklaus, Snead

Don January, a wiry Texan who has found new life on the pro golf tour in his mid 40s, forged ahead of Jack Nicklaus and J.C. Snead Friday to take the second round lead in the $300,000 Tournament Players Championship in Lauderhill, Fla.

Nicklaus, who played the last two holes of his first round early Friday morning, had shared the lead with Snead, winner two weeks ago at San Diego, for about four hours before January moved a stroke ahead at nine-under par 135, with a second round 68.

Nicklaus, the pre-tournament favorite, had 66-70--136 and Snead, nephew of nearly 64-year-old Sam Snead, who is also playing here, had 67-69--136.

January, who returned to the tour last year after spending two and half years in voluntary exile, started the round at five under and caught Nicklaus and J.C. Snead in eight holes with three birdies.

Fred Marti, who had a 66 Thursday and held the lead alone until Nicklaus birdied the first of two holes he had to make up Friday morning, moved back into the pack in the second round with a 74-140.

Is a wrestler in Ali's future?

Muhammad Ali will fight a 6-4, 265-pound Japanese wrestler if and when he disposes of Ken Norton and George Foreman, the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner said Friday.

The wrestler is 24-year-old Antonio Inoki, half-owner of the North American tag team championship.

The Herald-Examiner said Ali has already signed to fight the wrestler in Tokyo during the third week of October for a guarantee of $4 million. The bout will be promoted by Nippon Educational Television.

Following his defeat of Jean Pierre Coopman last week, Ali was quoted as saying he would fight "a man who isn't a prizefighter." He wouldn't give his name.

"He's gonna fight his way and I'm gonna fight my way," Ali said.

Owners try again but 'pitch' fails

The major league baseball owners have proposed to the Players Association further modifications of the reserve clause in hopes of getting spring training open on time — but there was still no sign of a breakthrough.

The owners early in the week ordered the camps shut until a new basic agreement could be reached with the Players Association. Spring training traditionally gets underway March 1.

The lack of a reserve clause has been the blame for the delay and the owners introduced Friday what they said was "a new proposal" that contained factors which had not been covered in the clubs' previous proposals designed to reconstruct a workable reserve system.

The new pitch was made by the Player Relations Committee, which has handled the negotiations for the owners throughout their duration. The old contract expired Dec. 31.

However, Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said the new proposal was not much different than the previous one.

"The differences were indeed very slight," said Miller. "In fact, the proposal was described by the Players Relations Committee in presenting them as clarification of the prior proposal. That should tell you something."

Miller said he was not optimistic about a quick settlement.

U.S. gymnasts need good score

The United States men's gymnastics team, needing a good score to qualify for the Olympic Games this summer, hosts Romania Saturday and Sunday in an international meet at the University of California's Harmon Gym.

The Romanian men's team already has qualified for the Olympics so the meet is just a tuneup for the visitors while the Americans need a victory or a high-scoring loss to make the final round for Montreal.

Leading the American contingent is Cal's Tom Beach, who recently scored a phenomenal 9.8 on the horizontal bar in both the compulsory and optional exercises in a meet against Canada.

Others on the American team are Bart Conner of Morton Grove, Ill.; former Stanford star and two-time Olympian Steve Hug; Wayne Young, the 1975 all-around champion from Brigham Young University, and Peter Kormann of Southern Connecticut State. Tom Weeden of California and Bobby Farb of Stanford are the alternates while Karl Schwenzfeier of the Air Force Academy is the U.S. coach.

Foyt has qualifying headaches

A broken timing chain kept Texan A. J. Foyt from qualifying Friday for Sunday's Carolina 500, but Lennie Pond ignored a skipping engine to grab the 16th spot on the grid in Rockingham, N.C.

Foyt was forced out of the Daytona 500 with a broken timing chain and he shredded another one in a practice run in his Chevrolet Friday. His crew worked to repair the engine so he could go after one of the final six spots in the 36-car field open Saturday.

"It's the same thing that happened at Daytona," a dejected Foyt said Friday afternoon as 27 drivers battled for positions 16-30 in the $132,000 event that starts at noon Sunday.

Dave Marcis holds the pole position. He was clocked at 138.287 mph in a Dodge to lead Buddy Baker and Richard Petty, the winningest driver on the stock car circuit.

Pond, whose Chevy made it in Friday morning from Petersburg, Va., after a new engine was installed, was clocked at 133.647 miles per hour, despite the misfiring motor.

The Hersey Huskies overcame the effects of a tilted trampoline to nip the Rolling Meadows Mustangs 145.34 to 143.01 Friday night and advance to the state gymnastics finals next week with the Rolling Meadows Sectional trophy safely in their grasp.

Hersey, trailing by .30 of a point to the host Mustangs after the first night of competition, nearly lost their chance to advance to the state as a team when their top three trampoline specialists blew their routines.

But a clutch performance by the P-Bars and still rings teams and the all-around brilliance of senior Danny Muenz assured the Huskies of finishing among the six best gymnastics teams in Illinois.

"My kids noticed the bed tilting during warmups," Hersey head coach Don Von Ebers said, "but they didn't say anything about it until their routines were finished. If they had said something we could have corrected it."

The slight tilt was enough to force Hersey's top three tramp men, Bob Solomon, Ray Peters and Bob Barut, into the springs that connect the bed to the frame.

The errors brought Hersey's trampoline score down nearly three points from what they have averaged all season and knocked the Huskie tramp specialists out of any shot at individual state honors.

"They feel bad about that," Von Ebers said. "But I told them they still can contribute to the team score."

Meadows' Glenn Johnson fired an 8.15 to win the trampoline event while Prospect's Doug Zahour took second with an 8.10.

Arlington's Chris Smith and Randy Fischer of Mundelein tied for third on the event with scores of 8.05.

Danny Muenz was taking no chances about his trip to the state meet.

He won individual titles on free ex (8.50) and P-Bars (8.50) and bombed the all-around field with an 8.29 average, his best score of the year.

The Huskies' ace took medals on every event he entered.

Rich Stange pulled his weight on the P-Bars to help the Huskies recover from their disastrous trampoline showing.

After tying Muenz for the district title he fired an 8.15 to place second in the sectional.

Prospect's Jim Tangney helped his team to a third place finish, the Knights totaled 139.28, as he placed third on the P-Bars with a score of 7.95.

Meadows' Guy Owsiany was fourth at 7.75 and Buffalo Grove's Dewey Deal fifth at 7.65.

The Mustangs still have a chance at qualifying for the state meet as a team. They will go if their 143.01 score is one of the two highest scores among the runnerup teams in the four sectionals.

"I sure hope we get a chance to go," said Meadows coach Vic Avigliano. "Someone at the Niles West Sectional has to mess up a little."

Elk Grove is favored to win that district and the scores of Niles East and North, the teams expected to challenge the Grens, have only been in the high 130s.

Buffalo Grove's Dewey Deal gained a bit of revenge as he grabbed the second place medal in the all-around with an average of 7.29.

Deal had lost the district all-around title to Mundelein's Jeff Martin but topped the Mustang this time around by .25 of a point.

Hersey continued their recovery on the still rings with Muenz winning the third place medal at 8.45. Vince Corrado's 7.55 and Don Dean's 7.35 added fine support for the Huskies.

The championship of the still rings was not decided until the final competitors. And when they were done it was still undecided.

Arlington's Tom Staley, the next to last specialist in the event, cracked off an 8.6 to take the lead from Muenz' 8.45.

Wheeling's Dale Brungraber closed out the meet with another 8.6 to tie Staley for the individual title.

Rolling Meadows' Dave Bycroft and Glenn Wilke of Prospect tied for fourth place with scores of 8.35.

Ventress wins tennis coaches' tourney

Four years of trying paid off for Rich Central High School coach Andy Ventress recently when he captured first place in River Trails Tennis Center's fifth annual "Coaches' Night" tournament.

Ventress, whose trek from Park Forest also gave him the "longest drive" title, won going away. He whipped Dan Wilson of Maine East in the final, 6-1, after downing Forest View's Doug Tolman, 6-3, in the semifinals.

Jim Gelhaar of Prospect also made the semis, giving the northwest three of the final four.

Lefthanded Bill Lange of Maine South won the consolation championship with a 6-1 conquest of Proviso East's George Kalivoda.

Championship flight summaries:

First round — Tolman over Lange, 6-4; Art Belmonte (Maine East) over Leroy Goldstein (Farragut), 7-6; Wes Dusek (Wheaton North) over Bob Goerne (Maine West), 6-0; Gelhaar over Larry Faulkner (Glenbrook South), 6-3.

Quarterfinals — Ventress over Bob Dollaske (Maine East), 6-3; Tolman over Goldstein, 6-1; Gelhaar over Dusek, 6-3; Wilson over Kalivoda, 7-6.

Semifinals — Ventress over Tolman, 6-3; Wilson over Gelhaar, 6-3.

Finals — Ventress over Wilson, 6-1.

Consolation flight summaries:

Lange over Dollaske, 6-2; Kalivoda over Faulkner, 6-0; Lange over Belmonte, 6-2; Kalivoda over Goerne, 6-3; Lange over Kalivoda, 6-1.

GOOD POSITION. St. Viator's Joe Kellner (22) has the good rebounding position and takes the ball away from St. Joseph's Wayne Mobley in action Friday night at the Lion gymnasium. St. Viator's strong second half defense helped turn the game around and give the Lions a 52-46 victory.

Defense helps St. Viator topple St. Joseph, 52-46

by DAVID HESS

Coach Ron Creiger of St. Viator sounded like his team had just lost its season's finale instead of winning 52-46 going away over visiting St. Joseph.

"It was terrible. The best house of the year and we played poorly.

"The whole game was sloppy," said Creiger. "In the first half we committed 17 turnovers and had 32 for the game. We can't make that many mistakes and expect to win in the regionals."

It was the Lions' defense that overcame a seven-point halftime deficit, and held the Chargers to two baskets in the third quarter. Forcing St. Joseph into costly turnovers with an occasional press, St. Viator capitalized on the opponent's mistakes and pulled away despite a 20-point, 15 rebound performance by Charger forward Andy Cooper.

"They weren't expecting that press, and I think it bothered them," said Creiger. "It got 'em thinking."

St. Joseph was forced to play most of the second half without their two best big men. Ray Donald and Andy Cooper who scored 14 of his game high 20 points were forced to sit when each collected their fourth foul early in the third quarter.

Creiger was pleased with his team's defense. "We have to play good defense in order to win. We have to play perfect."

Viator hurt themselves in the first half by making only three of 11 free throws, but straightened out in the second half by hitting nine of eleven from the charity stripe.

Steve Notaro came off the bench and to lead the Lions in scoring with 16 points, 12 in the second half. Glen Girard threw in 15 for St. Viator's balanced attack. Underclassmen Joe Kellner, Jack White, and Paul Wiloff also came off the bench to split 11 points and 16 rebounds.

"I'd have to say our 8-6 conference record is disappointing," said Creiger. "We lost a couple close games that could have gone the other way, but in the regionals you throw all those records away."

The Lions, 8-15 overall, face their first regional foe, Maine North, 8:30 Tuesday night at Wheeling.

Warriors use late surge to top Niles East, 66-55

The Maine West Warriors used a fourth quarter surge, mainly from the free throw line, for a come-from-behind win at Niles East, 66-55, Friday night.

Led by Buddy Doroskin, who came in from the bench off the final period, West outscored East 23-11 in the last eight minutes of the foul plagued contest.

West won the game at the charity stripe, connecting on 26 of 42 attempts. A total of 58 fouls was whistled in the contest, 34 of them against Niles East.

Doroskin watched from the bench for the first three quarters, bothered with a slightly sprained ankle he suffered in practice Wednesday. His return to the lineup turned things around for the Warriors, who were struggling in the third period where they were outscored 21-7.

Six players fouled out in the fourth quarter, four from Niles East. Bob Zuccarini and Pete Karabas fouled out for the Warriors.

Zuccarini led Maine West in scoring with 14. Bill Fininis contributed 12, all of them coming in the first half.

The win gives the Warriors third place in the Central Suburban League South, one game behind second place Maine South, which upset league leader Niles West, 75-73 Friday night. The Warriors finish 10-4 in the league.

Boat show setting sail to area

Boating enthusiasts planning to attend the 7th Annual Midwest Boat Show during its 10-day run at Arlington Park Race Track March 5-14, can still purchase discount tickets from a variety of local dealers.

A savings of one-third off the gate price of $3 is available for adults at such outlets as Boat Supermarket in Rolling Meadows, the U.S. Navy Recruiting Station in Palatine, Metal Craft Sales in Prospect Heights and Ahlstrand Marine in Wheeling.

Other discount ticket locations include Midwest Trail Cruise Sailboats and Tri-City Upholstery in Barrington, Kirby of McHenry County in Crystal Lake and Nelson Marine, Inc. in Des Plaines among others.

Every kind of boat, from rubber dinghy to 30-foot cruisers will be on display in addition to canoes, houseboats and sailboats of every shape and size.

Everything under the roof will be for sale during the 10-day show and the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary will present short courses in boating safety.

Camp Duncan

The Camp Duncan YMCA Swim Team rounded out their grueling season this past weekend with double wins. The CDY Gold team won a triangular meet against Elgin YMCA and Kankakee YMCA, which was held in Kankakee, while the Blue team won over the High Ridge Y.

The CDY Dolphins swam a record number of meets this season, totaling more than 44 duel, Triangular and Invitational meets. The CDY Girls had a perfect season with no losses, while the boys had only one loss to mar their record, losing to the National Champions B.R. Ryall in a close meet.

The Dolphin swimmers are now working in preparation for the Satellite and State Championships, which will be held in March.

West trackmen in title defense at league meet

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

If there's an area track team farther along than Maine West, let it come forward now.

Now is the time, believe it or not, for the Warriors of coach Ron Brown to defend their Central Suburban League indoor title, and Brown's boys seem to be pretty heavy favorites to do it, too.

Maine West will meet the challenge of strong teams from Maine East and Maine South, as well as the rest of the CSL South schools, when the indoor championships get under way at 12:30 today at Maine East's fieldhouse.

The Warriors have already put five meets behind them and are nearing their indoor peak. They have strength and depth in the distances, the sprints, the hurdles, the high jump and the long jump. The only apparent weaknesses are in the triple jump and the shot.

For the first time the CSL will conduct separate indoor championships for the North and the South divisions. They may be the earliest indoor conference meets ever held in Illinois.

Conant and Hoffman Estates of the Mid-Suburban League will join a large field at the Glenbard South Relays today at noon. In other track action, Fremd visits powerful Bloom, Schaumburg travels to Glenbard North, and Hersey hosts Phillips at 10:30 a.m.

In the only meeting of MSL teams, Wheeling entertains Elk Grove, beginning at 10 a.m.

Prospect made its MSL indoor debut on Wednesday, dropping a 71-51 decision to Rolling Meadows, but they picked up seven first places in the process. Senior Jim Wright took three of the wins in the 50-yard dash (:05.8), the 60-yard highs (:07.9), and the 60-lows (:07.5).

Prospect's Bryan Granzin reached 12-6 for a victory in the pole vault and Mark Smith swept the mile (4:51.4) and the two-mile (10:06.1).

Versatile junior Brad Millar will join the Knights at the conclusion of the basketball season. Millar scored points last year in the MSL outdoor high jump and long jump finals.

Rolling Meadows standout Jeff Lund rolled to three victories against Prospect — in the high jump (6-0), long jump (20-½), and triple jump (39-10). Lund had reached 6-1 in the high jump at the Panther Relays the previous weekend.

Meadows sprinter Rick Sutton made his first competitive effort in the 440-yard dash a winning one with a time of :56.0, a decent clocking on the Prospect oval. Sutton, a junior who will be defending his MSL outdoor 100 title, ran the 50-dash in :05.55 for a close second to Addison Trail's Jim Rosone at the Panther Relays.

Hersey buried Maine North 95-28 Thursday by taking 12 firsts, including wins in all three relays. Gary Modesto won a couple of events, the 50-yard dash (:06.0) and the long jump (19-½).

Dave Koelper reached another season best in the triple jump with a 41-6½ effort and teammate Tony Becker was second with his top jump of the year, 40-8½. Huskie shotputter Dave Komiss, the first area weightman to surpass 50 feet, settled for 48-1¾ and a win on Thursday. Matt Zakula threw 47-11 for second and also high jumped 5-4 for first place in that event.

Be careful of unscrupulous teachers

by JOE GONZALEZ
A Karate Instructor

When a person initially undertakes the study of karate today, he simply wants to learn to fight. However, as his training continues to progress he becomes aware of a higher calling, one that suggests improving character, establishing dignity and developing a sense of honor in addition to fighting ability.

If this theory at first seems doubtful or odd to you, direct your attention to early English history when men received the title of knighthood as a result of displaying valor, dignity as well as skill in the arts of combat. Obviously, people receiving recognition of personal development is not new by any means. In early Japan this same procedure was practiced and those who earned it were honored by being raised to the status of the samurai. Neither in England nor in Japan was this rank taken lightly for each had proven his abilities which demanded respect from his fellow man.

Because advancement and self-improvement have traditionally been the goals of the martial arts student, it is not surprising to see this same attitude among practioners today. The black belt is an award which is issued to the modern day knight or samurai who has devoted himself to discipline and development of his mind and body until he has reached the peak of attainment. In other words, the black belt is the symbol of an expert.

Before qualifying for the black belt the practitioner, known as a karateka, progresses through a series of levels until the Sho-dan (first black belt) is awarded. This represents the student as having mastered the basics of the art and is now ready for additional training in advanced form. As he continues to learn and advance he'll receive "Dans" or degrees of black belt.

The purpose of this belt escalator is to provide motivation to the student. To this end it has worked very well. Unfortunately, because of this system problems have arisen.

One is the diversity of standards. There is no universal agreement as to what each rank and degree represents among dojos over the world.

The standards set forth by the Japanese have been altered to suit the purposes of some unscrupulous teachers who would rather dupe the public than correctly instruct the true nature of the art. On the other hand, it is difficutl to establish a set of standards due to the individuality of each person and his reactions during training. The problem is this is exactly what must be done if the rank of black belt is to have real value and meaning. If unqualified students continue to receive black belts by unqualified instructors, the end result will be disgrace not only to themselves but to the entire art of karate.

To prevent this devaluation of karate, the public must be informed of the differences in ranking and of the ability of a truly qualified black belt. They should be alert to those clubs which use the term black belt as a lure only to recruit students. It should be known that in a respectable club a black belt can be earned only after three to five years of hard work and only under the guidance of a competent instructor.

Those in the karate field for its true meaning feel it is their responsibility to serve as educators to the public at large and to promote and establish a standard system of testing the black belt applicant. It is just as important for the karateka to understand that the black belt he seeks is not a gift, but a goal and a symbol of one's sacrifices and great effort. By doing this, the art of karate in general will benefit resulting in a greater sense of pride and achievement in being awarded the rank of black belt.

Consider the knights and samurais of old who allowed nothing to tarnish their honor nor take away prestige. Should those who are sincerely interested in the art today desire anything less?

To be awarded a black belt is to be awarded a great honor. May it continue to prevail.

Women golfers to hold meeting

The Buehler YMCA Women's Golf League is announcing its annual signup coffee 9:30 a.m., Monday, March 8, at the Y, located on Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive in Palatine.

This will be followed by a potluck luncheon to be held April 12. Mrs. Joseph Chase, President of the league, announced that season play will begin May 3 at Thunderbird club in Palatine and will continue on Monday mornings through Aug. 30. The membership fee will be $5 for Y members and $10 for non-members.

Golfers' own caddies can be used in Opens

Beginning in 1976, contestants in the United States Open and Women's Open Championships may employ caddies of their choice. It had been the policy of the United States Golf Association that caddies in these competitions be drawn by lot from a pool of caddies recruited by the host club.

The change in policy had been announced earlier this year, but not to take effect until 1977. Since that earlier announcement, the host clubs for the 1976 Open and Women's Open have waived a provision of their contracts with the USGA granting host clubs the prerogative of supplying all caddies. The 1976 sites are the Atlanta Athletic Club, Atlanta, Ga., for the Open, and the Rolling Green Golf Club, Springfield, Pa., for the Women's Open.

The change in policy was explained earlier by Frank D. Tatum, Jr., of San Francisco, chairman of the USGA Championship Committee, as follows:

"For some time the Executive Committee has been reviewing our caddie policy. The impact of golf cart use has substantially reduced the number of experienced competent caddies available throughout the country. Our concern has been, because of increasing difficulty in locating the required number of caddies competent to perform in the Opens, that some player may be at an unfair disadvantage because he or she has a caddie not competent for the event. In other words, we are less concerned about someone being assisted in winning an Open by a particularly effective caddie than by someone losing an Open because of a caddie who is less than competent."

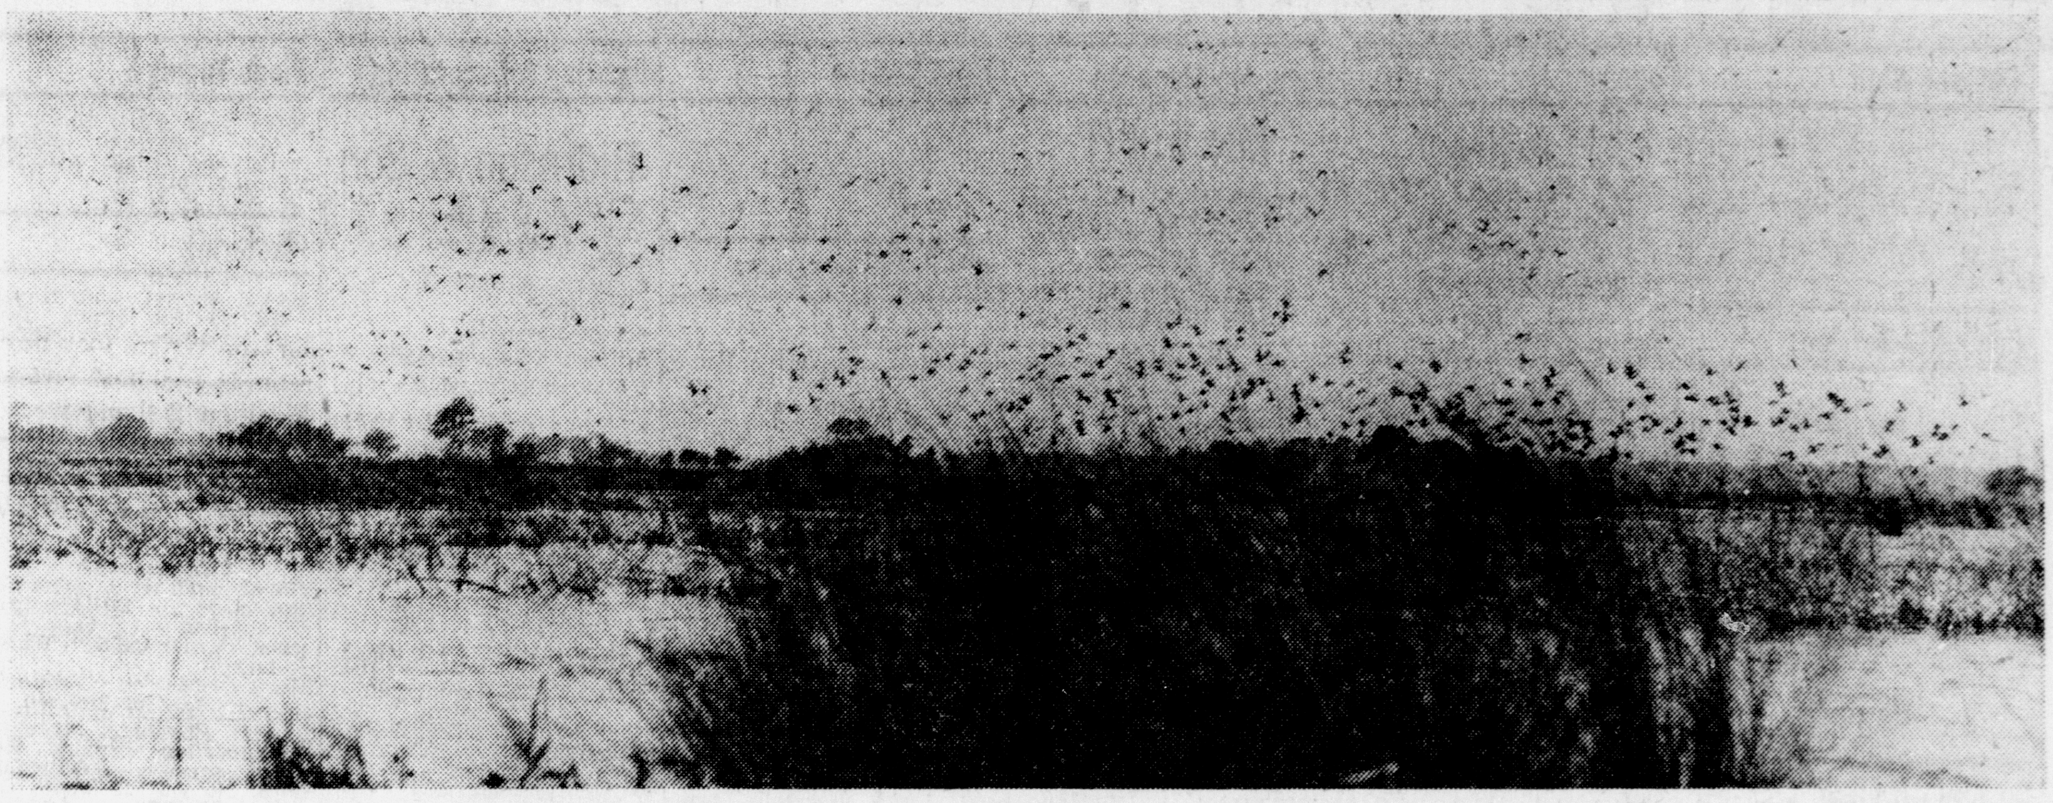
Horicon Marsh limits goose use



Migrating geese will be discouraged from stopping at the Horicon Marsh paradise in Wisconsin.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources will de-emphasize management concepts that would encourage further development of the Canada goose concentration in east-central Wisconsin.

In a joint announcement Wednesday, Regional Director Jack Hemphill of the Service and Anthony Earl, secretary of the Wisconsin DNR, said the two agencies propose to reduce goose use of Horicon Marsh, the nucleus of Canada goose activity in the Badger state.

The wildlife officials said the objective of the joint management effort is to reduce the peak goose concentration at Horicon Marsh to 100,000 by 1980.

The Horicon goose flock, a portion of the Mississippi Valley goose population that winters in Illinois, keynotes a peculiar success in wildlife management.

The Mississippi Valley population increased from 45,000 in 1936 to recent post-hunting season peak populations of 300,000. The portion of the population using east-central Wisconsin mushroomed from zero to recent peak numbers exceeding 200,000 birds.

The rags-to-riches story is not without bittersweet impact in the 19 townships around Horicon Marsh. Much of the area is rated as Utopian goose habitat.

The goal to move geese out of the area is largely contingent on manipulating the food, water, and sanctuary on state and federal lands.

Before the concentration can be reduced, adjustments in the land and water features at Horicon would have to be made, the officials said.

Under the proposal, now in the work plan stage, lowland browse croplands would be permitted to revert to natural moist soil plant growth to reduce the availability of roosting and feeding areas. De-watering strategic portions of the marsh is another measure of the goose-management proposal.

Earl said the coop effort will focus on "reducing the peak concentration — not the population."

"Our chief concern is the resource," the DNR Secretary said. "Better distribution of the geese would reduce the potential threat of disease to the flock."

State and federal waterfowl managers fear the concentration makes the birds vulnerable to diseases such as fowl cholera and duck viral enteritis.

The officials said thinning the concentration would help alleviate crop losses in the private sector. However, Hemphill explained that weather must be considered when evaluating the problems of goose depredations.

"In dry years farmers normally harvest crops before the migrant geese congregate in the area," he said. "In wet years, the birds may have an opportunity to pilfer some of the standing crops, and some complaints can be expected."

Reducing goose use by 50 per cent and dispersing the flock from the Horicon Zone before December 5 is part of the strategy, Earl said.

The manipulation plan to reduce the goose flock has some hidden benefits for ducks. Upland agricultural fields on Horicon National Wildlife refuge and all state-managed areas in east-central Wisconsin will be converted to dense nesting cover. "Converted uplands would be unattractive to geese but would lend well to duck production," Hemphill said.

Widespred public interest in the geese is evident. When the birds wing into the area from summer nesting grounds in Canada, thousands of people visit Horicon to see the spectacle. Traffic congestion is a nagging problem in the area.

In spite of the planned reduction, Wisconsin will still have a sizeable goose population to enjoy. To most observers, the proposed change in the goose population would not be apparent, the officials said.

The agencies have not ruled out an increase in the hunting quota for the Horicon zone. "It would be premature to suggest an increase in the harvest quota at this time," Hemphill cautioned. "This door must be left open, but whether or not an increase in the harvest quota will be necessary is purely speculative at the moment."

The statewide harvest quota is established at 28,000 geese, of which 16,000 is assigned to the Horicon Quota Zone.

The state-federal changes planned for goosedom are expected to produce a more equitable use of the resource, particularly in states to the south — much to the anticipated chagrin and joys from mixed sentiments in the upper Midwest. Emotion is a factor in the Horicon story, the officials said.

In their joint announcement, Hemphill and Earl disclosed that an action plan encompassing a number of options is being prepared by the agencies. The options would be implemented in various combinations, depending on weather cycles and other factors, they said.

Unique tournament lures pheasant hunters

Illinois-Iowa Open gets a shot

With events such as bass fishing, skeet shooting and fly fishing transforming the outdoor sportsman's world into an arena of professional competition, it was only a matter of time before pheasant hunting joined the sport-for-money lineup.

John M. Mullin, owner-manager of Arrowhead Hunting and Conservation Club in Goose Lake, Ia., has proposed the Iowa-Illinois Open Team Pheasant Hunting Championship, March 6-7.

The team concept is relatively unique to woods and waters enthusiasts who have rarely been forced to depend upon the skills of a partner.

A third required member of the team is a hunting dog — either of the pointing or flushing variety. The canine need not be pure-bred or registered, but better not have a cold this particular weekend, either.

After a team has paid its $120 entry fee by the deadline of Thursday, March 4, a drawing will be held during which time teams will be assigned one of two 40-acre fields of relatively equal habitat and size.

The competition is limited to 50 teams and, of course, no spectators will be allowed either at the clubhouse or near the hunting areas.

The rules are fairly simple, with emphasis on speed (the time it takes the dog to find and flush the birds), accuracy (hunters are allowed only 16 shells between them) and skill (only eight birds are released for each team).

A 30-minute time limit will accompany each team in the field with bonus points awarded for a team that bags its eight birds prior to the deadline and also for a team that uses less than its 16-shell allotment.

The drawing may be the key element of the contest since eight birds will be released before each team enters the field. If the team that kicks off the tournament fails to bag a bird, for example, the second team would likely have 16 targets to choose from.

The winning entry (provided the shootout draws 50 teams) will receive $625 plus two trophies while the runnersup cash for 30 per cent of the purse and third place 20 per cent.

Although Mullin insists he's catering to the ordinary hunter in such an event, that potential $625 first-place check could conceivably lure some of the top shorpshooters from the two-state area.

A judge will supervise each team's hunt to ensure proper etiquette and sportsmanship.

Obviously no birds may be shot on the ground and pheasants caught by the dog that are not shot in the air by the team won't count.

Birds caught after being shot will be counted if, in the judge's opinion, the bird was hit and the dog's activities are to be considered a retrieve of a wounded bird.

As is the case at most hunting preserves, hen pheasants may be taken, but a valid Iowa hunting license is required. The club offers a special $5 hunting preserve license that will suffice for the two-day hunt.

Interested hunters can receive additional information by calling or writing Mullin at Arrowhead Hunt Club, Goose Lake, Ia. 62750 or by calling 319—577-2267.

TEAMWORK will be emphasized during the Iowa-Illinois Open Team Pheasant Hunting Championship next weekend at Arrowhead Hunting Club in Goose Lake, Ia.

Elk Grove club presents clinic

The Elk Grove Sportsman's Club will hold a fishing seminar Sunday, March 7 from 1-5 p.m. in the auditorium of Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village.

Guest speakers are Tony Portincasco, field editor for Fishing Facts magazine and Wisconsin guide Tony Rizzo. The pair will present two one-hour lectures before answering questions from the floor.

Portincasco will speak on "Jig Fishing Technique" from perch to musky and Rizzo, a resort owner and free lance writer will cover walleye and musky fishing.

Admission is $2 and tickets will be available at the door. Free door prizes include three 2-man coho fishing trips, an electric trolling motor, a $10 gift certificate and a Fish-Hawk depth locator.

For more information, contact seminar chairman Eric Swoelfer at 727-5137.

Match trolling motors to needs

Vic Watia

The growing popularity of electric trolling motors is shown by some 100 models presently on the market and costing anywhere from about $30 to more than $300.

The motors are available in a variety of mounts and styles, with 12 volt and 12-24 volt models the most popular.

But the angler who decides to purchase an electric motor must take a few things into consideration. The most important step is to match the electric motor to the boat he'll be using and the water he'll be fishing.

For example, if a fisherman plans to fish with only a 10-foot boat and on quiet farm ponds, he doesn't need a 24 volt unit to push his craft around. A 12 volt unit will do an excellent job, and costs less.

But the angler who uses a variety of boats and fishes a variety of water, may be interested in an electric trolling motor offering the option of both 12 and 24 volt power.

The development of permanent magnetic motors contributed to today's boom in electric trolling motors. The magnetic motor allows more power with less drain on a battery.

Before such motors were developed, fishermen often got only a couple of hours use from electric motors on fully charged batteries. But many motors now can be used all day before the battery requires charging.

Most electric models marketed today are equipped with magnetic motors, but some models consume more power than others. Usually it depends on the amount of thrust of the motor.

For example, the higher the thrust (power) — say 18 pounds instead of 10 pounds — the more electricity the motor may draw, resulting in a faster drain on the battery.

But some trolling motors draw less amps (electricity) per pounds of thrust than others, so it often is worth the consumer's effort to check the specifics before he buys.

Many models are equipped with variable speeds and using a lower speed results in less draw on a battery and longer use per battery charge. The variable speeds allow an angler to use more thrust under windy conditions and less when lakes are calm.

It's fairly simple for even the beginner to figure out how long a motor will run on his battery without a charge. Two facts must be taken into consideration: the ampere hours of a battery and the amps drawn by the motor.

For instance, if a 60 ampere battery is purchased, that means the user gets 70 amps of use in one hour. If his electric motor draws only 10 amps on high speed, it means he can run his trolling motor for six hours straight on the 60 amp battery before it requires a charge.

Therefore, the higher amp battery purchased, the longer the trolling motor can run. But the angler should remember the more powerful the battery, the more it usually weighs.

The 12-24 volt systems are almost a necessity on heavy boats, especially if the fisherman wants to be able to hold his craft in windy conditions. But the 24 volt system requires two batteries.

Some anglers make the mistake of skimping on a battery once they purchase an electric trolling motor. The most common mistake is to purchase a car battery instead of a marine battery, which is designed to take frequent charges.

A marine battery stays hot through more charges without losing its original amp hours, while a car battery can deteriorate under continued charging.

Marine batteries also are safer because they are designed to take the beating handed a boat in rough water and there is less chance the battery will break and spill acid in the boat.

Ask Andy

How Andy picks questions to publish

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Eddie Perez, 11, of Huntington Beach, Calif., for his question:

HOW DOES ANDY SELECT QUESTIONS FOR THE COLUMN?

The column answers questions from readers between the ages of 7 and 17. Naturally, interested adults may read the column if they wish, but Andy does not answer their questions. He cannot even answer all the questions from his young pen pals, since it is possible to answer only two questions for the column each day.

Some people think that Andy runs a sort of contest for the best questions. This is just not so. Every thoughtful question is a good question, so trying to judge them is unfair. Since selecting just two questions each day is a difficult task, a few rules were established to make it as fair as possible for everyone.

First of all, Andy tries to pick questions that are likely to interest most of his faithful readers. As a rule, these questions are of two types. Some concern rare and fascinating subjects that nobody ever thought of asking about before. Others are popular favorites that many pen pals ask over and over again. Choosing a question that has been asked by only one reader is much easier than picking one posed by 20 or so readers — and this is when Andy checks his rulebook.

Let's say that 20 pen pals ask the question: "Why is the sky blue?" Andy knows that whichever letter he chooses, he might make 19 other readers sad or mad. So Andy reads each letter very carefully. Some of the letters are disqualified because the writing is almost unreadable. Fancy lettering and perfect spelling are not important in this case, but the words should be bold and clear so that Andy can read them without getting a headache.

Some pen pals write beautiful questions and then forget to sign their names. And many others forget to include their home address complete with ZIP code. Since the reader selected receives an award, this information is necessary. Many letters cannot be chosen because the writers forget to give their age. This is important because younger readers like simpler answers, while older readers enjoy deeper explanations.

By now possibly only two of the original 20 questions remain. Both pen pals included their name, age, address and ZIP code, and they were both easy for Andy to read. In this case Andy selects the letter that seems to be most polite and friendly. As you know, Andy is a great one for politeness.

It is also easier for Andy when you send your questions on post cards, instead of letters with hard-to-open envelopes. And when you use a post card, remember to put all the necessary information at the bottom — so that your name doesn't get canceled along with the stamp.

If your question was answered for someone else, please do not feel angry or sad. You asked one good question, and Andy is sure you can think of another. Who knows? One of yours may be selected very soon.

Andy sends a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Greg Cook, 11, Fredericton, N.B., Canada, for his question:

WHY CAN'T SOME ANIMALS LIVE IN CAPTIVITY?

A wild animal is just that — wild. He is free to wander, search, migrate and mate as his instincts direct him. True, he may remain in one particular area for his entire life, but that is a decision he has made for himself, not one that has been imposed on him. Wild animals often thrive in zoos and other restrictive circumstances, but some cannot adjust to being confined in any way. They become weak and listless, do not eat normally, cannot reproduce and sometimes die before their natural life span is reached.

Animals, like humans, vary enormously in disposition. One member of a species does not behave in exactly the same way as another. Zoologists have found that wild animals reared in captivity fare better than those who have had a taste of complete freedom. New facilities and methods for the care of captive animals are continually improving. Even so, there will probably always be some wild creatures who will only live successfully in total freedom.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Paint across a piece of white paper and watch a picture appear like magic! Here's the secret:

Put a sheet of waxed paper over smooth white paper (like typing paper). Draw a picture on the waxed paper. Use a pencil or the tip of a wooden spoon handle. Press very hard. Lift off the waxed paper.

Mix water color or tempera paint with some water in a cup. Paint over the paper. Your picture will appear!

Blue, green, or red paint will work better than yellow. Paint over each part of the paper only once. The picture may disappear if you go over the same spot too much. You may want to try using two colors of paint. Let them flow together to make a new color.

There's more to ballet than tutus and tights

Stories by Jill Bettner

On recital night every little girl is an angel, but it takes a lot of hard work

"Positions, girls."

The command is given quietly but firmly by the stately woman who moves with the fluid grace of a dancer. She has lived the disciplined life of a ballerina since childhood. It is 4 p.m., precisely, and class will begin on time today as always.

The students, nine young ladies dressed in the required uniform of black leotard, pink tights and slippers, each with her hair secured neatly on top of her head, respond to her words instantly.

They line up quickly at the bar, turn to face their teacher and say in unison, "Bonjour, Madame."

It is a gesture of respect and part of the regular routine at the Galina Dance and Music Studio, Des Plaines, perhaps the only European-style ballet school in the Northwest suburbs.

Madame Galina presides here and insists on the same decorum in her mirror-lined classroom that existed in the Ukrainian Bolshoi-type school she attended as a child.

That was in Kharkow, the former capital of the Ukraine, back before the Russian troops moved into the country, when there were beautiful schools for serious students of the arts.

She entered one of them at the age of nine, and for the next nine years, spent at least two hours each day in the dancing studio besides attending academic classes, working toward her goal of becoming a professional dancer.

The rows of pictures that line the walls of her tiny office in the storefront studio at 1610 Linden St. are the rewards for those years. Madame Galina and her husband, Mr. Alex, (as he was known professionally) with Rudolph Nureyev, the Panovs, Margot Fonteyn. She knows them all.

"We are I guess you would say strict

Teachers advise: visit the dancing school before enrolling a child in class

Choosing a dancing school for your child from the wide variety of schools in the Northwest suburbs can be a confusing and difficult task.

There are at least 13 schools in this area alone, not to mention the scores of studios in nearby suburbs and the hundreds available in Chicago.

Nearly all schools offer ballet, tap and acrobatics, though some may provide instruction in other specialized types of dance such as modern jazz, Hawaiian, ballroom or ethnic dancing.

Schools differ widely in the size of classes, the number of instructors, dress required and the length and cost of lessons.

On the average, the charge is about $11 per month for a one-hour group lesson with about 10 students once a week. Some schools offer 45-minute classes or lessons that may be as long as 1½ or two hours. Most also provide semi-private or private lessons for an additional fee. Private lessons usually range from about $10.50 to $15 per hour.

To outfit a child for beginning combination dance classes that usually include some tap, ballet and acrobatics or tumbling, parents can expect to spend between $30 and $40. Leotards usually sell for about $7 to $10, depending on the size and style; tights are about $4 to $6; tap shoes may range from $10 to $15 and ballet shoes average $6 to $8. Instead of a leotard, the uniform for boys is usually a black or white T-shirt and black pants.

Many schools purchase the required clothing from dance suppliers or wholesalers and make the items available for sale to students.

Teachers agreed that there's no set procedure for choosing a good dancing school, but offered a few suggestions on.

Dance is a lot of hard work

here," she says in her soft guttural accent. "With the kind of training I had myself, I just can't stand to see something done just somehow. It has to be right. Sometimes I think people in this country don't understand what it means to have respect for a teacher, respect for a school."

Some parents she says have not understood or been able to see the reason for some of her rules — why students must wear pink tights and not white ones, for example, or why they must put their hair up for class.

"We don't believe in fooling around. The rules are not difficult, but they are my rules," she says. "I am the teacher and students should come here because they want to learn what I can teach. That, to me, is what a school is for. I have had a few complaints — not many — but some, and when I get them, I just say the door here opens both ways. Nobody has to stay."

Most of Madame Galina's students take three, four or even five lessons per week. Like most ballet teachers in the Northwest suburbs, she requires several years of classical ballet training before students are allowed to attempt toe dancing or go "sur les pointes."

Wearing those delicate, but for some painfully uncomfortable, shoes with the long satin ribbons that lace around the leg, seems to be the dream of every little girl who has the chance to take dancing lessons. But there's a lot involved in preparing a youngster for toe work.

Most schools in the area will accept students as young as three or four years old in classes that usually consist of some tap and acrobatics in addition to basic ballet moves. Some students may take the combination classes for several years before deciding to concentrate on ballet.

"All of our beginning students take the combination classes," says Sharon Kassel, owner and director of the Kassel School of Dance, Rolling Meadows. "Ballet, tap, acrobatics — they all help each other and help the teacher keep the short attention span of young children. Of course, we hope they'll develop an interest in going on with ballet in particular, but ballet is a difficult subject and to teach it right, you have to build up the muscles and the bones."

Allowing students, especially children, to wear toe shoes too soon — before their feet and spines are ready — can do serious damage, Ms. Kassel says. The Kassel school and many others require a physicians's statement before students can begin learning toe work.

"The beginning lessons are designed to be fun and enjoyable and to develop the body so that the child is ready for toe work when the time comes." she says.

In addition to learning the basics of ballet in those first years, students become familiar with the terms for each movement in French, the international language of ballet. By the time many students are seven or eight years old, they know to bend at the knees when the teacher says "plie," stretch a leg when she says "battement tendur" and have the "reverence," or dancer's curtsey, down pat in time for the annual dancing school recital.

Nearly all area schools have recitals, some more than once a year. It's a chance for mom, dad and the rest of the family to see what Susie is learning in dancing school and a chance for the young performer to acquire some poise and confidence before an audience.

Every little girl in tights and a tutu is a princess. For anxious mothers and fathers fidgeting in the audience at her dance recital, something magical happens when the big night finally arrives. Some undoubtedly are surprised to find that after months of delivering a freckle-faced tomboy with skinned up knees to dancing lessons week after week, the music starts and the curtain rises on a budding ballerina.

In the mind of each proud parent, there's only one star of the show. She may be the best slugger on the fifth grade baseball team and a holy terror in tennis shoes, but recital night in her dancing slippers, she's an angel.

The theme of the show and the routines it will include may be worked out as early as January for a June recital. From the moment it's decided the three-year-olds will play dancing bunnies and which advanced students will perform solos, work begins on building the show.

Patti Byrnes, director of Patti Byrnes' Dance Workshop, 274 Beau Dr., Des Plaines, prefers to give her students stage experience by having them perform in shows at area nursing homes.

"I don't like recitals myself," says the petite blonde who opened her studio over the cabana at the Bainbridge Apartments a few years ago after practically growing up on stages around the country. She appeared with her father then in a traveling act called "Byrnes and Patti" and still performs solo occasionally at industrial and trade shows in the Chicago area.

"I know a lot of teachers have big recitals every year and I've done them myself because parents say they like them, but it doesn't seem fair to ask parents to pay for recital tickets after they've been paying for lessons all year. I'd rather do shows at nursing homes where the kids can entertain senior citizens."

Ms. Byrnes believes in the value of performing experience as do other teachers who say there are a wide variety of social benefits to dancing lessons besides learning steps.

"Let's say a child comes to dancing school when she's fairly young. She may know she never wants to be a prima ballerina, but when she gets into high school and wants to be a cheerleader, she'll know how to move," Ms. Byrnes says. "To me, being able to move is the most important thing. I teach correct technique, but I don't stress it right away. Anybody can spend three years at the bar and look beautiful in positions, but what good is it if they can't move?"

what to look for when you're shopping around.

Dance studios are not required by law to be accredited by any particular agency. However, teachers may obtain certification from the Chicago Assn. of Dance Masters or belong to any of several dance organizations including the Cecchetti Council or the Ballet Guild. The affiliations are not required, but Sharon Kassel, director of Kassel School of Dance, Rolling Meadows, recommended that parents find out as much as possible about the professional involvment and background of a school's teachers before enrolling a child for lessons.

"A professional teacher is someone who's been on the stage and knows what the theatre is about plus someone who knows about children — not just somebody who decides to put a shingle out and call it a dancing school," she said.

Several teachers also suggested that parents visit a class or two to get an idea of how lessons are conducted and what may be expected of their child. Most teachers also arrange special days throughout the year when parents may sit in on lessons after a child is enrolled to enable them to monitor his or her progress.

"I would encourage anyone to observe a class before picking a school," Patti Byrnes said. "They should look to see that the students are not doing any exercises that could damage their legs especially. With the wrong exercises, muscles in a youngster can become overdeveloped. They need work that has the same amount of push and pull for muscle tone, not bulges."

"Of course, the other big thing to find out is when the teacher will allow students to go on pointe," she said. "I require at least three years of instruction and a child must be at least 10 years old. Their feet have to be ready, their body has to be ready and they have to know what they're doing. You can really do serious damage to a child by letting them go on their toes too early."

Some schools, such as Vivian's School of Music, Dance and Entertainment Services, Wheeling, offer nothing but private lessons. Vivian Pintacura, who runs the small school in her home at 1008 S. Wolf Rd., urged parents to consider the value of individualized instruction.

"I give nothing but private lessons because I was in both myself as a child and saw the difference," she said. "In private lessons, students are not self-conscious or worrying all the time about what everyone else is doing. It's good for them because they can work and progress at their own speed."

Whatever school is decided on, all the teachers agreed that parent involvement shouldn't end once the child is signed up for lessons or surface only around the time of recitals.

"A child has to have the continued encouragement of his pfrents to succeed in dance like anything else," Ms. Pintacura said. "The child who doesn't have it is usually the one who will lose interest and drop out after just a few months."

Jim Durham:

THE VOICE OF THE BULLS

by Bill Hill

The teletype machine was doing its usual thing — coughing out stories for the station's newscasters to read aloud for its listeners in central Illinois.

Since it was a Saturday morning, the stories were of little significance, just features and short "news fillers." The bells that give warning of important stories were silent.

But the noisy machine next to Jim Durham's desk couldn't be ignored. If he, or someone else, didn't take notice, the yellow paper being fed out of the top of the machine would soon overtake the small newsroom.

It was April 1973. Durham was using his day off at the Bloomington radio station to put together a special slide show for State Farm Insurance. Routinely, he tore off the wire stories and placed them on their proper hooks.

There was one that caught the 26-year-old sports announcer's attention. It, too, was not a "bell-ringer," BUT THE REPORT THAT Chicago Bulls basketball announcer Jack Fleming had quit his job with WIND radio in Chicago was certainly an eye-opener for Durham.

"I always kept my resume handy. I sat down, updated it, wrote a letter and sent in my demo tape. It was a long shot deal. But what did I have to lose. All they could say was 'No,'" says Durham.

More than 40 others also applied for the Bulls job, including at least nine announcers already broadcasting for National Basketball Assn. teams. Durham received a prompt reply thanking him for applying, but there was no further word and he "forgot all about it." But in July the announcement came that the job as Bulls announcer was his.

From rags to riches. Small town boy makes good. Anyone making it to the top in the highly-competetive broadcasting field has a similar rise-to-fame account. But for Durham, it is all true.

He grew up in Donovan, Ill., a small town (Pop. 343) settled among the corn fields southeast of Kankakee.

"Donovan is so small we didn't even have a village idiot. My brother and I had to take turns," Durham laughs.

"Since I was 10-years-old, I knew I wanted to be in sports. But I stopped growing when I was 5-8, and I couldn't hit a curve ball, so I started looking for another way to be involved with sports," he says.

"I knew I had the talent, or ham, that it takes in radio. But it also takes a lot of luck to get to the big leagues," says Durham.

And a lot of time. For Durham it involved a start at the campus radio station at Illinois State University, a clean-up boy, part-time disc jockey job at a small station in Normal, an afternoon drive-time D.J. spot in Peoria, and (after almost two years in the U.S. Army) a short stint in Salina, Kan.

"Kansas and I didn't get along," he says, so he jumped at the chance to join WJBC in Bloomington. He worked there for three years as the station's sports director, with the additional job of evening disc jockey if he was not broadcasting a game. "I worked at night, no matter what," he says.

Durham then reached the big leagues — three years ago at the age of 26. Then, and now, he holds the distinction of being the youngest announcer in the league.

He looks even younger than he is, and his enthusiasm further disguises his age. Usually he talks basketball, completely serious and straight-forward, though he occasionally throws in a fine imitation of Howard Cosell.

He speaks with confidence, but never hestitates to emphasize how lucky he was to land the Bulls job.

"I was one of the few guys who knew no one, took a shot in the dark, and made it. Phil Nolan (WIND general manager) was taking a big chance on me. In the broadcast world, who was I? I was a nobody," says Durham.

But he was an instant success, says Nolan, who calls Durham "one of the two best announcers in the league," along with Chick Hearn of the Los Angeles Lakers.

"I prefer Jim's style," Nolan says. "He's totally in control of himself. He gets excitement and emotion into his voice without getting unglued. He doesn't miss a thing by getting carried away. He always gives a coherent word-picture of the game."

As the "Voice of the Bulls," Durham broadcasts all 82 regular season games, several exhibition games and any playoff games each year. When he is in Chicago, he also gives three sports reports on morning radio.

The lifestyle of the Durham family has, obviously, changed since leaving Bloomington. The mobile home days have been left behind; the family of four now has a home in Hanover Park. But he is not there much during the season.

"The travel is a little tough," he says. "I don't mind the physical toll of traveling; eventually it becomes numbing, going endlessly from games to hotels, to airports, to games. All I do is follow the tall guys.

"But you don't really think about all the traveling that much. Not until you go home and your son doesn't know who you are. That's when you stop and think," he says.

It's just part of the price he must pay, as is living in the Chicago area, which he says he doesn't like: "For someone raised on a farm, it's a tough adjustment."

But he's right at home when itt becomes game-time. He usually works alone, although former Bulls player John "Red" Kerr provides color commentary at most home games.

From tip-off to the final buzzer, Durham gives fans a "word picture" of the game. The non-stop chatter can be tiring. "It becomes numbing going from games, to hotels, to airports. All I do is follow the tall guys."

Envelope honors farmer

Bicentennial Era The American Farmer

The U.S. Postal Service will release an embossed envelope honoring the American Farmer in ceremonies March 15 during the annual convention of the National Farmers Union in New Orleans.

The 13-cent envelope is the third in the Bicentennial Era series which includes the American Seafaring Tradition envelope issued last October and the American Homemaker envelope released Feb. 2.

The new issue is on brown laid-finish stock and carries a brown silhouette of a plow with a green indicia depicting a sheaf of wheat.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Farmer Envelope, Postmaster, New Orleans, LA 70113" enclosing the proper remittance which is 15-cents per envelope. Collectors should also enclose self-addressed, stamped envelopes so the new issue can be returned to them under cover. Postal officials will supply the new issue in the standard 6¾ size unless collectors specifically request the larger No. 10 envelope.

Stamp notes

by Bernadine M. Rechner

The United Nations Postal Administration (UNPA) will mark the 30th anniversary of the World Federation of United Nations Associations (WFUNA) with the release of a commemorative stamp March 12.

The adhesive will be issued in three denominations — the U.S. 13-cent and 26-cent and the Swiss F.s. 0,90.

On the same date, the UNPA will issue a souvenir card marking the WFUNA anniversary. Cards are available in mint condition ($1.00 each), canceled/New York with a new issue 13-cent stamp affixed ($1.18) and canceled/Geneva with a new issue F.s.0,90 adhesive affixed.

Requests for first day cancellations and souvenir cards should go to "The United Nations Postal Administration, United Nations, New York, NY 10017."

Rare coins to be displayed

A rare Bicentennial collection of 1776 coins and currency, valued at more than $10,000, will be on display at the Continental Bank in Chicago starting Monday.

The collection, on exhibit through March 26, consists of Continental and Colonial currency and coins from 35 foreign countries including France, England, Germany, Holland, Spain, Ireland and Malta.

Highlighted in the exhibit is a Continental dollar struck in pewter, the first silver dollar size coin ever proposed for the U.S. The display can be viewed during regular banking hours from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the second floor of the bank, 231 S. LaSalle. .

Local group plans theater party

Reservations are now being taken for the Hoffman Estates Park District's Adult Tour Group which will see "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers" at Drury Lane North Theatre April 17.

The comedy, at Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort, stars Shelia McCrae and Jack Heller. Included in the trip package is a prime rib dinner.

Reservations must be made today or Sunday by visiting or writing the park district office, 650 W. Higgins Rd. Cost is $20 per person. The bus will leave the district office parking lot at 6:15 p.m. and return at 1:30 a.m.

Diamond cutter shows skills at jewelry store

Thomas Mills, a diamond cutter, will demonstrate his skills Thursday and Friday at Persen and Robbin Jewelers, 24 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Born in Wheaton, Mills is a graduate of the American School of Diamond Cutting in Gardnerville, Nevada. His tools include a cast iron wheel, a wooden tang (pronounced tongue), which holds the adjustable copper wire upon which the dop rests. Dops are designed to hold the diamond at different angles as the wheel cuts it.

Mills will demonstrate his technique from noon to 8 p.m.

WTTW previews the movies

by Karen Blecha

If you're like most people, you don't like to waste money on a bad movie.

To solve your problem, at least this week, WTTW-Channel 11 has a show for you. "Opening Soon . . . At A Theater Near You," Monday at 7 p.m., previews four of the new movies in town. The films get basically good recommendations from critics Roger Ebert and Gene Siskel. And to balance the program, they throw in their choices for "Dog of the Month," movies that at all costs should be avoided.

Ebert and Siskel give their opinions on one violent film, two family shows and the latest effort of director Francois Truffaut.

Movies reviewed include Martin Scorsesse's "Taxi Driver," starring Robert De Nero which Siskel considers a violent film; John Huston's "The Many Who Would Be King," a swashbuckling extravaganza with Michael Caine and Sean Connery; "The Story of Adele H.," about Victor Hugo's youngest daughter who eventually cracks up like most of Truffaut's women; and "Hester Street," the story of a Jewish immigrant family in New York featuring Oscar nominee for best actress, Carol Kane.

The critics, sitting in a mock-up of a movie theater designed by the Channel 11 crew, present their views with wit and humor, pull no punches and don't always agree. They also throw in their opinions about who should win the Academy Awards in March.

Half of the show is devoted to film clips, so if you don't agree with what the critics have to say you can at least get an idea of what's in the movies. Some of the words have been bleeped, but it's easy to decipher what's missing.

This will be the first time Channel 11 has broadcast the show. Producers are considering making it a regular series, but have no definite plans.

Roger Ebert and Gene Siskel take a look at the new movies in town.

'Young Pioneers'

Producer hopes to attract teen viewers

by Vernon Scott

Producer Ed Friendly hopes to capture television's turned-off set, the high school and college age group who don't dig kid programs and are bored by cop shows and sitcoms.

He thinks he's found the answer with a television movie, "Young Pioneers," which could become a series.

It's the story of an 18-year-old boy and a 16-year-old girl who marry and head for the Dakota Territory circa 1873. If the film wins high ratings Monday at 7 p.m., ABC will make it a series in the fall.

Friendly says he snagged the post-pubescent crowd as co-producer of "Laugh-In" and is convinced he can lure them back again with a series based on the forerunners of today's restless young people.

"This isn't a western," said Friendly, a former NBC executive. "And it's more than a love story.

"There's a corollary between modern youngster and the two principals. Kids have a yearning to split from their families and crowded cities to head out on their own.

"A hundred years ago they packed their belongings in wagons and headed west. Today they escape in vans or motorcycles to the Northwest or Alaska. Some of them are still homesteading.

"It's a basic drive to return to the land, to seek old values.

"Young people haven't changed over the last century in these respects. Today's kids can identify with the couple. They can't identify with characters on most shows, so they simply don't watch."

Friendly, who originated and produced "Little House on the Prairie," is convinced his casting of that show insured its success. He was equally meticulous in finding the right faces for "Young Pioneers."

His casting director interviewed 400 young actors and actresses for the lead roles. Friendly talked to 80 prospects and had 40 of them read for the parts. Seven were eventually screen tested.

"It's not enough to bring two strangers together and have them play a young couple in love convincingly," he said.

"So I called a meeting of the four girls and three guys who were in the running for the parts. I had them exchange telephone numbers and told them to read the scenes together over the weekend and work on the lines, first with one partner and then another for the tests.

"The two who came off best as a team would get the roles. As it turned out, Linda Purl and Roger Kern were the ones who set sparks flying. They were signed for the parts."

Friendly hopes his new offering will appeal to the entire family despite the fact that it is aimed primarily for the age group which prefers movies to television.

In order to capture respectable ratings the show must attract a broad demographic spectrum.

"Younger kids can anticipate the sense of adventure we're dealing with," Friendly said. "Older people have already gone through that stage of life and can enjoy it again in retrospect. It will also give them some insight into what is going on with their own offspring."

He has another problem. ABC-TV has ordered 25 pilots for next season. Friendly's series will be competing with them for air time.

"The trend is still toward half-hour situation comedy," he acknowledged. "But the pendulum has swung too far in that direction. It's bound to swing back again to the long form.

"The network has ordered more scripts for future episodes of our show, which is a good sign. There is no violence or sex in our film so there won't be any trouble with the family hour time period."

Friendly is a knowledgeable producer, but he may lose the audience he is seeking in the first episode. Today's kids often are turned off by marriage and just head for the hills to live together without benefit of clergy.

Perhaps some of them did that too back in 1873, but he couldn't put it on the air.

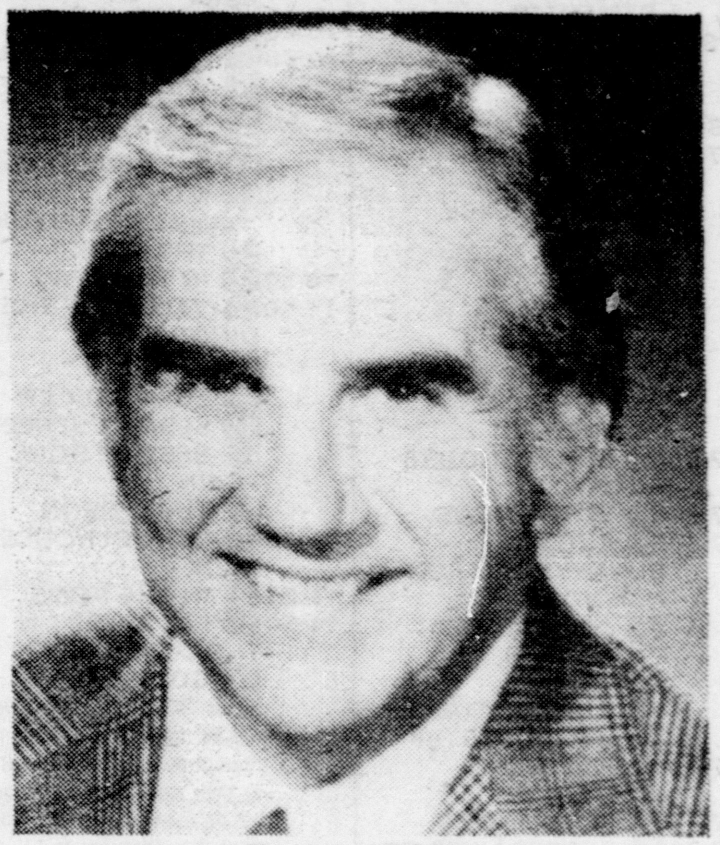
McMahon's really a tea-totaler



ED McMAHON

HOLLYWOOD (UPI — Ed McMahon plays a lush in a new movie and the wise guys nod their heads and cry, "Type casting."

For better or worse, jolly Ed shares Dean Martin's reputation as a world class toper.

During 14 years as Johnny Carson's sidekick on the 'Tonight Show" Ed has been kidded for schlepping sauce on a gargantuan scale.

Whever he lifts a coffee cup on the show the audience titters. They know McMahon, like Jackie Gleason, is sipping 98 proof firewater. Booze jokes are tailor made for the big, bluff Irishman.

Strangers are compelled to send a round of drinks to Ed and his girlfriend whenever they show up at a restaurant.

He's been accused of being a test pilot for National Distillers.

Ed's heard more gags about the size and condition of his liver than a French doctor at Vichy. If his eyes are puffy from the Los Angeles smog, it is taken for granted McMahon is nursing a hangover.

In "Dick and Jane" Ed plays a businessman souse with such authority he is certain to add to his legend as a two-fisted drinker.

The prospect doesn't bother Ed a bit.

"My image as a heavy drinker has given me a good relationship with the American public," he said soberly in the Burbank Studios commissary during the noonday break. "People feel they can sit down and have a drink with me. It gives us a common bond."

Ed had just completed a scene with costars Jane Fonda and George Segal and had sipped a glass of champagne celebrating Segal's birthday.

"Just one glass," he hastened to say.

"There's no way anybody could drink as much as I get credit for and still be walking around. Or even crawling around."

Ed's apartment at the beach recently burned, forcing him to move. There were unfounded rumors the blaze was caused by spontaneous combustion of alcoholic fumes.

His association with a national brewery as a television pitchman hasn't dimmed Ed's reputation as a drunk either. But he takes it all good naturedly. He feels it's better to have that image with the public than no identification at all.

"The whole thing has added pizzazz and color to my career," he said.

"It's true, that isn't coffee in the cup I drink from on the show. It's tea. Just plain tea."

He patted his abdomen and said he had lost 35 pounds in recent years.

"No one can lose as much weight as I have and drink very much," he said. "And I work too hard to pay away as much booze as I get credit for. These days I drink mostly white wine.

"I haven't missed a 'Tonight Show' since we went on the air. It's tough enough trying to keep up with Johnny Carson sober. It would be impossible to try if I were drunk.

"Almost every weekend I fly out of town to do my nightclub act. And I have a contract with a company that builds shopping malls. I appear at eight mall opeings a year.

"On top of that I play Las Vegas four to six weeks a year. And I'd hate to walk on stage with a snootful."

Dramatic acting is a new wrinkle in Ed's career. He previously played a straight role in "The Incident" eight years ago and would like to do more picture work.

"It's not an easy thing for me to do," he said. "My scenes in this movie have to be juggled to fit my schedule on the 'Tonight Show.' I leave here at 4:30 every day and rush over to NBC in time to introduce Johnny.

"He is a constant source of delight to me. He's full of surprises and I have to be on my toes at all times."

Has he ever showed up three sheets to the wind for his catch phrase, "Heeeeeer's Johnny!"

"Not once," he concluded, raising a glass of ice tea. "And I'll drink to that."

Bonnie Franklin

Could you please tell me all you can about Bonnie Franklin, who's on the series "One Day at a Time" and print her picture?

R.B.

Sure. Bonnie, who plays Ann Romano on that series, began entertaining as a child. At age four, she was doing Shakespeare and five years later she was the tap dancing protege of Donald O'Connor. By the time she was a teenager, she made TV appearances as an actress and dancer. She continued to perform in musicals and plays throughout her college career.

Bonnie feels that 1969 was a blossoming year in her career. Since that time, she has starred in Broadway and off-Broadway productions, on TV, and in regional theater productions. She won the Theater World Award, the Outer Critics Circle Award, the Aegis Theater Award and a Tony Award nomination for her performance in "Applause" on Broadway.

Bernadette Peters

A holy man changed her life

Bernadette Peters is a name of the future.

She is a young, blonde, well-endowed New Yorker who soon will be seen in three movies and a Norman Lear television series which has a good chance to make the CBS lineup.

Bernadette has a kewpie doll face which doubtless encouraged her to collect the old-fashioned dolls. She is, however, a new-fashioned girl in her 20s who found it difficult to find a job a year ago.

A success on Broadway in "Mack & Mabel" with Robert Preston, Bernadette moved to Hollywood for a shot at the movies. There was no fanfare of trumpets, no producers with contracts awaiting her at the plane.

She landed a good role with Cliff Robertson in "Ace Eli and Rogers of the Skies," a forgettable picture which, she says, was released for a single day before being shelved as a disaster. Next was a small part in "The Longest Yard."

"Then nothing," she said. "For two years I couldn't find any work at all.

"But while I was in New York doing a night club act last May I met a holy man who changed my life. He doesn't represent any organized religion. It's just meditation and truth. Ever since my association with him my career has been booming,"

Bernadette chose not to reveal the name of the mysterious man. She did, however, say their relationship was strictly platonic.

"All the good things that are happening to me now are not coincidence," she said. "I wore glasses before I met him. Now I don't need them anymore.

"And I'm not surprised at the sudden boom of my career. It's all due to my strong belief in God. I'd never been religious before I met the holy man."

It is suspected her new found devotion to vegetarianism may be due to his influence as well.

Bernadette, who was reared in Queens, is a singer as well as an actress. Since falling under the spell of the holy man she has performed on "The Carol Burnett Show" and "Cher."

Additionally, she has worked in "Maude," "All in the Family" and "McCloud" for television.

In 1975 she played key roles in "W. C. Fields and Me" and "Vigilante Force." Now she has a top part in Mel Brooks' new feature film, "The Silent Movie."

Surely as important as the man with the message in her life is the influence of producer Norman Lear who is not on record as a holy man but surely is a sorcerer with five hits going for him on the tube.

BERNADETTE PETERS

Lear is not a vegetarian either but he knows new talent when he sees it.

Bernadette's off-beat flair for comedy inspired him to cast her with Richard Crenna in the new series, "Strange Bedfellows."

"It's the first situation comedy based on politics. I play a 23-year-old free lance girl photographer. Dick plays a Washington, D.C., columnist. My character is very liberal and he's an arch conservative."

Bernadette, is single, unconventional and reminiscent of Clara Bow in appearance. She lives alone in the Hollywood Hills and is learning to operate a camera for her role in the show.

She pulled an expensive 35mm camera from her handbag and took several pictures in the very dark restaurant where she was having lunch.

"I think I'm doing pretty well," she said. "Of course none of my pictures have been developed, but I think I look professional."

Shelby Lyman on chess

Are you suffereing from the Bicentennial doldrums? A bit tired perhaps of uninspired reenactments of the Revolution and the trinketism that accompanies them?

If you play chess even a bit, you may like the following somewhat tongue-in-cheek project.

A group of Boston chessplayers, through the agency of the Boylstron Chess Club, has challenged the city of London to a Bicentennial telephone match, a "bloodless replay of the American Revolution."

If British chauvinism runs to form and the Londoners accept, a very good match could ensue. Boston boasts one U.S. Open Champion Norman Weinstein at first board, while the redcoats have a reservoir of ex-British champions available.

And there are distinct possibilities of television coverage here at home.

Some Bostonians, however, seem concerned. "What will happen they argue, if we should lose?"

Why you'll be forced to swallow your own poisoned pawns, that's what!

Hint and Explanation for Beginner's Corner: Black's king is exposed, and his rook though powerful-looking is undefended.

The 1975 U.S.S.R. Champion Tigran Petrosian lost only one game in this year's 16 round event. But in that loss the careful Armenian grandmaster was tornadoed off the board.

Solve-It: A smart sacrifice of a knight by his opponent Romanishin (16.N-Q5!) opened vital lines leading to Petrosian's king. White's rooks, bishops, and queen had a field day, though analysis may yet show there was an adequate defense. The sacrifice of the knight accelerated and freed the white forces for the attack, while black's cramped army could only twist and turn with lesser effect.

The perplexing question in such situations, "Who stands better, the defender material ahead or his opponent pressing the attack?" is never easy to answer.

by Oswald and James Jacoby

When your partner leads the king of a suit against a suit contract you are supposed to play high with a doubleton in order to ask your partner to continue the suit and let you ruff the third lead.

East knew this play very well. He didn't know that there was no reason to give this come-on signal when you really didn't want to ruff so he played his eight of hearts at trick one.

West continued with the ace and another heart and East ruffed happily. Then he looked around for new worlds to conquer but there weren't any. South got in, drew trumps and eventually discarded a diamond on dummy's queen of hearts.

Now look what would have happened if East had played his deuce of hearts. West would have shifted to another suit and probably to a diamond. East would get a trick with his king and his trick plus two hearts and a trump would have cooked South's goose.

And the winner is...

Searching for Bicentennial bad taste

LUCKENBACH, Tex. — So many entries are coming into the National Buy-Centennial Bad Taste contest that Mayor Hondo Crouch thinks his city, pop:. 3, may even get its post office back.

The once-active post office has received stacks of letters from throughout the nation with suggestions for the most flagrant commercial abuse of the bicentennial theme.

Awards for the best suggestions will be given during a Leap Year Day National Non-Bicentennial celebration Sunday.

Luckenbach proclaimed itself the nation's first National Non-Bicentennial City last August and decreed that "no man, woman, child or animal is permitted to walk through the streets dressed in an Uncle Sam suit; no red, white and blue souvenirs made in China, Taiwan or Uganda are sold; no federal funding is spent on anything."

"We had our own post office awhile ago and even our own individual zip code, but the bureaucrats took it away because of a lack of business," Crouch said. Mail to and from Luckenbach now is routed through nearby Fredericksburg.

"Looks as though this volume business will get it back for us in this Buy-Centennial year," said Crouch.

Letters to the National Non-Bicentennial Commission now are sent to Luckenbach, Tex. 78624, via Fredericksburg.

Jack Harmon, a publicist and one of several San Antonio residents helping the three Luckenbachians carry off the spoof, said that judging from early nominations it may be tough to decide on a Buy-Centennial Bad Taste Award.

One entry quoted a Chicago radio commentator as saying, "Let's cut out the pretense. After all, aren't we all in it for the buck?"

Other suggestions include the inventors of red, white and blue devices, Christmas trees, beer cans, cigar boxes, caskets and other objects too personal for public mention, Harmon said.

"We are confident we have not yet plumbed the depths of commercial abuse of the Bicentennial, even though we have seen examples of bad taste that boggle our minds," Harmon said.

"Two weeks ago I would have sworn I never would have seen anything worse than a Buy-Centennial toilet seat," he added.

"Nothing will surprise me now."

JIM DURHAM:

a scoring drought during a game. But his description of the game is not cluttered with the overused clinches that mark the accounts of most announcers. His concise, coherent style is a reason for his popularity, Nolan says.

Durham points to the fact that he had plenty of practice perfecting his play-by-play announcing. At Bloomington, he worked more than 100 basketball games a year by covering high schools in both Bloomington and Normal, as well as Illinois State University and Illinois Wesleyan University.

But he never tires of the game. Nolan calls Durham "a student of the game." He attends many of the Bulls practices to know in advance what plays are likely to be used, and he studies intently the styles of opposing players in the league.

"Pro basketball players are the greatest athletes in the world," Durham says. "I used to think college basketball was more exciting. I thought the pros were so good, but dull. But in three years at the pro level, I've learned more basketball than I could have in a lifetime."

Though the style of play is different, Durham says he did not adjust his style of announcing. That was not what worried him about the Bulls job. Coach Dick Motta did.

"I knew I had to do a show with him every game, so I really wondered how he'd accept me. I wondered what type of guy he really was.

"He had a reputation of violence and quick temper, but he's nothing like what you read about him. We hit it off great. We're just two farm boys from small, unknown towns," Durham says.

The job can get tough, though, when the Bulls are losing often, he says.

"But I'm in the business of entertaining. I still have an audience. I can't let myself get down. Of course, I'm still a reporter so I can't look past the negative, but I have to look for the bright spots."

It is the best job in the world, he says.

"It sure beats working. I mean, I get paid to go out and watch guys play games. I get to see the greatest athletes in the world. If you're not moved by that and appreciate that every night of the season, then you've got no right to be in this business."
